Parnell and his co-agitators assume a far graver responsibility than they seem able to realize when by their inflammameagre. Still there was enough in the department to interest the visitors, and tory speeches they first excite the people to deeds of violence and then condone these murderous outrages. As a direct result of these fire-brand efforts not only is disloyalty rampant in many parts of Ireland but the people have that next year there will be another evidently imbibed the idea that it is legitimate for them to take the law into their own hands and murder in cold blood those whom they have been taught to regard as their enemies and oppressors. The London Times truly remarked in a recent issue that "wherever Mr. Parnell and fellow-agitators go they Dz. Krsa's New Dracovent for consumption. | leave the country in a flame behind them. The popular fury, wrought up to white heat by Alyestylk? atory acclamations of these "patriot" demagogues, may prove more destructive than the fire-eaters themselves bargain for. O'Connell's popularity and power with the masses collapsed because after goading them to the fightpoint he then counselled them to back down from actual and overt treasson. Already this would seem to be proving true of Parnell, who, it is said did not go far enough in rank disloyalty to suit his rabid auditors, who vociferously applanded only the most radical parts of his speech. By the course they have been pursuing these agitators are proving themselves to be the worst enemies of their unhappy country, for

There was a magnificent display of quilts in silk and cotton patchwork, erechet, and cloth patchwork. It would be impossible to particularize all the good ones, but one shown by Mrs. A. Ritchie deserves mention as being quite unique in pattera. In crochet quilts Mrs. Wilson and Mrs. Captain Augustus show good specimens. Miss Duglas showed a good specimen of cretonne work, and Mrs. J. C. Clarke in leather work. Mrs. Folger and H. V. Brown showed good specimens of crewel work. L. H. Stover showed a good and Miss M. Rose showed fine specimens of twined lace work. Among the extras are painting on satin, by Miss ger; embroidery on velvet, by Miss Mitchell; thread lace, by Mrs. H. Reeve; darning on not, by Mrs. J.
