CITY AND VICINITY

☞ GOLD in New York at 3 o'clock 105

A GOOD supply of oysters in bulk and tins have arrived to-day per express for W. W. Rideout.

TO-NIGHT.—This evening the entertainment will be given in the Baptist Church. It is in the interest of the Library Fund, and it is hoped the results will be gratifying and satisfactory.

FARMERS' VOTES.—As a plea in favor of the Farmers' Sons' Franchise Bill, it is said the Income Franchise Act gave seventy new votes to the city of Kingston, and less than five to the whole county of Frontenac.

INLAND REVENUE.—The returns for the past month are as follows: Duties collected on spirits, $9,412.21; on tobacco, $5,080.10; on malt, $160,00; on licenses, $325.00; from all other sources, $13.97; total, $11,991.23.

THE ROADS.—The travelling was pretty bad before the thaw; now its worse. Pitch holes to right, pitch holes to the left, and pitchholes in front and rear, everywhere you go, flanked, too, by the evidences of very many upsets.

TEA-MEETING.—This evening, Wesley Church, Middle Road, Pittsburg, will have their annual tea-meeting, which promises to be a pleasant affair. The choir of the Queen Street Church will supply the music. The chair will be occupied by Mr. B.M. Britton.

ELECTION MEETING.—The electoral canvass of the County may be said to have been fairly entered upon. Meetings are being arranged, and Monday, nomination day, will be the opening of a campaign, which, perhaps, has never been excelled or equalled in the political history of the County of Frontenac.

NOT WILLIAM.—A letter has been received from Belleville stating that the man who was shot in the recent Grand Trunk strike at that place was not our own William McLaughlin but a James McLoughlin, a Scotchman and a stranger in the country. William has been needlessly and innocently whipped in this case.

OFFICIAL VISIT.—Last evening R. E. Companion Somerville, of Ottawa, Grand Superintendent of the district, visited Cataraqui Chapter, R.A.M., at the Masonic Hall, and highly approved of its working and the state of its books. There was a large attendance of the brethren of this chapter and that of Ancient Frontenac, which the R. E. Superintendent visited last summer.

HOUSE NUMBERING.—The suggestion of the Mayor, as to the system of house numbering, we should like to see taking definite shape. The city assessors must visit every part of the city, and must make a record of every building and every plot of land, and no men have better opportunities for doing the service. We should like to hear of the Mayor's proposition being carried into effect.

THEFT.—On Friday night two boys, about sixteen years of age, hailing from Kingston, entered Rose & Fralick's store, Napanee, took an overcoat therefrom, and hid it behind the flour mill. They were observed, and information having been conveyed to the proprietors, the goods were recovered, and the culprits allowed to go upon promises of future good behaviour. They also committed other petty thefts in town.

VENNOR'S ALMANAC.—Owing to the actual demand for Vennor's almanac, the publication has reached its seventeenth thousand, and is still very much sought after. Mr. Vennor has achieved more than a Provincial fame for his weather predictions. Mr. Vennor, in succeding numbers, expects to utilize to some extent the observations of many persons in different parts of the country, who are noting the change of weather and comparing them with his predictions.

CANADIAN MUSIC.—Mr. J.C. Bonner, Bandmaster of the efficient Artillery Band of Ottawa, is benefitting the limited stock of Canadian music by preparing two new songs for publication, a service which he is well able to discharge. The pieces are taken from Sangster's, and will be as distinctly and devotedly Canadian as his first published song "God Bless the Dominion." One of the new songs will be No. 2 of the Canadian series; the other a pretty ballad "Nellie of the Glen." The songs will be published at one time in first class style, and at a cost of 35 cents each. As soon as the songs arrive, we will call upon the citizens of Kingston to show their interest in their native poet.

TOO MUCH AUTHORITY.—Last evening, as a gentleman of business and good position in the city, was standing outside of a door where a respectable citizen was drawing his last breath, he was rudely shoved by one of two policemen who came along, and told to move on or he would be "jerked down" to the cells. He replied to such ruffianly treatment, by stating that he merely stopped while he asked a friend, who had come out of the house, how the patient was. The policeman bullied worse than ever, though asked to be quiet, and mortified exceedingly the citizen whom he wantonly attacked. If policemen are to take such high-handed use of their power, the citizens may begin to provide themselves with the proper means for their protection.

