PARNELL'S MISSION-There is a fast growing tendency both in the United States and Canada to give the present Irish distress the preference over the other phase of Mr. Parnell's misaion, the abolition of Landlordism in Ireland. Of course the latter part of the scheme of the Iriah agitators cannot bs accomplished directly by American or Canadian intervente u, and there is all round a decided distuctination to furnish aubscriptions towards the furtherance of this object. Mr. Parnell has already discovered for himself that there is upon this continent very little of that sympathy with the Communictic part of his movement which he certainly expected to find in Democratic America. Speaking lately upon this point he said "We have modified our views and purposes since we came here, and we should be criminal if we did not embrace the opportunity to collect money for famine relief. We need but little money for political purposes." This last statement to rather an important admission. It means the abandoument for the present of the larger scheme which the Irish leaders have at heart, viz., the buying in, or else the confiscation, of all the estates, of Ireland and the partition and distribution of them in small holdings among such a political purpose a very vast sum of money would be necessary, and therea fund, as he says for, "famius relief."
