That Little Printing.

"It is wonderful what the hope of get ting a little printing will induce some people to say." - Daily News. playing pranks with our unfortunate and badly used contemporary. Surely it has show so much for such sprice? had kicks and slaps enough of late, without its now famous religious disturber kicking up a dust in its own sanctum. It one dollar a day and non-commissioned is wonderful what a lack of indiscretion will induce some people to say, at an inopportune moment, when the 'official organ" of the Diocese might be expected to appear wiser than usual in view of the near approach of a wise Synod, and of that happy sesson of old for the barter of "boots and shoes, dry goods and groceries." through the medium of the religious newspaper's intercession. The occasion for the above select remark was a paragraph Written by us in defence of the Rev. Mr. Burke, of Belleville, to which was appended, very fitly, a few words of condemnation of his virulent 86,500; confirmed. assailant in the News, in regard to the scandal he is continually stirring up 000. against the clergymen of his own communion, though in this respect sustaining the life-long reputation of the News for being the dirty bird that fouls its own nest. We had uttered the same not very saucy opinion many times before, but suddenly occurred to the high-minded critic that there was a motive in it at last. and that motive was that the publishe of the Whig was a tenderer for the Synod printing. Now this seeking out motives is an unhappy suggestion, because it might open upon the pious oracle a series of unfair suspicions. We would not deem it fair, for instance, to say that the religious canvasser of the News was dancing attendance perpetually on members of Synod and plying them with papers and favors in order to retain printing patronage, nor would we even insinuate that there was an object in the studied attention paid to a local clerical superior, who cannot turn the cerner without receiving a notice, a consideration which must be as irksome to him as it is amusing to the clergy and laity generally. Therefore we hope that our local contemporary will be equally generous in its Christian consideration and not ascribe motives, particularly when they are very absurd. Though the WHIG has tendered for Synod work, which it can 'do at a profit for 25 per cent. less than the present monopoly calls for, it has canvassed nobody, turned no screws, dined no clergymen and patted nobody. It has simply sent its request to the Bishop and Executive Committee that an open competition be permitted for the printing.

Ald. McCammon-The petition of Mrs. Ald. McIntyre-The petition of the cabmen of Kingston, to the following effect: That they be placed on a similar footing with the Street Railway Company as regards license-fees and exemption from municipal taxation; that they are householders of this city and have been so many years, and have paid the license fees and taxation demanded of them up to this date; that the running of the street cars very materially affects petitionera' business; they therefore pray that the Council will direct that their licenses will be placed at a nominal sum of one dollar, and that they be exempt from the payment of municipal taxation for the same period as the Street Railway Company, in order to be able to compete with them on equal terms. Ald. McIntyre moved, seconded Ald. Harty, that while this Council, by virtue of the municipal law, has no jurisdiction over the licenses payable by cabmen, yet in view of the introduction of street cars into the city, and the assessment of income to which the cabmen this year have been subjected, in the opinion of this Council the prayer of the petition should be considered by the Police Commissioners, with a view of their granting the request in full, or to the extent of re-

Police Commissioners may see fit. Ald. McIntyre alluded to the loss the cabmen would sustain this year by the running of the street cars, and to the fact that many of them were this year assessed for income for the first time. He felt that some consideration should be given the petition; and though the Council had nothing decisive to say in the matter, he felt that the Police Commissioners would favourably receive any recommendation
