(From an occasional correspondent) Leaving Kingston I proceeded by the Grand Trunk Railway to Montreal. The Hanlan-Courtney boat race attracted a large kets on this continent, and to cause her inburgh we met the return excursion train, which was composed of fifteen cars and two engines and over 1,000 passengers. A very serious smash up occurred at the above named place by which one man was killed, one severely hurt, and two engines and two cars smashed. It was rather an unpleasant sight to witness, and this was in no degree lessened by seeing hundreds of passengers from Toronto, Kingston, and other western cities and towns strolling around waiting for the track to be cleared.
