The business men of the country are not averse to an insulvency law, but if a discussion of the Act in Toronto by a number of prominent commercial men can be accepted as an indication, changes in it of a radica! and most important nature are essentially necessary. All the alleged defects in the law could not be summarized within reasonable space, but it is contended that provision to required to enable the creditors of bankrupts to obtain immediate and certain control of To the Editor of the British Whig. their estates; that all sales of assets should be made by public auction when the property is over $200 to value; that all sales should be made by the Amignee and Inspector conjointly; that greater security should be given by the Assignee; that every Assignes should be made to tar his account, and attest the statement of receipts and expenditure under oath ; that the distribution of assets and the discharge of the bankrupt should be kept totally distinct; that the granting of discharges should be vested in a Superior Court judge. We, of course, cannot promise what the next Federal Parliament may do, but it is only untural to expect that the Insolvency Act will receive auther turn by it.

The irregularities in the municipal contest in Toronto, in so far as the election ic St. Jobu's Ward was concerned, have forest demoustrated one fact-that in the selection of returning officers the desire | biped brethren. The Sergeaut-major's to secure the best men is not always predominant, and that wen are appointed at times to discharge important functions without regard to the eternal fitness of things. In the case cited the poll books This sentiment was lustily cheered by all were not properly made out, one was not signed at all, the blanks were not filled in, while the count of the ballots was more than unsatisfactory. In the late Kingston municipal elections some incidents occurred, the parration of which would be laughable were it not that they have a serious side. Suffice it to say that not a dozen out of the whole seventeen returning officers clearly understood their duties, the majority basing been "green hauds," who could not comprehend and interpret the meaning of the election law in a moment, and who were, pany on the house top closed the mentperhaps, not encouraged to do much brain worry when uncertain of having the office a second time. THE MAINE DISPUTE. The proceedings in connection with the Maine State Legislatur - so far have resulted to an advantage to the Republicans which they seem determined to hold if at all possible, and judged by present appearance their success is more than possible. The electoral tricks of our the powers of Municipal Councils, part American cousius, which, in the care of the President, brought about the desired end most charmingly, have failed to "count in" the party representatives who seem to have lost at the polls in the late State struggle. Unfortunately for the Fusionists, who have played a somewhat tion, or for carrying into effect the proshrewd but losing game, the temporal visious of any act of the Legislature, or presers were not backed by powerful for the removal of such officers, etc. Court opinions; and though at first to command of the situation in the late the late Chief Justice Harrison expressly crisis they were removed from authority | states: "The powers conferred by this and now find themselves excluded from section can only be exercised by by-law." the House by a combination of civil and | & nd in the latter part of Note D to sub. military force. This I think is pretty conclutrolled by those to possession of the sive as to the constitutionality of the late public offices. The culminating point was reached on Saturday when both Chambers met, the Fusionists but to adjourn to the afternoon, the Kepublicars to elect their Governor. The certified electoral returns shewed that Davis had received the highest number of registered votes, though not a majority of the whole. His name being submitted to the Senate, in conjunction with that of Bradbury, another candidate for guberpeterial hopor, of course the former was elected Governor. He was at once installed. General Chamberlain resigned Les trust and Davis became Commarder. tu-Culof, and secured the influence which has been used against the Fusionsets, to their atter discompiture.
