Mr. James Daly, Castlebar, reconded the resolution, and said this was the twenty-mixth meeting of this kind he had had the honor of addressing. He had been described as an sgitator. There were landlords and agents in his own county who said they would prefer to be hanged drawn and quartered rather than yield to the demands made by these assemblages. But he had compiled a list of twenty such landlords in his county who, since tue first meeting (held at Irishtown), had made abatements of twenty-five per cent. on their rents. (Hear, hear.)