MEMORIAL.—Petitions are in circulation for signature by the ratepayers, asking that the Council shall have the number of licenses for the sale of liquor during the ensuing year reduced to the smallest number possible; that the accommodation of taverns be increased; that the tavern licenses be reduced to 25, the shop licenses to 15 and the fee of the same be $200; to oblige the holders of shop licenses to confine the business of shops soleiy and exclusively to the selling of liquor, or to impose such restrictions upon the mode of carrying on such traffic as shall absolutely prevent its being kept for sale in any shop where groceries or other goods are retailed. A strong memorial will be presented, so that in all probability the Council will grant the prayer thereof.

WIND WAFTS.

—The roads are in a fearful condition.

—Opposition to high gas bills is manifested all over the country, as well as in this city.

—The sleighing portion of our citizens have had a long lease of their favorite pleasure.

—Capt. Somerville, the Grand Superintendent of the Royal Arch Masons, visited Cataraqui Lodge last evening.

—The market tolls of Napanee for this year sold for $900, being $80 less than last year's price.

—Johnny Ward, late of Herndon's Opera House, is enjoying his "cozy cup of tay" in Belleville.

—The Belleville Ontario says society could not exist without bank clerks, and to persecute them is to conspire against the safety of the realm. Poor Barber!

—Ladies are still supposed to be possessed of spines, for the fashion articles say that "waists now descend below the spine."

—The literary libertine of the Hamilton Spectator will entertain and be entertained by the Belleville people to-morrow.

—Dr. Yates is continuing his practice in spite of his late severe injury, which is healing satisfactorily.

—The little dash of rain yesterday was quickly succeeded by frost again. Vennor has let up a leetle on that thaw business.

—The Royal College memorial to the Governor General for his protest against the Imperial order excluding Canadian surgeons from Allan ships has been anticipated by His Excellency's action of his own free will.

"Belford's Magazine."

In the publication of Belford's Magazine we have a Canadian publication whose excellent qualities are all that the lover of current literature can desire, containing, as it does, matters of romance, drama, art and poetry. To amalgamate such a variety of attractions the publishers are required to use unusual means, but their efforts, we are given to hope, will be supported and amply repaid. Among the contents we may mention: 'What He Cost Her' (continued from the last), 'Ruse D'Amour,' 'Temperance by Act of Parliament,' 'Evenings in the Library,' 'Mr. Beecher,' 'Harold' (Tennyson's last), 'Literary Men and their Manners,' 'Nicholas Minturn,' 'Trophies of the Time,' &c. The number is altogether a very interesting one and worthy of extensive encouragement. The publishers want an agent in every town and village in the Dominion to take subscriptions and will pay a liberal commission. The work is purely national and very popular, and will make a profitable investment for canvassers. Belford Bros., Toronto.

FERGUSON VS. CITY.—This was an action brought by the heirs and devisees of the late John Haslip, to recover part of the property known as the House of Industry, including the house thereon. The plaintiff claimed that the Sheriff's sale, under which the defendants claimed, was inualid. The case was tried at the Chancery sitting in October last, and Vice-Chancellor Blake delivered judgment in Toronto in favour of defendant. The Vice-Chancellor held that the plaintiff had failed to invalidate the sale. This is the case which contradictory reports were recently printed inted in the Toronto papers, and of which Mr. Agnew received authentic information this morning.

BUSINESS CHANGE.—The business so long conducted by Mrs. Anglin has been transferred tranferred to her son, Mr. J.T. Anglin, but Mrs. Anglim will still be connected with the establishment, with which she has been so popularly identified. In assuming the management of the business Mr. Anglin has much to commend him. His knowledge of the requirements of the fashionable public and his taste are such as to merit a continuance of the support so heartily accorded to his predecessor. He is about to make many valuable and attractive additions to his stock.

