----Leech Breeding.

Certain speculators, we learn, "have made artificial swamps on the banks of the Garonne, and filled the awamps with leeches. 'To be profitable these leeches must multiply themsalves by millions; to do thus they must be liberally supplied with food; to thus supply them the Bordelais speculators buy up all the old and worn-out horses of the Province, and drive or drag these horses into the swamps, which are sub-divided by wooden The Public WIII Take Noticecompartments, so placed that when these unhappy animals have been forced into the mud there is no escape for them. The leeches fasten on there instantly by thousands. The horse is in a few moments black with erawling creatures; the bloodauckers fix themselves most of all on the Judge Brown has declared its drawings open wounds and gulls that these poor horses have incurred in their many years of service." The frantic terror of the poor horses is described, as, bleeding from all their most sensitive parts, they try vainly to shake of the leeches, but are at last sucked down into the noxious alime and seen no more. Nearly 20,000 horses aged, infirm, weak from overwork, hanger, and fatigue-are said to be sacrificed annually in this way at Bordeaux. "Ouida" judges the aconies of the horses will not be a sufficient reason to check the berbaruses of greedy speculators, but she hopes that an argument which may be heard is that leeches nourished on agonizing, and often diseased horses, are very likely to convey ulcers, inflammations, and scrofulous maladies into the human system, and she states, on the authority of doctors of eminence, that such diseases do frequently follow the application of leeches -In-
