Can you paint a soul. What if beauty is diviner, Fragrant, or the whole?

Song is sweet, but love is sweeter, Was there ever hymn That for compass and for metre, Bowed the Seraphini?

Thought is great, but love is greater; Who can search out truth ! Love alone is revelator, Love is love, in sooth.

RICHARD REALF. Mr Gladstone on Royalty.

The Daily News of November 7th contains the following speeches of Mr Gladstone at a luncheon after a Liberal conference at Rhyl :-- of business, but I think we could not separate after the excellent entertainment which has been provided for us-we could not separate with satisfaction to ourselves unless we recognized our duties as subjects and citizens by drinking what are called the loyal toasts. (Cheers.) would say in proposing to you the health of Her Majesty the Queen, that although this toast, which regularly recurs at all our public celebrations, therefore runs some risk of degenerating into a merely formal expression, is more dependent CLARK myself that it is not so with me, and I behere it is not so with you. (Cheers.) hope the years as they pass will continue to affirm and corroborate, as they have hitherto in their passage affirmed and correborated, the attachment of the people of this country to the limited monarchy under which we live. (Cheers.) We (Cheers.) I trust that, with whatever imperfections, I am a sincere professor of your creed. (Cheers and laughter.) And I do not scruple to say to you that I do not Mink Seal and Dyed Otter Setts. look upon monarchy - upon a hmited constitutional monarchy in the English sense of the word-as one of those institutions which ought to grow pale and tade away in the light of advancing freedom. (Cheers) On the contrary, I believe it to be one of its best and most effective guarantees. have for many years held the opinion that, provided the spirit of that monarchy be understood, and provided the conduct of those who sit on the throne be framed on the model of our illustrious Sovereign (loud cheers) - so as to set an edifying exin liberty that may not be effected, not only without the destruction, but even with the confirmation and further admiration of constitutional monarchy. Generations may pass, and they will, I trustipass, and at the end of them the Liberals of that day will be doing what the Liberals of to-day are doing now, namely, meeting together in convivial entertainment, and cheering one another in the profession and practice of their constitutional principles, and gladly taking advantage of the their hearts the health of their Sovereign. FELIX SHAW'S (Loud cheers.) The toast having been enthusiastically

Mr Gladstone again rose and said-I have now to add one other (hear, hear)to the toast which has been received with so much warmth, the health of the Royal Family. (Cheers.) The Royal Family have had, ladies and gentlemen, advantages such as are not always enjoyed by persons of the highest class. That is to say, although they have had to encounter the temptations of their position, they have also possessed the mestimable advantage of being trained under the influence and within range of the example of parents who were a model to them in the discharge of every duty-(cheers) and those acquainted with the kindly, genial demeanour of His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, and the manner in which Clover, he avails himself of opportunities as they offer to perform those useful functions which come within his province upon public occasions, will join with me in the cheerful, hope that at the day - we hope the distant day-when he is called upon to occupy the throne the nation may have no reason to deplore any degeneracy from that high standard to which for many years we have been accustomed. (Cheers.) What I have said of the Prince of Wales may be said with equal confidence of the other members of the Royal Family. think this is not an inappropriate occasion to ask you to join with me in considering with pleasure the appointment which has lately been made to the Governor-Generalship of Canada. (Cheers.) We, COAL VASES, think, do not wish to see-in fact, I think we should regret to see any attempt made to bind the Colonies to this country by the chain of coercion, but we shall rejoice in every attempt to bind the Colomes to this country, and Liberals have at all times rejniced in attempts to bind the Colonies to this country by the silken BOOTS, SHOES AND TRUNKS. cords of love.
