EXHIBITORS OF IMPLEMENTS were in a state of great dissatisfaction, and had held a meeting to give vent to their in dignation at the awards made by the Judges in their department on Thursday, Shortly after ten o clock a printed document, headed "Strangers, heware," was scattered among the visitors. This set forth that at a meeting of the representatives of the different reaping machine manufacturers, held the evening besome degree of fairness and impartiality shown by the Judges, it would be useless to to send articles for exhibition." They also claimed that unless the Judges appointed examined all machines entered, instead of only looking at a few, as they asserted had been done, they implied that they would do something, which, however, was not stated in the circular. The signers also suggested that it was improper for the Secretary to exhibit to | farmers. any extent in any class as had been done there. This document was signed by 13 persons, of whom only seven were actual exhibitors. One of the signers was afterwards so ashamed of it that he wished his name could be withdrawn. The show in carriage horses was very fine, and some of the animals were a credit to their exhibitors. In stallions the show was not very large, but some fine horses were entered. T first prize was awarded to Ethen Allen, which is the sire of many of the colts and fillies shown at the fair. Of foals there were some very fine specimens, but there were others which should have been left at home. The horse ring was the greatest centre of attraction on Thursday afternoon, an immense crowd looking over the fence while the trials of speed and the general appearance of the various animals were being adjudicated upon. The Judges in this department had a most thankless office, as they could not give every man a prize. Nevertheless we believe they did the best they knew how, and on the whole gave satisfaction. We mention no names of exhibitors, as where all were so good it would take up too much space to do so, and might be considered invidious.

The machine has gained quite a number prizes, and is worthy of the attention of LADIES DEPARTMENT, ETC. Last on the list of exhibits-but not by any means the least-we place what the ladies will probably think the most important part of the whole show-the Ladies' Department. Here the exhibit was not by any means as large as we have seen it in former years, a great many vacant spaces being noticeable on the shelves. This is much to be regretted, because the department always has been the most attractive feature of the Central Fair to the majority of the in the Judges' dining room.
