celebrate in an especial manner the two events which are of such moment and importance in the history of the church. FEROCITY OF RATS. - A case has lately ary ferocity and daring on the part of rats. A gentleman, residing at North Dulwich, and keeping all kinds of pets, has had a fine buck rabbit frightfully worried. One night this week they got into his hutch and actually ate away one side of his face, including the eye. Or another night they succeeded in carrying away a live puppy from its dam -a small rough terrier-and actually got it on the top of an empty barrel, which formed part of their run but their hole being too small they were obliged to relinquish their booty. The poor bitch, being chained up, it is presumed, must have crawled just beyond her reach. On a raid being made into their quarters, the skins of eight guineas pigs, which had previously disappeared were recovered. - From the Live Stock Journal and Fancier's Gazette.

year of his pontificate. The latter event is one as yet unheard of in the annals of Catholicism. Pius the Ninth "has seen spite of the old saying and, in the present poutiff's case, mistaken prophecy, "Non videbis annes Petri." Pius the Ninth has Peter, but has surpassed his years of pontificate. The fact strikes the Catholie world with wonder. The bishops of the Catholic church in America have issued
