CITY AND VICINITY

☞ GOLD in New York at 3 o'clock 109¾

THE LATE DR. ROSE.—The body of this lamented gentleman arrived to-day from Sackett's Harbor, and funeral announcement is made for Thursday.

THE HOUSE OF INDUSTRY.—It is not very creditable to the Directors of the House of Industry that only two of their number have this year made their appointed visits to the House with any regularity. Some have not visited it at all. Perhaps they were conscious of doing their duty in paying $4 subscription.

MUD.—Did ever such mud exist in Kingston as is now seen not on Princess Street alone, but on every street? It would puzzle all those irresponsible old individuals, the oldest inhabitants, to answer except in the negative. It is plain that the roadways have been run down and require renewing.

THE DUNKIN BY-LAW.—The petitions were not presented at the City Council last evening. The clergymen found that his Lordship Bishop O'Brien was absent from the city and could not be seen in time to secure his signature and so they withheld their memorial. The people's petition, therefore awaited the completion of the clergymen's.

THE HOSPITALITIES.—The Kingston & Pembroke Railway is about to make a handsome acknowledgement of the generosity of the City Council, as evinced by its $318,000 bonus, and the courtesy of the County Council, in gently submitting to the legal claim upon its generosity in a similar direction, by inviting both bodies to a trip and dinner at Sharbot Lake.

REGISTER YOUR PARTNERSHIPS.—A couple of men are entertaining complaints at London against firms whose partnerships have not been registered. The penalty for neglect to observe the law is $200, half of which goes to the informer. Merchants here also had better put themselves in a position to defy the informers, for delays are dangerous so long as examples are contagious. Informers may crop up in Kingston.

DUFFERIN STREET.—Last night at the City Council a complaint was made that the name of Montreal street was out of date and very common place any way. The suggesting of substituting "Dufferin street" is a capital one, and popularly received, since above and below it in the same line are streets of names equally prominent and memorable—Wellington, Bagot, Sydenham and Barrie. The change will doubtless be made at next Council meeting.

BIG MARKET.—On Saturday, despite the rain, Kingston produced such a market as only Kingston can produce in Ontario. Brockville boasts of having had 100 waggons on its square upon that day, and we are left to imagine what would it say to over 300? The market here was a splendid one for the season, the poultry, beef, mutton and game being as fine as were ever seen here at any time. The first two meals were very cheap, turkeys of 12 or 13 lbs. being bought at 5c. per lb., and beef by the quarter as low as 2½ or 3c. per lb.

NEW SETTLERS.—Yesterday we learn that six families of Americans, from Clayton, have proceeded to the rear of the county, and propose settling in the township of Palmerston. The men are all mechanics, but we presume they will engage in farming in their new home. This immigration is certainly due to the building of the railroad and the developments which it is bringing about. These are not the first persons who have been induced to become residents of Frontenac on its account, and they will not be the last. The new arrivals enter upon the new life with cheering prospects.

F.G. Widdows and 'The Ways of Rome.'

The above gentleman lectured in Victoria Hall last night to a large audience, and occupied three hours. He opened his lecture by giving some instrumental music on the organ and singing a piece, but having a heavy cold he "cut this part short." The lecturer first spoke of the Ways of Rome—Rome as it was now, and Rome at the time of the Cæsars—comparing the two in such a way as to leave the hearer without a doubt. He spoke of the number of churches in existence in Rome, there being no less than 365, and gave a very vivid description of Church of St. Peter's, supposed to be the finest church in the world. He referred to a great many usages of the Church, and what the people had to undergo. He also gave a description of the creation of a Pope, and how it took the 1800 years to find out Infallibility. The deceptions practiced by the Priests were referred to at some length. At frequent intervals throughout the lecture loud applause was given. Mr. Widdows will give another lecture in the same place on Thursday evening, on "Monkish Impositions, Ancient and Modern." The proceeds of the lecture were something over $100, and belong to the P.M. Church.

