He was the son of a Michigan farmer, and was crippled for life when 17 years of age. In his bed-ridden condition he developed a liking for books and an ambition for a library. He left his bed, and after many before that on which the steamer would trials found himself in the City of Cincinnati making 12 shillings a week in a tobacco factory, but he was soon laid saids with the small-pox. On recovery he transferred his attentions from tobacco to newspapers, and for the last ten years the cripple and his papers have been well known in the streets of Cincinnati. had a little money saved at the end of each day's work, and as he was not oc ould not but remark the extreme pallor cupied the whole of the day, he found deshe rose from the dejected attitude in light in reading books of his own purchasing. Keeping a sharp eye for bargains, he gradually accumulated hundreds of volumes-not of worthless publications, so the librarian who examined them says, but books of standard value. In addition to his library he had saved several hondred dollars in money, a fund intended for his support in his old age. He was induced to invest in a worthless enterprise, lost his money, and with a heavy heart returned to his old place as a newsboy. Mis home, a miserable rookery, full of tenants, he considered very anasie for a library, and having given up all hope of adding to it, he sent a note to the city librarian the other day stating that he wished to present the whole to the library to the city. The King Library saw that she was evidently collecting. of Cincinnati will be a monument to the her thoughts, and I waited in silence for name of its founder, and perhaps an incen-

the days of Barold, the last of the Saxon Constipation frequently results from dyspepsia, and dyspepsia often causes constipation. Either way, the system becomes and remains clogged. Colds are also productive of costiveness, as Becom says, "Of cold the property is to condense and constipate." There are thousands of our people whose normal condition is costiveness. They resort to drastic medicines, when the infliction becomes unbearable, and heavily purge their bowels, what you would say-that poring over merely to find frequent recourse to these old legends my imagination has be-come diseased. It is not so. I cannot Dr. Herrick's Sugar Coated Pills without undue discharges and weakening consequences. Their composition is the result of an experience of more than a quarter of a century, and their history is a continued series of triumpha over what was believed to be chronic bilious-
