

A HORRIBLE DEED,
AND A HORRIBLE ENDING OF THE PEB-RETATOR.

Cannibals are familiar with the dreadful story of the Indian with his wife or the Sabbath-breakers who murdered him who a family and ate them. I will be remembered that on being exposed to the public to the remains. He had camped in a hole or cave at the base of the mountains, and the bones of his victims lay scattered about the floor. They had been buried. However, he fingered in the eye of one of his victims, he picked it up, and ate it in the most unnatural manner. "This is my mother!" and so forth. The others, nine in all, had eaten their dinner, and nothing fed him and nothing fed like a wolf. He killed them all night while they were sleeping, and buried the bodies in the snow, cutting them up and boiling them. He was forthwith sentenced to death, and his request to be shot instead of hanged was refused.

The Indian throughout the district were invited to give their view on the case, and they unanimously approved of the sentence. Swift Runner was asked if he would like to see the Indians from the Rocky Mts. on trial.

He said "No." He was sent on the North Saskatchewan because the white men had ruined him, and therefore he didn't think their God would be angry with him.

He was sent to the gallows at 10 o'clock on the morning of the 20th of December he was ordered to prepare for death. The scaffold had been erected just outside the main gate of the fort. It was pitch dark and a blinding fearful snow storm as the condemned man was marched from the lock-up to the gallows. A number of Indians who had hung around the place all night had their feet in front of the gallows, and Swift Runner, who had been the coolest, calmest man in the crowd, stopped and warned them. The execution had been fixed for 7:30 a.m., but it was found that the Indians had used the trap door for kindling wood, and a delay of an hour occurred, during which Swift Runner, with the rope about his neck, sat at one of the fire and partook of a hearty breakfast. The hangman, a half-breed, was very nervous, and when everything was ready, it turned out that he had no straps for pinioning his man. Another long delay ensued. The Indians, who never before saw or heard of death by hanging, were anxious to know if it was a species of torture, and Swift Runner said if it would suit the police he would kill himself in the scaffold and save the hangmen further trouble. It was better cold than below zero. At 9 a.m. the hangman returned with a coil of rope, but was troubled so that the Indians drove him off and bound the prisoner themselves. Then they stood him against the scaffold post and danced a death dance, while Swift Runner laughed, and appeared to look upon the whole business as a good joke. At 9:30 a.m. he demanded more food, and after eating a pound of pemican, mounted the gallows and submitted himself to the executioner, who had recovered his nerve. One of the judges officers attempted to read a prayer, but his voice was drowned by the jeers and groans of the Indians, and Swift Runner gave the hangman the signal. The trap fell, and Swift Runner went down with a fearful force, their being a drop of five feet. He died with a struggle. The body was cut down in an hour and buried in the snow outside the fort. In the afternoon the Indians held a grand feast, rejoicing at being well rid of an accursed village.

Read Carefully.

Samuel Osborne, Springfield, says: I was associated with Dyespepsia for nearly four years, my tongue becoming affected towards the last. I was induced to try the Soda-water, after using three different ones, but I failed, and then I had taken three or four bottles more. I was quite restored to health and strength, and had exponential results. I have since had a very restful time. I have been under the treatment of a number of physicians before, but never received any material aid until I used your remedy.

As Monday, Friday, N.Y., says: I was very much afflicted with Dyespepsia for a long time. Complained, but the physicians Remedy and in a month was as well as I had ever been in my life. I am now in business and wish you to send me three or four bottles.

Wood, Conson, says: I have tried the Remedy for Liver Complaint and Dyespepsia with great success. I have also used the Soda-water, and find that they are as good as any I ever tried.

Henry King, Geneva, N.Y., says: My wife was in a very difficult condition for a long time. We could not find any physician who would attend her, and we received no benefit. She has taken three bottles of the Great Remedy, and is now healthy and well.

John Scott says: Mr. McKenzie, but, this suffered an attack of rheumatism, and was unable to move without help; but after taking a few bottles of the Great Remedy, he is as well as ever. Price of the remedy in pint bottles, $1; Pils, 25 cents a box. Sold by all medicine dealers.

MANGUER & OLD CHICAGO SOAPS, of scrupulous origin and containing fine oil, is easily soluble in water. It is a soap for all purposes, and a permanent care requires but a few applications. The price is reasonable, and is sold at various drug stores, and received no benefit.
