Still more recently, we have perused with much pleasure the second signed for the use of teachers, and compa for the Committee of the Home and Colonia School Society by the Rev. Wm. Fleming, an ex-adjutant of infantry. The various exercise and drills are lucidly described and illustrated being readily understood and easily carried on in practice. The great advantage of a syste matic and progressive training consists in thi and groups of muscles which get very little, if the office of the Chief Engineer, Ottawa, at at all, exercised in our ordinary daily occups raw ungainly recruit in the course of a few months; and only those acquainted with the Commissioners' Office, Ottawa, up to 12 o'clock, facts can be aware of the improved physical noon, of the 20th day of March next. development, increased muscular energy, and resistance to fatigue that a properly regulated course of gymnastics will produce. To those who have to live by manual labour, physical education, moreover, becomes a matter of necessity, their manner of life and daily occupations requiring a robust frame and an unvarying state of health. Hence, in any national scheme of education, we concur with Mr Fleming in thinking that exercises of the body should be intermingled with those of the mind, in order to train the future man for his duties in life. Exercises at military drill have also an excelleent moral and disciplinary effect in training boys to habits of obedience. If we could have our way, we should insist, on sanitary grounds, on all school-boys being drilled -from the boy at a public school like Eton, to the boy at a village national school.
