A BUNSTER. The above note, beside the bad spelling, HEAD OFFICE: PICTON, ONTARIO had not a single punctuation point in it, which speaks volumes for "B. A. of Trin. Coll., Dub." as he claims to be. The result of the challenge was that Mr Cheval left the Chamber and alone went to beard the lion in his den. He found Mr Bunster in the room and asked him what he meant by send ing him such a note. He was asked in return why he had sent him a blank card. Mr Cheval denied he had sent the card, and was told he lied. Mr Cheval said he did not lie, and told Mr Bunster to send for the page who had delivered it. Mr Bunster then SILK OR STIFF FELT HATS charged Mr Cheval with having blown a bugle in order to annoy him while he was speaking. Mr Cheval also promptly denied it and was called a liar. He said he was not a liar but that he (Bunster) was a liar. Upon this Mr Bunster-struck violently at Cheval, who parried the blow and hit his as sailant under the chin. Several heavy blows then passed. Mr Cheval being struck on the left check and Mr Bunster in the face and on the side of the head. Neither of them were marked but Mr Cheval fastened his left hand in Mr Bunster's beard and made a savage jerk, bringing Tway enough hair to till one of his vest pockets.
