The Oswego papers contain sensational aconts of a mishap which occurred to detain no steamer Hastings on her return trip from Kingston to Ogwego on Thursday evening. mo.t satisfactorily accounted for. The Oswego Zimer speaks in the following manner: "Leaving the foruter place (Kingston) ! At the Kingston Office for the 24 hours end- at 5:30, she arrived within fifteen or twenty miles of Oswego at ten o'clock last night. Then the pilot, John McCuminky, lost his reckoning, and mistaking the lights of the propeller City of Toledo, bound for Ogdens. burg, for the Oswego lights he followed the propeller several hours and did not discover the mistake until the Hastings was some. where between the Gallons and Sackets Harbour. After cruising around in different directions, the pilot concluded he was lost, and at two o'clock this morning stopped the engine and the steamer lay at anchor. The Rev. Dr. Burrowes, of Oswego, Captain Campbell was unable to throw any light on the situation. About daylight this morning the steamer got under way again and when the captain and pilot found themselves they were in Mexico bay, from whence the steamer managed to reach Oswego in safety. A special train which had been held. for the Syracuse excursionists waited for them until 2 o'clock this morning. At 8 o'clock the Hastings took the Canada party on board and started for Kingston. The whole affair appears ridiculous and yet it is blunder would not have been made if the > have sole charge of the steering. The first trip over and the trip back again were made to interfere. It was Captain Campbell's watch below, and he went to bed, naturally McCummiskey, the pilot, had frequently taken boats across to Oswego, and this was I the fourth time he had taken the Hastings | over. The pilot claims that there was a dense fog on the lake during the night, and I this was the cause of his following up so closely the lights of the propeller. It is not true they were within tifteen miles of Oswego. If they had been they could have seen the lights, and been all right. Had it not ! been customary to take a pilot on board to navigate the boat, the officers could have done it easily, as they had both charts and compasses on board. The statements of the oue of them, at least, is said to be written in the interests of an opposition boat.
