Woman's Love.

A woman's love is of man's life
The dearest, brightest part;
It soothes him in his hours of strife,
And cheers his lonely heart.

And blest is he who back repays
Affection's smiles and tears:
For woman's love shall gild his days,
And smooth the lapse of years.

A woman's love is like the rose—
By every tempest shaken;
If nourished it still blooms and grows,
But withers if forsaken.

Then blest is he by whom 'tis nursed—
By God 'twas made and given;
There is no richer boon on earth
Than woman's love—'tis heaven!

Take Thou My Name.

(FROM THE FRENCH OF RIDUHOMME.)

If I could tell
The love I bear thee,
Then would'st thou hear me,
And love me well.

Take thou my heart, 'tis thine alone;
For since the hour of our first meeting
For thee alone my heart is beating,
Nor will it other mistress own.

Take thou my wealth, it is for thee,
Without thee it could bring no pleasure;
Nor would my wealth buy one such treasure
As the dear smile thou givest to me.

Take thou my name, for it is thine,
Over my heart forever reigning,
With each fond word new power gaining,
So shalt thou be forever mine.

The "Sick Woman" of Europe.

The opinion is evidently gaining ground on both sides of the Atlantic that Benjamin Disraeli, Earl of Beaconsfield, knows what he his about, and that the sick woman of Europe, as England is contemptuously termed by Continental and Irish satirists, is pretty lively yet. Britain and Russia are contending for a great stake namely, prestige in the East, and during the war with Turkey Russia had by far the best of it. So great was the effect upon the Mohammedan and Hindoo mind of her successful war with Turkey that England's raj, or regin, was regarded as past, and the vernacular press in India and the Mohammedan teachers in Africa spoke of Britain in the bitterest and most insulting terms, as indeed did all her enemies everywhere. In fact, her hour had about come, her influence was gone, she dared not fight, Ireland would recover her independence, and so on. But all that talk was suddenly changed by the passage of a British fleet "without leave," up the Dardanelles at noonday, with every gun shotted and every man in his place, to take up a position before Constantinople. From that time Russia saw a new factor in her calculations—another Sebastopol looming up—and felt that it was only a question of time when and how she would have to back out of the extravagant pretensions embodied in the treaty of San Stefano. Not satisfied, however with one daring act, Britain has been preparing incessantly since for a gigantic conflict, and how she is bringing troops from India, probably to be stationed in Egypt until all questions with Russia and Turkey are settled satisfactorily. This move is by far the most ominous for Russia yet. It was all along acknowledged that Britain had the naval and financial superiority, but where were her armies? They were mere corporal's guards as compared with the armies of Continental nations. An order for fifteen steamer loads of Indian troops of the most efficient description indicates the answer to that question. Nothing would be easier than to draw "three hundred thousand more" from that swarming hive of humanity. This Russia well knows, and is now as anxious for a congress to decide on terms of peace as she was formerly haughty and defiant about it. The fact is the Asiatic nations are perceiving that it is Russia from whom the raj is departing and not England. In their own picturesque way of describing things, the Genius of the Ring, however powerful, cowers before the Genius of the Lamp, and Asiatics always follow the genius. Does Britain then wish for war? Certainly not; All her interests and inclinations prefer peace, and her gigantic preparations at present are, she believes, just the best way of securing it. A wise merchant will go to any expense in order to procure the information and advice that will keep him out of lawsuits. And so it is with Britain, she is going at present to enormous expense to keep out of war, and we hope and believe she will succeed. There is nothing to be gained by either nation in a war; the only thing either could ask is to prevent loss. Germany would be the real gainer, as its two most formidable rivals would be seriously weakened. Austria could also probably make her own terms in the event of war between Britain and Russia.—N. Y. Witness.

Gravity.

