Entered Into Life.

IN MEMORY OF GROUGE B, OBERST, A PRINTER -INSCRIBED TO HIS MOURNING FRIENDS, BY ANNA M. AUSTIN.

The following lines from the Ecchester Axpress are on the death of a young man well known in Kingston and an occasions arrespondent of the News, who was actently killed by a companion in that off a short time ago :

Not dead-but entered into life; Removed from pain and sorrow, ---Earth's brief to day of pain and strife Exchanged for Heaven's to-morrow.

He sleeps beneath the Spring-time flowers, The blue skies bending o'er him ; The gain is his -the loss is ours, Whose aching hearts deplore him. Out from our midst he passed away Across death's chilling river; O'er his bright manhood's opening day The curtain fell, forever. Our home is dark ; its light hath flown-Our joy hath turned to sadness .

Will wear a robe of gladness. For him there will be no more tears. No sorrow and no sighing ; No blighted hopes, no fading years, No sickness, "no more dying."

But evermore our darling one

The memories he hath left behind Are those of high endeavor ; His was a firm, unfaltering mind, That stooped to meanness never.

He left no legacy of fame, And naught of earthly treasure ; His riches were a noble name, And truth beyond all measure

"A noble life," says one who knew His wealth of high ambition ; -And can we doubt a life so true Hath found its full fruition !

No! though we weep our loved one gone, Our home so sad and lenely. The tears are for ourselves alone, For him rejoteing only. May 21, 1878.

Miscellaneous.

The Dublin (Ireland) ladies have gone mad on the subject of lawn-tennis, and are getting as proficient in the use of the hat as they are in the use of their eyes.

The following are the ages of the great statesmen of Europe : Beaconsfield, 74; Gladstone, 70; Bright, 67; Granville, 63; Von Moltke, 78; MacMahon, 72; Dufaure, 76. In Scotland, hereafter, married women ean own their own earnings, and husbands are not hable for debts contracted by their wives before marriage, except as they have had property with their wives. The Duke of Connaught, a London correspondent hints, wants to marry the daughter of an Irish earl, but his royal mother insists | Also a full stock of STRIPED MUSLINS, |. on the alliance with the daughter of Prince Frederick Charles, considering that one subject in the family is enough.

> BISHOP McCoskRy. - The Detroit correspondent of the Chicago Tribune, referring to Bishop McCoskry's resignation, says: "His resignation, placed in the hands of Bishop Smith, of Kentucky, is absolute. It is an absolute confession, in the form it takes, and it is startling enough to take the breath away from all who have up to the present time been the defenders of the Bishop. This is the last we shall see or hear of McCoskry. It is probably that he will sail for Europe shortly, and there end his days in obscurity." In 1865 the imports of the United States CURTAIN from Great Britain were $122,000,000 and their exports to that country were $84,700,. 000. Balance of Trade against the United States $37,300,000. In 1876, after the United States had been ruined by protection, for ten years, the figures stood, Imports MOLLOY'S tion. from Great Britain. $98,000,000, exports to Great Britain, $347,352,000. Balance in favour of the United States, $269,342,000. How would ten years of such protectionist ruin suit Canada?

Strange Discovery.

On Friday last, says the Norwood Register, while Mr David Kelly was getting out fencing rails on the Premises of Mr P&M. Grover, a short distance east of this village, he discovered a solid mass of strange looking stuff buried by the roots of a large tree, and on a close examination found the heap to comprise a lot of what once were dry goods, hats, caps, boots, shoes, and other valuable articles of clothing, everything so rotted and matted together, and intermingled with the small roots of the tree as to be scarcely recognizable as articles of wearing apparel. As the news of the discovery spread through the village, numbers visited the spot, among others, Mr W. H Stepheson, merchant, who, on getting the mass somewhat separated, recognized, on finding some pieces not totally decayed, them to have been goods stolen from his store about ten years ago, by gypsies or travelling tinkers then peddling wares here, f one of the party being arraigned, but suthcient evidence was not adduced to convict him. The robbery, the arrest of the suspected party, and other incidents in connection wit the transaction, are still fresh in the minds of a number of people of Norwood. The value of the goods stolen at the time was estimated at nearly $200.
