The decision of the Montreal City Council, to officially receive Parnell and Dillon with an address of welcome, was not a very enthusiastic one when it had to be carried by the casting vote of the Mayor himself. It is clear the Irish delegates will not evoke any general enthusiasm in favor of themselves or the cause they advocate, because of the prevailing and deepening conviction in the public mind that they are seeking to make political capital out of their country's distress. The feeling is certainly , gaining ground, that it would be every way much better to remit the subscriptions straight to the scene of the distress than to entrust them to the hands the agitators. This assuredly is the view and the determination of many the joutside donors, who want to see the distress alleviated, but do not care to promote any political movement. And many patriotic and benevolent Irish Canadians are of a similar opinion and intention. Parnell has ostensibly abandoped the land crossde in his solicits tions for substantial aid for Irish distress but somehow it cannot be forgotten that this was the primary object of his misnion to America.

THE CORNWALL CONTEST.

The result of the Cornwall election can in no sense be pronounced a reverse for the Liberal party. Mr. Maclenstan, th defeated candidate, came out as an dependent, avowing himself in favour of protection. This was doubtless the source of his weakness and the cause of his defeat. As between himself and Dr. Bergin there was no issue sufficiently distinet on which the electors could political ly divide. The only reason why Reform ers could prefer Maclennan to Bergiu was that by soting for him they could punish mparty perfidy of the doctor, and that the former would be less slavish in supsetting the Government. But they were both Protectionists, and, therefore, it was a sort of toss up choice as to which to wote for. The great question of Revenue third row has been far advanced.

Tariff vs. National Policy did not really enter into the election at all as a dividia issue, since both the candidates were i this matter tarred with the same stick We sincerely believe that Mr. Maclennan owes his non-success to his neutral attitude. He has tried to sit between two stools, and with the proverbial result There was no particular reason why Reformers should rally to his support, while in Dr. Bergin's case there was every in ducement for Tory loyalty to his candidature. Then, too, the contest was very largely of a personal character, and that be this respect the doctor would seem is walking have had the advantage of his opponent. tain Bill to Had Mr. Maciennan came out squarely against Protection, and the party which Hize himsel has espoused it -as Mr. Macdonnell suctouching an censfully did in North Lanark for ex ample-he would have made a muc stouter and more successful fight of it and would in all probability have defeated his opponent. We believe, of course in true independence, in parliament out of it, but not in this miserable trit ming which so often in political matte assumes the independent role. straddling the political fence, so as to in readmess to vault into one party camp or the other as self-interest may be presumed to be subserved thereby, is not that true independence which has the courage of its convictions, and Mr. Maclennan has paid in defeat the penalty of that neutrality with which neither the one side nor the other could entertain a a genuine sympathy. We frankly admit that Dr. Bergin's defeat would have been the severer blow to the Government, but, under the circumstances we have recounted, Mr. Maclennan's defeat is his own affair and not by any means a Liberal

Mr. ex-Mayor Gildersteeve said he felt deeply grateful for the portrait - a kinexpression of their esteem -to be placed among those of other eg Mayors in the City Hall. He certainly felt pleased that they had got it up so quickly. He thought the custom of placing the portraits of ex-Mayors in the City Hall one of the most pleasant of city amenities. It was an incentive to do something worthy of praise and approval. He did not know what would be done with those pictures after a century or two. For his part he would be satisfied that the painting of himself progeny have been fixed up in this way, should remain in the Hall while there was room for it, or until a century or two elapsed, to be then placed on the shelf. Calcutta, Jan. 28.-Intelligence from he porthern portion of the presidency of Bengal states that a considerable force of Hindoos, inhabiting the district of the Naka Hills, raided into the territory of Cashor, laying waste and destroying numerous tes gardens and killing the managers. The onslaught is here believed to have been the result of nothing more serious than native jealousy of the English owners of the tea fields, although certain residents of this city assume to regard it as the result of influences brought to bear by particular malcontents in British Burmah, possibly from the neighborhood of Rangoon.
