The reason that Russia's demand for the Egyptian tribute concerns England is that the tribute is already pledged as security for the interest on the Turkish loans of 1854 55 and 1871. The first of these were raised to carry on the Crimean war; the second is guranteed by England and France. All are largely held in England. By the terms of British Gouernment and the bondholders Egypt now pays the tribute directly to the Bank of England. The Russian proposals will abrogate this convention without consulting or indemnifying the beneficiary assignees, and make the English and French Governments liable for the 1855 loan.

If the treaty of peace, as is hoped, is signed, within the next day or two we shall be able to review its terms with calmness, and then will be the time for the Ministry and Parliament to decide how far they may demand a protest or resistance on the part of this country.
