OHURCH SINGING.

(From the Cornhill Magazine.) About the worst use a congregation can make of a choir is to leave it to do the with interest, as the gase may be. You worship when the people pay little heed to the singing, and take little personal SUGAR DOWN, DOWN buy. hould take more part and interest in the from the singing part of worship except as listeners. Then, if they would not give up their right to sing, let them show their appreciation of the privilege by more skilful and hearty singing. Good congregational singing is not to be had with out toil and cost. If it could come by merely wishing for it, then many congregations would sing much better than they do. They need to inform themselves oulpit give much advice about singing till less can he go into the details of art A few remarks occasionally. calling upon the congregation to join more heartily in the singing, is the most that he can undertake with propriety and access. The congregation needs to be called together apart from worship, and solely for practice and instruction in the rocal art. A skilful and judicious teaher can soon point out the usual faults and lead them on by intelligent practice congregational singing is indispensable, and there is no first class work done without it. The exercises for the production of the voice should be gone through, as ctice of this kind will be of more the psalmody of the congregation should DERS for the Fire Department. be encouraged to practice the exercises at ly corrected by private practice; and who will persevere in private for ly half an hour a day will soon be able o make a better public, contribution to the general worship of song.
