Too Strict.

Judge Mullin, of Syracuse, is afflicted like some superior Canadian Judges with too much discipline. A case must be proceeded with when called or go over until the next Court. Lawyers who -Watertown Deputch If Canada is can not perpetually have witnesses in attendance are considerably annoyed as this arbitrary procedure. But one attorney got eyen with Judge Mullin and his is how he did it

"Mr. William Gilbert had a railroad case before the court, which was called by the Judge. Mr. Gilbert said he was not ready and asked for time to get his witnesses. 'No, sir,' said Judge Mulin, 'if you are not ready we will pass your cause.' 'I beg leave to say,' ventured Gilbert, 'that we will go on with our case, although not ready.' He then stood up in court and rolling the red tape from the voluminous papers, proceeded to open the ease. It was merely a talk against time. He had already taken the precaution to send after his witnesses, the most important of whom live in Geddes, and from the time of the calling of his case aired his eloquence until his witnesses were in court. That is where a lawyer got the better of a judge."

Chapter of Accidents.

The Newburg Reporter remarks: Wm. Shorts, in splitting a stick of wood a few days ago, brought the axe down in the wrong place. His foot was all but split in two from the toes to the aukle. Last week Mr. Ralph Lawrence, of Camden, was thrown from his sleigh in Newburg, splitting his upper lip about an inch. Mr. Wm. Day, of the Newburg Taubark into the grinding machine, when amount of the Legislative grant for High his right hand was caught. The third finger was lost and the second finger of a Bill to amend the Municipal Act badly crushed. A child of Mr. Harvey and Mr. J. M. Gibson of one to amend Martin, of Camden, had its thigh bone fractured about half way between the knee and hip joints, on Monday evening of last week. The child's aunt was earrying it down stairs in her arms when she slipped, and both fell to the bottom, the aunt falling upon the infant.

LONDON LETTER.

CROP PROSPECTS -RELATIONS OF BRITAL WITH AMERICA-VALUE OF WHEAT -A BLUE LOOKOUT.

(Regular Correspondence.) Automo-sown grain has scarcely made its appearance above the soil, and the sold has been in some measure serviceable to farmers in checking the development of vermin, and improving the condition of home-grown wheat, which has been freely thrashed to furnish growers with the funds requisite at this season, but, unfortunately, with very poor resu'ts in point of yield. On the other hand roots have in many places been seriously damaged, as the snow has dis-25 00 appeared and exposed them to the rigor of the temperature. Great destitution prevails amongst the poorer classes, who are suffering sadly from the privations entailed by sickness and want of employment. The past disastrous season has been absolutely ruinous to the agricultural interest; indeed it is hard to find a parallel to 1879, a year which, having produced neither wheat, hops, nor fruit, leaves the country nearly drained of money, and farmers a prey to the most dismal forebodings. If brighter prospeo's do not await them in the future, and an abundant harvest in 1880 cure them of the heart sickness of deferred hope, by bringing back at any rate some of the money which has been flowing so freely into foreign pockets, emigration will be the only alternative. The first aix months of the past year were marked by great inactivity in the grain trade, and comparatively slight fluctuations in the price of wheat ; indeed, it was not until the end of September that millers began to pay much attention to unprecedentedly bad wheat crop in this country. While other grain-exporting countries were but furnishing us with their usual quota of supplies, America was shipping in enormous quantities, paralyzing speculative enterprise, and rendering millers careless of increasing favourably with that of any other dis- was well known that the wretched results of the home crop would necessitate an importation of something like 4,000,000 quarters more than is required in ordinary seasons to meet our requirements that anything like a substantial advance in value took place, but the turning point once arrived at the improvement was steady and lasting. Slight intermediate fluctuations have occurred, but, speaking roughly, the quotations of today show an advance of 10s. per quarter in the value of wheat since the first symptom of a rise was discernible in Septem- TEE FIRST MONTHLY PART FOR 1880 ber last. A combination of strong capitalists is now practically in possession of the bulk of the American surplus, and prices are being forced up on the other side, not only without any corresponding advance in this country, but with a very strange indifference on the part of English buyers to so important a movement. At the present time American quotations are Ss. per quarter above the level of wheat values in London. No doubt s good deal of uncertainty attaches to all peculative movements, and there are those who anticipate a speedy collapse of the one in question, but the fact cannot be overlooked that the position of Ame rica is exceptionally strong, and enables her to embark upon her present venture with unusual chances of ultimate success.