A party of ladies and gentlemen, when recently shown through the Bonanza Mills, at Virginia Mills, Nevada, by Mr Long, the Superintendent, when the quicksilver bowls standing near the amalgamating pans attracted the attention of the visitors, and they enquired what use the odd-looking concerns were put to. He explained their use, but the ladies did did not seem to catch the sense of his remarks very readily. They seemed quite puzzled. Mr Lond repeated his explanation, but the ladies manifested more surprise than ever. In order to make himself understood, Mr Long then gave a practical demonstration of the working of the bowls, by pulling up the stopper which checks the inflow of the beautiful metal from the pipe connecting with the supply tank. The bowl immediately filled with quicksilver, the surface looking clean and bright. The party could not resist the temptation of dipping their fingers in the metal. They withdrew them as clean as when they put them in. This surprised them. Mr Lang threw a bunch of keys in the bowl. They floated. This was a pleasant experiment. A gentleman with the party then threw a pocket-knife in the bowl. It also floated. The ladies were delighted. Mr Colby, the Chief Engineer of the party, having just been relieved, came along. He threw a four-bit piece in. It floated, of course, and the took it out and rubbed it dry. The quicksilver having absorbed all the impurities on the coin, it looked bright as burnished gold. One of the ladies said it was beautiful, and another took a twenty-dollar gold piece out of her pocket-book and threw it in. Mr Long and Mr Colby saw the movement, but said nothing. The specific gravity of gold as compared with quicksilver being as seventeen is to fourteen, the coin sank out of sight, to the utter dismay of the ladies, and the great mortification of the owner of the twenty dollars. This feeling did not last long, however, as Mr Long assured them that in a day or so he could probably restore the lost money in the form of amalgam, as he would have to use the quicksilver to work the next charge put in the pans.

WILL CURE CONSUMPTION.

To all suffering from the following diseases a ray of hope is offered through the kindness of a missionary friend who has sent me the formula of a purely vegetable medicine which has long been used by the native medicine men of Hindostan:—for the positive and radical cure of consumption, bronchitis, asthma, catarrh, dyspepsia, throat and lung difficulty, general debility, loss of manhood and all nervous affections, its power has been tested in hundreds of cases without a failure. I now feel it my sacred duty as far as possible to relieve human misery, and will send the recipe—free of charge—to any person who may desire it with directions for using. Sent by return mail by addressing with two stamps naming this paper Dr. O. R. Brigham, Drawer 28, Utica, N.Y.

A CARD.

To all who are suffering from the errors and indiscretions o youth, nervous weakness, early decay, loss of manhood, &c., I will send a recipe that will cure you, FREE OF CHARGE. This great remedy was discovered by a missionary in South America. Send a self-addressed envelope to the REV. JOSEPH T. INMAN, Station D, Bible House, New York City.

"PULMONARY CONSUMPTION arises from a decline or deficiency of vitality in the natural bioplasm or germinal matter, and this deficiency manifests itself not only in a general wasting or atrophy of the whole body, but also in a peculiar degradation, chiefly in the lungs and lympathic system, of portions of this bioplasm into a sluggish, low-lived, yet proliferating matter, which, instead of maintaining the nutrition and integrity of the tissues (which is the natural office of bioplasm) clogs them and irritates them with a substance which is more or less prone to decay, and eventually involves them also in its own disintegration and destruction."

To remedy this deficiency by sustaining the vitality and sufficiency of the bioplasm, and thus provide for the general building up of the whole system, is the office and design of Robinson's Phosphorized Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with Lacto-phosphate of Lime.

Prepared only by J. H. Robinson, Chemist, St. John's, N.B., and for sale by druggists and general dealers. Price $1.00 per bottle; six bottles for $5.00.

☞ The patronage among the first-class hotels in New York is constantly changing from one hotel to the other. The Grand Central Hotel has recently incited the direct wrath of its competitors by offering the same accommodations for one and two dollars per day less than the others.

The sale of Sarsaparillas for blood and liver medicines is almost entirely superseded by the introduction of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, which far surpasses in efficacy these old-time medicines.
