Scottish Superstition in Regard to Marriage.

In Scotland there is a well-known objection to marrying in the month of May -superstitions and silly, no doubt, but so general that even Sir Walter Scott vielded to it, when his daughter was about being united to John Gibson Lockhart. He went to London in April, to receive the baronetcy which George IV had conferred upon him, and hastened back to Abbotsford at once - of his own manufacture, besides all kinds for his biography says, " he had such re- Ready make Work, Rubbers and Overspect for the ancient prejudice (a classical | Shoes. as well as a Scottish one) against marriages in May that he was anxious to have the cermony in which his daughter was concerned over before that unlacky month should commence."