"AT HOME."—London Temperance League of the Cross.—On the 18th inst. at the Italian Church, Hatto Garden, the Rev. Father Stafford (who is known as the Temperance Apostle of Canada) address a large meeting of the members and friends of the above League. He said that the only safe remedy against the evil of drunkenness all over the world was the renouncement totally of all intoxicating drink. In America the bishops and the whole hierarchy were waging a war of extermination against the drunkenness which was ruining society. The American clergy never thought now of recommending what they did some time ago, namely "moderation." The only remedy now given by them was to abstain altogether and this they found effectual. Father Stafford hoped that that good example would be followed in England. During the week that he stayed in the metropolis Father Stafford lectured in various places on the temperance question and he was listened to by large meetings at Deptford, Tower Hall, Commercial road, &c.—Liverpool Catholic Times.

The Times, from which we have for weeks past extracted accounts of Father Stafford's meetings, also reports his addresses before the League at Isleworth, Middlesex, and at Liverpool.

WIND VANES.

—Happy Col. Wagner's date for the City Hall is December 1st.

—Canadian vessels are on their last trip. The captains report that the granaries at the lake ports are cleanly swept.

—Mr. Downing is again being spoken of for Aldermanic honors in Victoria Ward.

—The reporters of the WHIG and News are attending the inquest proceedings at Sharbot Lake.

—Mr. Woods' name is mentioned for Aldermanic honors. All hands will be up for that.

—The counterfeit Vs. of the B. N. A. Bank are still turning up weekly over the country.

—Geese will be geese. A flock of 21 wild ones were seen on Amherst Island Saturday, though it is a month late for them, and they should be down South.

—"Hotel travel is increasing." The Bothwell election has evidently revived free trade in circumlocution.

—Belleville street cars do well and pay well. Hurry ours up, Messrs. Directors.

—"A True Reformer's Letter" upon the special prayer of the Y. M. C. A. for the new club was received too late for insertion to-day.

—We have received the November number of the "Church Record," published at the Religious Society Offices in Dublin. It rides a high Protestant horse.

—Prescott has a Charity Ball on hand for the 5th of December. Every merchant in the place is now declaring himself poor.

—This is a delightful autumn day, and yet on November 21st of last year there was ice, snow, skating and sleighing, buffalo robes, moonlight and girls.

—Illegal weights and measures are being seized by the Inspector in Ottawa by the waggon load. After December 1st look out for a good haul in Kingston also.

—Since the Bothwell election a good many irritable newspaper men have been looking round after the individual who asserted that "figures won't lie." They carry 1877 clubs with them. Subscribe now.

—The Belleville Ontario is strikingly original. In commenting on a wedding, it says that the "celebration of this affair will unite two young hearts." The union forever. If it should sever two young hearts, now, it would be horrible to contemplate.

—The Intelligencer trys to put on nautical airs on the banks of a comparative mill pond, and remarks that it begins to look cold and cheerless about the wharves and sailors hug forecastle stoves as fondly as though they were black-eyed Susans.

—The County Council of Prince Edward, at the June session, refused to make any provisions for the support of the Picton High School, and the institution is in immediate prospect of a fall. But for the power of the law, the Kingston Collegiate Institute would be in like danger financially.

—There is a general cry of "shame" over the personalities in the City Council last night. At the least of these "amenities" we were most surprised. Gentlemen who have a professional character to sustain should be loath to exchange personalities for public criticism with members of their own Alma Mater. We are sure it would not have been done upon reflection.

—The scientific man of the News contends that rubber hose is carelessly laid when it is not set down straight. What the scientific man knows about hose will never make a standard book. If rubber hose is laid straight it is almost sure to burst, as under a 200 lb. pressure it has been known here to contract four feet in eighty feet. Without a surplus in the bends to draw upon, the hose would tighten so hard as to burst.

OUR VOCALISTS ABROAD.

Mr. Rachab Tandy is winning fresh fame and honors in Philadelphia, whither he was attracted by the Centennial show, and where his good name had preceded him. The Philadelphia Press of Saturday says:—

"Gough, the inimitable, last evening closed an exceptionally brilliant season of the 'Star Course' at the Academy of Music, and as usual was greeted by a large assemblage of delighted auditors. The entertainment was preluded by a musical programme, in which Mr. Rachab Tandy, the famous Canadian tenor, sang the ever-popular melody, "Come into the Garden, Maud." Mr. Tandy has a rich, full, well-cultivated voice, and rendered the selection with an effect which called forth such prolonged applause that he was obliged to return to the stage, and as an encore sang Alfred Pease's pretty ballad, "She Will Say Aye."

