MONDAY EVENING, MARCH 8. She will not list her veil; I dimly see a brow sublime
And features grand and pale,
And feel a mighty heart replies
To all my rapture or my sighs.

She is so near her breathing falls On my attentive car. She is so far the twilight star Shine through her mantle clear-Assilent as the grave may be, And yet the soul of melody.

The lotus trembling on her brow Exhales divine perfume; The mystic spleader of her smile Pervades my narrow gloom. The dearth of solitary hours

she answers with a thousand flowers Oppressed with haunting, hindering care
My heart rebels at fate; She stoops to me, and lo! I share Her own imperial state.

I glide beyond my prison bars.

And walk with her the path of stars.

Forever sorrowful in death. Forever glad in birth,
Her face the glory of the skies,
Her steps the bloom of earth—
As Nature's self, the fallen, the free. O Isia, I interpret thee!

INDIAN TROUBLES. MAKE TWAIN AND DAN DE QUILLE EXTER-

MINATE THEM BY FIRING POETRY AND

PROSE AT THEM. It was nearly twenty years ago when Dan De Quille and Mark Twain attempt ed to start a newspaper in Mendocino County. They took type and material of their recently defunct newspaper establishment in San Francisco, and loading the stuff in a big waggon, struck out into the country to retrieve their fortunes. They packed their type just as it stood in the forms, tied up the articles with printers, and packing them closely in boxes vowed to establish a newspaper which would be the leading exponent of politics and history for the Pacific coast, Had not an unfortunate circumstance taken place it is quite evident that the same newspaper which they contemplated founding would have been alive to-day. Their journey over the mountains was utterly uneventful until they reached Simpson's station, a spot well known to old travellers on that route. Here they met a party of emigrants making for Lower California, and the latter had with them a small mountain howitzer which they brought with them across the plains Twain took a great fancy to this gun, and offered $50 for it, with two kegs of steal a wheelbarrow ebery time he gets a powder thrown in. The emigrants were chance. ORGAN, &c., at Pupils' residences and in Churches—$9. Esch the term of TEN glad enough to part with it, as they WEKES. On the next night they camped in a mountain ravine fifteen miles from Simp son's, and after building the usual camp fire fell asleep. About 11 o'clock the horses awakened them by prancing about and the two journalists were led to the conclusion that nothing less than a party of Indians were making arrangements for a night attack. In the clear mounlight they could be distinguished about half a idea of encountering Indiana had never entered the heads of the two fortuneseekers, and they had no arms. Sud denly Twain brightened up, remarking 'The howitzer' 'We've got nothing but powder,' said

'Well powder'll scare 'em, and we'll load her up. The piece was immediately loaded with a good big charge, and the two men felt quite certain that the Indiana, hearing the roar of the gun, would beat an unconditional retreat. The piece was hardy loaded and placed in position when about fifty of the redskins came charging up the ravine. Twain seized a brand from the camp fire, and was about to lay it on the touchhole, when Dan yelled 'Hold on,' as he rammed something into the mouth of the

'Save it as a last resort. Dan pulled the type out of the bo and stuffed column after column into the howitzer's mouth as the savages came charging on. Another charge from the gun and the redakine rolled over and over each other like boulders swept away by a mountain cloud burst. Mark in an ecstacy of delight pulled the American flag out of its effects, nailed it to the

The piece was again loaded, and at this time with a double charge. Mark's leader on Law an Order, the puff of an auction house by Fred McCrelish (as a sicker or, Dan said), Frank Gross' verses on 'The Rebel yell,' an agricultural article by Sam Sebaugh, showing the chemical of Sozopony. As a mouth wash it is properties of corn juice as an educational lever, a maiden poetical effort of Olive Harper, and some verses by Col. Cremy and Frank Soule completed the load.

'That postry, reaching 'em first, will throw 'em into confusion, and my editorial, coming upon the heels of the rest, will end in a lasting demoralization. It will be like the last cavalry charge of the French at the battle of Austerlitz. For the third and last time the faith-ful howitzer belched its typographical compliments to the advancing foe. The havor was terrible. There was a wild yell from a score of savage throats, and then the low groans of the dying floated up the ravine on the gentle wind. The two men walked over the field of slaughter and counted fifty-six aboriginals ing in heaps. The bodies were horribly mutilated with nonparell, long primer, two-line pion, bourgeois, 'cape,' misere dashes, and unsorted pi. 'My leader cooked that man's goose,' said Mark, pointing to a savage with his bowels hanging over the limb of a cedar.

'My geological article did the business for him,' rejoined Dan, nodding carelessly to an indian whose head was ed on Friday to hear explanations to the workingmen from the city members, Currier, Tasse and Mayor McIntosh having been invited to attend. They all stated that they have been unable to induce the Government to give them any work. Allusions to the unredeemed pledges and the National Policy were received with groans and laughter. Cerrier and Tasse scarcely received a hearing, being subject to continued interruptions and twitted with having secured positions in the public service for their family connections. Mr. McIntosh made a really clever speech, and was listened to most attentively. In justifying his conduct as their representative in the Mayor's chair, he said that he had only their interest at heart, and that he was an honest man. The uproar that followed that expression was tremendous, and for some time be was unable to proceed on account of the reference to the printing scandal and the $12,000. He advised them to seek homes the North West or along the line of the Pacific Railroad, as there was not much chance for things improving in the settled portions of the country. Several workingmen addressed the crowd, numbering about four hundred, and references to the failure of the National Policy were cheered to the echo. The Government was strongly condemned for not having fulfilled their pledges to the work-greatest enthusiasm prevailing when the apeakers assailed Sir John Macdonald and the Tory party.
