Gananoque Notes.

(From a correspondent,)

Having arrived at this neat little village on the afternoon of Wednesday, I was delighted in having a conversation with Mr. D. F. Jones, than whom no man is so popu lar throughout the riding of South Leeds He feels quite jubilant, and, indeed, has a good right to be proud of the victory achieved He was well backed up by the good Conse vatives of the riding, and they were all well satisfied with the result, but, indeed, sorry that Kingston rejected Sir John, to its everlasting diagrace. While in this place I saw an obituary which I thought was worth

The deceased was a promising and lusty infant, but, like the pigs, as it grew older it marcon. grew uglier, and its parents, afraid that it might rise and destroy them, physicked it to this fall. death with a National Policy pill."

How are the mighty fallen ! Although Kingston has made for itself an unenviable notoriety in not re-electing Sir John, who has served it and his country for | cashmere so many years, another constituency will have the honour of being represented by him, | be revived. and Sir John, instead of the cold shades of Opposition, will again find himself at the helm grappling with the Herculean but hopeful tank of raising the country from the slough into which it has been plunged, and restoring that prosperity which we enjoyed during many years under his rule.

Having been obliged to be over in Ganano que for a night I was the next morning treat-SUGARS-lower than any house in the ed to a splendid sail across the river opposite this village to Kidd's Island, which was recently purchased by Captain Davis, than whom a more friendly gentleman you could not get acquainted with. He spared no pains in shewing us round the island Capt Davis intends to make great improvements. He is beautifying the grounds and commencing fall labour, so that he may have a garden on the island so attractive as to cause a large concourse of people to go there during the pienic season. He has got a tame bear which goes through a number of postures to the delight of the visitor. Captain Davis intends Kidd's Island to be the most attractive place on the river.

The Brophy House is kept by Mr Brophy. He does all he can to make those who call on him feel at home. He has removed from the Provincial to the present house, and has refitted and painted the hotel in splendid style. Give the Brophy House a call. The Queen's Hotel, kept by Mr. W. W. Fagg, is a first class house. The host and hostess are extremely attentive and kind. We would recommend any parties going that way to give Mr. Fagg a call. I had great pleasure in visiting Mr Cook's woolen factory. It is a very extensive stone building, and he employs a large number of hands. I saw during my visit to this place eight women weaving cloth of different tex. ture, and fourteen otherwise employed. He | coats. seems to be doing a large business in that way, and after considerable cost to himself extensive, and by his exertions and industry is accumulating a good competency. Gananoque, on the whole, has no circulation of money. Everything seems to be dull, although the water privileges are not better anywhere in Canada. But it appears there are no capitalists to take up the matter.

Professor Schiern has followed the tradition back to the large work in folio on the Emperors, which Tristan de St. Amant published at Paris in 1614; and the tradition appears also to be supported by the fact that a half moon is often found on coins of Byzantine origin.
