THE SONG OF THE CAMP.

A Crimean Incident.

Evening Post to give to his friends :

"Give us a song !" the soldiers cried, The outer trenches guarding. When the heated guns of the camps allied Grew weary of bombarding.

The dark Redan, in silent scoff, Lay, grim and threat ning, under; And the tawny mound of the Malakoff No longer bulched its thunder.

There was a pause. The guardsman said "We storm the forts to-morrow; Sing while we may, another day Will bring enough of sorrow,"

Then lay along the battery's side, Below the smoking cannon-Brave hearts, from Severn and from Clyde, And from the banks of Shannon. They sang of love and not of fame ;

Each heart recalled a different name, But all sang "Annie Laurie." Voice after voice caught up the song. Until its tender passion Rose like an anthem rich and strong-

Forgot was Britain's glory ;

Their battle-eve confession. Dear girl, her name he dared not speak, lot, as the song grew louder, Something upon the soldier's cheek

Beyond the darkening ocean burned The bloody sunset's embers, While the Crimean valleys learned How English love remembers, Washed off the stains off powder.

And once again a fire of hell Rained on my Russian quarters, With scream of shot, and burst of shell, And bellowing of the mortars.

And English Mary mourus for him Who sang of "Annie Laurie." Ah, soldiers ! to your honoured rest Your truth and valour bearing :

And Irish Norah's eves are dim

For a singer, dumb and gory ;

The bravest are the tenderest -The loving are the daring. BAYARD TAYLOR.