A SLUR.—In the debate on the second reading of the license law amendment bill, complaint was made that the temperance men had not rendered adequate assistance in carrying out the law. This is an old complaint, and one of mighty little consequence. We believe with an exchange, in noting the same point, that the law should be made complete enough to contain provision for its own enforcement.

FIRE EXTINGUISHER.—To-day a pneumatic fire extinguisher was exhibited upon the market square. A bonfire was lighted, and when the fire was well ahead the water was applied. It is something after the Babkock extinguishes, but instead of chemicals it is charged with air, and throws a small but very effective stream. The test was witnessed by the Fire, Water and Gas Committee.

BISHOP O'BRIEN'S LECTURE AT PRESCOTT.—A private despatch from Prescott informs us that the proceeds of Bishop O'Brien's lecture at Prescott, on Sunday evening, amounted to $125 and his collection to $475, in all $500.—News.

DIED IN GAOL.—Another inmate of the gaol has entered the vale of death—Michael McKennag, who was committed about two weeks ago, a lunatic, requiring to be guarded, and in need of medical attendance. Cause of death, disease of the brain. Coroner Barker held an inquest to day.

PROBABILITIES for the next 24 hours: For the lower lake region and St. Lawrence—Moderate, southerly to westerly winds, cloudy to fair and continued mild weather.

GONE TO TORONTO.—Mutchmore, the Brewers' Mills farmer who was injured in an assault committed upon him by one Beaupre, has been removed, a lunatic, from the gaol to the Toronto Asylum.

VITAL STATISTICS.—The City Registrar makes the following return of the vital statistics for January: Births, 10; Marriages, 8; and Deaths, 10.

CUSTOMS.—The collections for the past month are: Import duties, $9,964.51; exports, $24,333.

METHODIST MISSIONS.

Childrens' Meeting in Sydenham Street Church.

Last evening the third meeting of the missionary series was held in the Sydenham Street Church. The body of the Church was filled with the children; on the sides were the parents and friends, and a considerable number were in the gallery. The chair was occupied by Mr. Joseph Clark. Around him were Revs. Messrs. Allen and Elliott, and the Revs. Messrs. Leroy Hooker and E. R. Young, members of the deputation, with Doctor Skinner. Mrs. Tandy presided at the organ. Rev. Mr. Elliott opened the meeting with the hymn "Only an armor-bearer," which was sung with good effect by the children. After prayer the Chairman stated that this was the children's meeting, and he felt part of them, because he felt he never would be too old to go to Sabbath School, and that they were part of the great Missionary Society. But he was not going to occupy their time with a speech, as they had all come to hear Mr. Young. After singing "Rescue the perishing," Rev. Mr. Allen said he was pleased with the services. They were the best meetings of the kind he had ever attended, and this was the most important of them all, because before him were those who would be the men and women of the future. He hoped they would pay attention. The best scholars do not pay attention sometimes. He was once a teacher of a class of boys; they were indifferent to religion. One boy in particular upon whom he wanted to make an impression, appeared to be doing so, and after he had been talking seriously and, as he thought, effectively, the boy looked up in his face and said very innocently: "Do you think them girls will fall over the gallery?" They were engaged in a grand work, helping on the Saviour's Kingdom, working for God, taking part with angels in raising a fallen world; and as it has been said if $1.00 will send the gospel to one heathen for a year should we not labour to do all we can.

After singing "Come to the Saviour," Rev. ReRoy Hooker followed. He said the impressions made on his mind were various. The singing was good, and he considered this meeting the most important of the week. There was a rich man who coveted a piece of ground. He tried to buy it but failed. Then he tried to rent it to raise one crop. He planted what would produce evil. So is Satan trying to plant in these young minds sin, ruin and death; but they are getting ahead of him. He saw signs of growing interest in mission and in every good work by those who are to be the future men and women of the church. And whatever they did let them do it cheerfully. There was a good old man living in one of the Eastern States who had to travel to one of the Western States on business. This was before the days of steamboats, so he started off on horseback. One day he was overtaken by a thunder storm, and he put up for shelter at the first house he came to. There was no one in when he arrived, but shortly the woman came in; he talked religion to her, and he found her perfectly ignorant of God and religion. She knew nothing of religion—a regular heathen. She was terested in what he said, and he thought he ought to leave her the price of a Bible, but he had only brought enough money to pay his way, and he was afraid of having enough; but his faith got the better of his fears, and he left the price of the Bible and proceeded on his journey. And what is singular, wherever he stopped the people would take nothing for his keep. There wery few inns, and travellers had to seek at farmers' houses. Some time afterwards he heard that the Bible had not only been the means of the conversion of that woman and her family, but also of a great revival in that place. A little boy once entered a church where they were holding a missionary meeting, and he was so impressed with what was said that he gave fifty cents, all that he had, to the collection. When he went home he told his father, at the same asking him for some more money. His father told him to take care of his money or he would punish him, and gave him fifty cents. The boy laughed at this, and his father wanted to know the reason. He told him the missionary had said that God would pay back all given to the Lord, and he was astonished to see it answered so soon.

