FROM OTTAWA. This Morning's Despatches. THE FRENCH MEMBERS: DISSAT

The Strength of Parties,

Dufferin despatches are exciting considerable comment and speculation. The fact that they were written prior to the disclosures made before the Royal Commissioners, and at a time when Ministerial deception had overwhelming control of Her Majesty's advisers, lessens the force which they otherwise would have. There is every reason to believe that Earl Dufferin does not entertain the same opinions now, that his confidence in his Ministry believed that there are other despatches of later date which have not been and which are withspecial purposes. It no secret this morning that the Cabinet are heavily involved in complications arising out of Riel's difficulty.
