Every increase of years increased their obligation to go forward, and happily the Church in Canada intel ligently appreciated its duty. Its bounds were rapidly extending, as they must do in order to maintain the place the Church held in the country. Still there was a great deal of apathy manifested amongst its members. Many people say this was the old story that they are always asking for money. What would these people think if God were to say -"I have blessed you these many years past sufficiently, and now I will do nothing more for you." They would say, "O, but we cannot live!"