This is a continuation of a long line of compliments from the American press, and very acceptable too, as the Press is of high standing. The academy is the largest opera house in the city. Mr. Tandy also appeared twice at Mark Twain's lecture on Tuesday last, when another audience of 4,000 received him enthusiastically. He also sang at a concert in the opening of the Y.M.C.A. building, the finest of its class on the continent, and having a double gallaried concert room capable of seating two thousand people.

LECTURE.—Last evening the Rev. Mr. Joliffe's address before the Y.M.C.A.—"Doing the Master's Work," was heard by a full audience with great pleasure. The material was most excellent, and added to Mr. Joliffe's good repute here. We have not room for a fuller report to-day.

COLLECTORS for the Midland Central Fair who have not made their returns are requested to do so at once, in order that the books may be made up.

The Day Draws Near,

When the grandest distribution of enormous prizes to take place that this country has ever witnessed. Are you ready with your tickets? If not, now is your time. Procrastinate no longer, or you may find on application that they have all been sold. Delays are dangerous. The 30th of November, when 11,150 grand gifts are to be distributed by the Kentucky Cash Distribution Company, at Frankfort, Ky., ranging from $100,000 down to $50,000, $25,000, rapidly approaches. The rush for tickets is immense. Be ye all ready.

THE RECENT MURDER

WHO STRUCK THE BLOW?

Scene of the Tragedy at Sharbot Lake.

THE LATEST PARTICULARS.

Sharbot Lake, Nov. 20.

The feeling here may rightly be termed intense, respecting the recent murder of Matthew Garratt. We are informed, and we are inclined to believe the assertion, that had the man who struck the fatal blow been known to the many friends of the deceased, lynch-law would probably have followed the felony, and the lifeless body would probably have now been dangling from some tree limb. The feeling of sympathy for the deceased's family is very strong. The expressions of hatred against the murderer are exceedingly bitter. The WHIG's representative left the city with the anticipation of a busy scene before him, but so far the intervening time has been a season of comparative quiet and inactivity. Just as the train was leaving the city we learned that the authorities has decided not to reconvey the prisoners back to this place, it as much as there was but little hope of utilizing time this evening and making any headway with the inquest; but Coroner Shaw accompanied your representative and on his arrival here had a jury empanelled for to-morrow evening, when the enquiry will be commenced, and very probably finished; and here we must remark that owing to some misunderstanding a couple of Coroners started for the scene of the murder. Dr. Smith had been telegraphed to from the city, requesting him to take passage for Sharbot Lake this evening, and if possible to summon and procure the attendance of Coroner Cowdy, of Harrowsmith, but no answer being received it was deemed expedient to solicit the service of Mr. Shaw. Fancy the embarrassment experienced at Harrowsmith when Coroner Cowdy stepped aboard the train, bound on the same mission and for the same place as Mr. Shaw. Explanations followed and Mr. Cowdy good naturedly retired, while Mr. Shaw proceeded to his destination. The passage was made under tolerably pleasant circumstances considering the solemn errand on which some of us were engaged. We reached our tower of rest about 8 o'clock, and found the occupants of the place still discussing the event of Saturday night. A visit to the home of the deceased brought us in sorrow with much sorrow and sadness. In one room rested the corpse of the murdered man, very natural in expression, and having a countenance the index of the respectability for which he has been generally respected. Quite near stood the bereaved widow, weeping piteously, and if her heart would break, while around her were collected her offspring, sharing her anguish. Our stay here was short, for the presence of each stranger or friend and each interrogation seemed to add to the poor woman's heart-aches.

