From the time when George Tuch was buried, the voyage became more and more monotonous, and naturally occurring incidents of interest had to be supplemented by ourling, skipping, leap frog, &c., &c. We had two days of drizzling rain and heavy fog, the latter of which showed the intense interest of our captain and crew. During these days and nights the Captain scarcely ever left his post, and the crew seemed to be always on duty. The waking passengers were comforted every half hour by the ringing of the ship's bell, and the cheerful voice of the sailor on the outlook as he called the number of bells and "All's Well." From the time we sighted land on Juesday morning until our arrival at Greenock, at 10:30 p.m., our eyes were feasted on the most magnificent scenery in the world. The east end of Ferry Island as we approached it from the west looked like a magnificent moss-grown cathedral, whilst the fisher men's boats, which !sy under its cragged coast, looked like toy-boats as the heaving, surging tide rocked them in their. island, where one of the Anchor Line yessels some time ago struck and went down and lost all hands save one steerage passenger; the rocks of the ridge peered up from beneath the waters like ambashed marderers waiting for their prev. We now entered the beautiful Loch Foyle, passing Green Castle and its noble fortifications on the south, and steaming on through the broken land-locked waters to Moville, where we transhipped the deck passengers on the coasting boat "Admiral," Moville is a beautiful little town, lying on the hill side at the most eastern end of deep water, on Loch Foyle; its houses are all built of stone, with nicely cultivated parches of, ground attached. The country around looked beautiful, bearing everywhere the evidence of careful cultivation. his wife and friends in New York Bay is that he paid good salaries and gave proper vacations to his clerks, and when any of them fell sick in his employment he sous came round. This is the kind of obituary that tells. When a man dies people think of the body of his life and never mind the fringes and frills on its edges.

READ THIS. - No use of any longer tak ing the large, repulsive, griping, drastic and nauseous pills, composed of crude and bulky ingredients and put up in cheap wood or pasteboard boxes, when we can, by a careful application of chemical science, extract all the cathartic and other medicinal properties from most them into a minute Granule, scarcely larger than a mustard seed, that can be readily awallowed by those of the most sensitive stomachs and fastidious tastes. Each of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets represents, in a most concentrate ed form, as much cathartic power as is eme bodied in any of the large pills found for sale in the drug stores. From their wonderful cathartic power, in proportion to their size, people who have not tried hem are apt to suppose that they are harsh or drastic in effect, but such is not at all the case, the different active medicinal principles of which they are composed being so harmonized, one by the other, as to produce a most searching and thorough, yet gentle and kindly operating cathartic. The Pellets are sold