After singing "What a friend we have in Jesus," the Rev. E. Young addressed them. He was glad to meet Mr. Elliott and Mr. Allen. He remembered Mr. Allen before he entered the ministry. He was glad he had entered upon the work, glad to meet the children, and agreed with what Mr Hooker had. He then asked if they knew why the Red men were called Indians? They received the name at the time Columbus discovered America. They would like to know what the Indians think of their origin. He asked some of them, and one told him that the Great Spirit first got a piece of white chalk and formed a man out of it, but he was not pleased with it, as it would soon get dirty, so he sent it across the ocean where the white men live. He then got a piece of coal, but he found that was too black, so he shoved it away down under the sun. He then got some sand stone, and when he had made that into a man he was satisfied, and he allowed that to remain, and that is the Indian. Another said that the Great Spirit took some clay and put it in an oven to bake, and fearing it might burn he took it out too soon, and that is the white man. He made another and put it in, but he let it stay too long and it got burned, and that is the way the negro came. But he made another and put it in, but he was careful and watched it until it was done a nice brown, and that is the best of all, the copper colour. The Indians of the plains are a bloody, cruel race, scalping all they kill. The scalping is done with a very sharp knife by scoring the skin around the forehead, and taking hold of the hair with the hands, placing a foot on the body, and tearing the scalp right off the head, which they hang up to dry. They afterwards wear it in their belt. He had seen a chief with a coat which was covered with scalps, the hair entwined together. They take great pride in showing these scalps, as tokens of their bravery.

The Indians do not scalp their enemies, but they have poisons strong enough to kill them in a moment, and 'other poisons that will produce fearful diseases, causing awful pain, so that when he saw some of them at first, he thought they were leprous. In the Spring they will break out with running sores on their faces, which make them look horrid. People style indians uneducated, but they shew in their manner a good deal of intelligence. He also told them about the way they kill a bear. He was traveling with two indians in a birch canoe. After going several miles down the rapids and round porteges, they came to a river, in the centre of which was an Island, and as they went along they saw a flock of ducks. Mr. Young said, "let us get some ducks for our dinner," and while approaching the island, a large bear stood upon his hind legs gazing at them. He was for shooting at him, but the indians said "No, we kill him by and bye." They then paddled out of the way, and said, "let us alone, we will kill him." The bear soon made for the water to swim towards shore. They then made for him, and kept tormenting him by striking him with their paddles. The speaker then fired a shot at him, and missed him, but they worried him out and killed him quite easy, displaying intelligence in the way they done it. They said when the bear saw them retreat he was very brave; but he did not think it safe. He made for the main land and they knew he would take the narrowest place to do so, and it was to their advantage when he was in the water to successfully attack him. They said they called the fox a cunning animal, but the indians think not. As an instance they happened to see one, and as soon as he saw them he scampered off. They moved very quietly to the shore, and one of them imitated the squeaking of the mouse; Mr. fox shows himself, as he is very fond of mice, and the indian shoots him. They had on their flag a wonderful animal—the beaver. As they were one day paddling along they came to a creek; the Indians said they might have a view of the beaver dam. It required a great deal of caution to approach near enough to get a good view, for they are very watchful. Well, by getting up very early they approached. Beavers will enclose a space about two hundred yards long, with a dam powerful enough to turn a flour mill. They place a big beaver as sentinel, who sits quietly on a log so as he can have a good view up and down, and at the least intimation of danger he slaps his tail and they all drop their work and are seen no more. They will cut down large trees for the construction of their houses; others bring mud and stones. Their houses are as large as a small haystack. The little fellows are all engaged in cutting twigs and placing them in the mud, one end down, where they will not freeze. This is their food during the long winter. The way the indians get them out in the winter is very ingenious. He will go all round their breathing places and stamp them down, when they soon freeze. He then opens a hole in their house, when they all move to their breathing places, but they find them closed. Then then have to come towards the hole, when they are captured. Sometimes twenty or thirty are captured at a time. It seems cruel, but the indians have nothing else to live upon, and they are rejoiced when they get a good take. An indian will get into a swamp, and imitate the call of the goose and arrest their attention, so that he will be able to shoot three or four out of a flock, which shews intelligence. The Indians are greatly improved since Christianity had come among them. One old chief who visited the Sabbath School said: "Why did you not come long ago; I might have had my children here, too." But he had killed most of them, and others died through neglect. There has been some happy deaths. The sister of the boy missionary, whom Rev. Mr. Punshon thought remarkable, died triumphant in a Saviour's love, and many others.