While the story of the crime as detailed in the WHIG of yesterday is correct, so far as relates to the man's death from a wound on the back of the head, caused by a blunt instrument which produced concussion of the brain, the attending circumstances have been changed in our opinion since we have made careful inquiry among those who seem to be the best informed on the subject. The four young men now in custody come here about four weeks ago, hailing last from Lachine. They were employed by one Mc Donald, who holds the contract for building a mile section of the K. & P. RR. under Col. Flower. Notwithstanding their humility when last we saw them, and their protestations of innocence, they have been looked upon out here as desperate characters—at least men not to be trusted too much when under temptations to gratify selfish interests. They were only once in the house of Garratt before the occurrence of the murder—the night of their arrival from Lachine. In the meantime they had been out some seven miles on the road and unseen until Saturday, when, subsequent to receiving their pay, they were indulging in a protracted spree. They had been engaged in more than one quarrel during the day, and the black eye and scratched cheeks of Peter Smith are the results of their bearer having come in contact with men of greater pugilistic ability. During Saturday they had "run" against a chap named Ramage, and, if we recollect aright, had not only some words with Smith, but exchanged a few blows with him. At any rate he was in the deceased's house when the prisoners entered it and ordered supper. They were very kindly waited upon by Mrs. Garratt and her daughter, but they were drunken and noisy and disorderly. They used filthy language, which Ramage objected to, and perhaps the men had in view the old rumpus in the earlier part of the day, and only desired a chance to get even with Ramage, or it may be that they were spoiling for a fight under any circumstances, but Peter Smith shewed his high temper by breaking a tea cup on the table, and eventually becoming involved in a hand to hand encounter with Ramage. By this time all seemed to have ended their supper (possibly before some of them would have desired but for the fight) and presently Mr. Garratt entered. He at once endeavoured to quell the disturbance. They were ordered out, and two of them got outside, one of them being assisted in his exist by Garratt, but in the wrangle he was pulled out, and wounded. How that wound was inflicted, no one can possibly say. Various conjectures are made, the most reasonable of which is that he was struck with an iron wood stick which had been driven in a hole in one of the timbers of the log cabin, and which was used as a pin on which to hang fish nets, &c. He was discovered by his daughter lying on his face and partly on the left side, both hands out, stretched, insensible. All four prisoners of course are concerned alike and held equally culpable for the present, but the consequences of the tragedy really rest (so far as the evidence before us goes) upon Jaides Smith and Patrick Dougherty, the two men who were connected with the conflict with Mr. Garrett outside. He and Smith at the time Garrett was injured, was pummelling each other on the floor, and Foy was paying Miss Garratt for the suppers of all four, some of his companions having refused payment for their meals. One of them left his cap behind him. The wounded man was insensible from the time he received the blow until his death, and he spoke but a couple of unintelligible words. His death took place about eighteen hours after the fatal fight. We should state that a few hold the theory that the sudden and unfortunate demise of Garratt is the result of an accident, for the reason that close by where the deceased was picked up a box, bound with iron hoop was found, and it is argued by some that the man may have received a shove and fallen on this box, the weight of his head being of a nature that would be likely to be made by the edge of such a thing. This theory is not favored, however, by the majority of those here. We examined the stick which is believed to have dealt Garratt's death blow. It is formidable in appearance, and perhaps seems more so since it forms a part of this fearful case. Dr. Kilbert, residing a few miles further back, was called in early on Sunday morning, but could render no medical relief; and Dr. Smith of Harrowsmith was also summoned, a locomotive being specially sent for him, but when he reached the house of Mr. Garratt life had flown. To-morrow an autopsy will be held, and in the evening, promptly on the arrival of the train from the city with the prisoners, the inquest will be proceeded with in the hotel of Mr. Shibley. To Col. Flower much credit is due for the part he took in having the prisoners placed in custody. The Col. and indeed all the residents of this place want to see no one wrongfully accused or punished, but they feel that a foul murder has been committed and that the interests of justice demand that its perpetrators should not go unpunished. There are about 600 R.R. navies working on the road at the present time, but this is the first occasion on which crime has placed a leading hand.

FENIAN RAIDS.

What the Fuss Amounts To.

