Strange Story.

SINGULAR FATH OF THE SIAMESE TWINS.

We were compelled to remain at the little. town of S-, in iladen, longer than we expected. The day was dreary, the rain ouring down in streams; and we commencedan exchange of anecdotes and witticism: Not the least interesting of our party was a young commercial traveller whose. flow of natural wit and laughable restorts kept us in a perpetual roar. "Of course," said he, as something like quiet was restored after one of his ridiculous stories, "you gentlemen are aware of the death of both the Stamese twins ! "What!" was the exclamation of sur-

Poor fellows! What a pity, was it the result of a surgical operation? The first I liave heard of it, really. 'No, responded the narrator, sadly, "they suffered a frightful death." As he said this his fine assumed the appearance of real sorrow, which was soon reflected by those around him, while even those scoptics who had little faith in his gloomy) revelation began to look earnest.

The Berliner paused impressively, gazing in surrowing silence on the table be "But, gundness 'teil us about it," exclaimed the Hanover gentleman, his eyes flashing with curiosity. "You see gentlemen," began the Berlinheard that these twins are fond of money; they both have wives and quite a number of successors. This is why they concluded to take one last triumphant journey. "They took passage last March, to Aspinwall, in one of the large steamers, via the Suez Canal, for Europe. In mid ocean an accident occurred to the boilers and nece sitated the use of sails in their place. "You are, no doubt, aware, gentlemen, "They were overtaken by a heavy storm