Books were then distributed to the children who had collected money by cards and boxes for the Missionary Society.

Rev. Mr. Allen distributed to the Queen Street Schoo, and Dr. Skinner to Sydenham Street School; Queen Street School having collected $120-00 last year, and Sydenham $150.00.

Mr. H. Cunningham moved, sec. by Mr. B. M. Britton, a vote of thanks to the deputation.

The meeting closed by singing "God bless our Schools."

Concert.

A concert was given in No. 9 School House, Pittsburg, on the evening of the 29th ult., which was a great success, and it is to be hoped that it will be only one of the many that will come hereafter. The organists were the Misses Smith, assisted in singing by several other ladies and gentlemen. The pieces were well selected and done justice to. Mr. Hughes and daughter sang "If I had but a thousand a year," and were loudly encored. Appearing again they sung the answer to it, "I now have a thousand a year." A dialogue was also acted which caused much laughter in the audience. I will try and give you a synopsis of it for the benefit of those who were not present. It was termed "The Maid of the Mill," she being a young lady who had two suitors for her hand, each one appearing in his turn. She received them both very cordially, always delighted to see them, neither knowing which was ahead. Thus things went on for some time. The parents being uneasy, thought they would like to see the matter settled, when the following conversation took place:

"Pa"—Now "Ma," I think it is about time Maggie was settled, and I think Alex. would make a very good husband; I know his talents don't amount to much, but you see Annie is up now and might receive a suitor at any time, and in a couple of years Norah will be up, so I think the best thing Maggie can do is to marry Alex, at once."

"Ma"—Now "Pa," you can't see the way I do. I think the best thing she can do is to marry Billy. Folks say Alex's, talents don't amount to anything and you know if Billy and Maggie were once married, why, his father would have to allow him something to live on—whereupon the young lady appeared on the scene, and very sarcastically informed her parents that she did not intend to marry either of them, that she did not intend to settle down for a year or so, and when she did, she could get any one she wanted. After singing "God save the Queen," all left for their respective homes, highly delighted with the evening's entertainment.

EPPS'S COCOA.—Some time since, in a series of articles in these columns upon food, we spoke in terms of unqualified praise of Messrs Epps & Co's "Prepared Cocoa." The opinion we then expressed as to its purity and nutritious qualities has been fully endorsed by the public, as shown in its increased and steadily increasing consumption. We believe that Messrs Epps's manufactories are now the largest of the kind in the three kingdoms, and the total quantity of "Prepared Cocoa" consumed at the present time approaches four millions of pounds annually. This result is not surprising. The dietetic properties of native cocoa are well known, but in the form prepared by Messrs. Epps they are rendered additionally valuable, both on account of their increased nutritive power and digestible character. We rejoice to see the high opinion we originally held to have been so generally confirmed, and we again congratulate Messrs. Epps on the sound and valuable addition they have made to our not over lengthy list of dietetic foods.—Civil Service Gazett