The Syracuse (N.Y.,) Standard is surprised to learn that movements of troops have been made in Canada with a view to warding off Fenian attacks and remarks that: "As scarcely a syllable has been heard in "that" section about Fenianism, and its former hair-brained advocates are quiet, the idea of a Fenian raid that would require any movement of British troops to ward off the blow seems like a ridiculous absurdity." And such a movement would indeed be ridiculous absurdity. From the first we have treated the Fenian rumors as so much twaddle, and pre cated them in a far less serious light than very many of our contemporaries. The warriors disguised as Orangians turn out to be rebellious school boys, and the concealed cannon and gun boxes to be myths, so that another is added to the farcical roll of Fenian bug-a-boos. The action of the militia authorities has not justified any feeling of alarm or furnished ground for reports of movements of troops. As we understand it from inside sources, the steps taken have been merely cautionary. A confidential general order was issued to the various district staffs, stating that Fenian reports were again rife, and that it was desirable to be prepared for any possible contingency; therefore commanders of corps were required to report the actual strength they could depend upon in a sudden call, and to have their equipments put in good order. The secrecy of this circular was divulged by officers who are fond of airing their military spirit when an enemy is at a safe distance; and first the Leader, and then the Toronto and Provincial press seriously announced that the volunteers were suddenly made ready for immediate marching orders. This is the history of the annual Fenian scare, and it is worthy of its predecessors.

New Streets.

The City Council last evening passed a by-law providing all legal measures for the opening of the proposed new streets, making a clean sweep. All that has been applied for has been granted, and though all will not be undertaken this year or even next year, the city will soon begin to feel the effects of this newest evidence of the liberal, enterprising spirit which is rapidly bearing away from us the title of "Sleepy Old Kingston." Any one of the extensions is a public convenience and improvement that will immediately make itself felt. All parties are thus convinced, at length, since Aldermen who at first fought this street by-law with every weapon of policy and delay, were last night the most eager and enthusiastic in its behalf. Public opinion has in this instance asserted itself handsomely.

We do not imagine that it is intended to open Sydenham street through for years at least. It is a work requiring an expenditure varying in estimates from $16,000 to $30,000, and interfering with two public institutions. Several votes were given in that behalf, however, to allay any sectional feeling, as each scheme had its favourites, and to get a portion passed it was necessary to pass all. There are many steps to be taken before the streets are actually opened; and due notice will be given of any contemplated disturbing of properties.

It is undoubted that Kingston has advanced twenty years in appearances in 1876, and there is almost as bright a prospect already for 1877.

CORRECT.—A modest woman in Hamilton claims $1,000 from a Dundas saloon keeper for furnishing liquor to her husband, after the service of a notice not to do so. If the husband is as worthless as the fellows on this side whom the poor women try to reform, a dollar would be a pretty high figure for them.—Palladium.

CONSUMPTION.—There is no disease so common, and so baffling to Physicians, in the world, as this, yet it nearly always starts from a neglected cold, when you have a cough as you value your life, stop it at once, by using WINGATE'S PULMONIC TROCHES.

A hard lump on the foot of a valuable Morgan colt was removed by Giles' Liniment Iodide of Ammonia. D.L. EVANS, 380 and 562, Broadway, N.Y.

THE Grand Central Hotel, New York, leads in the popular demand for low prices. It has reduced its rates from $4, to $2.50 and $3.00 per day.

EPPS'S COCOA.—Some time since, in a series of articles in these columns upon food, we spoke in terms of unqualified praise of Messrs Epps & Co's "Prepared Cocoa." The opinion we then expressed as to its purity and nutritious qualities has been fully endorsed by the public, as shown in its increased and steadily increasing consumption. We believe that Messrs. Epps's manufactories are now the largest of the kind in the three kingdoms, and the total quantity of "Prepared Cocoa" consumed at the present time approaches four millions of pounds annually. This result is not surprising. The delicate properties of native cocoa are well known, but in the form prepared by Messrs. Epps they are rendered additionally valuable, both on account of their increased nutritive power and digestible character. We rejoice to see the high opinion we originally held so have been so generally confirmed, and we again congratulate Messrs. Epps on the sound and valuable addition they have made to our not over lengthy list of dietetic foods.—Civil Service Gazette.
