The Mail of yesterday contained an article on Queen's University, in which Principal Grant is referred to in most eulogistic terms. "He," says the Mail. "has more than fulfilled the expectations we had formed regarding him. He has thrown all the zeal and enthusiasm that he showed in the active duties of the ministry, into the study of books and the work of the class-room, and from all we can gather he gives promise of becoming an able instructor and an efficient administrator. We congratulate him on the influence over youth which he has already gained." A kind reference is made to SPRING AND SUMMER WEAR Professor Mackerras, whose illness is referred to with regret. We join with the Mail in expressing the hope "that the release from academic labour and the genial influence of the approaching season will result in his complete restoration to health, and enable him to resume those duties which are so dear to his heart."

GREAT BRITAIN AND THE EAST. The despatch of an army corps from England to the Mediterranean and of an expeditionary force from India for the same destination is indicative of some ish Government. A very lame attempt at justifying his sonduct did M. De St. Just make. He laboured strenuously to make it appear that his Ministers had Body.
