by Arcidences Wintaker. Yesterday special services were be St. Panl's Church commemorative of the re-opening of the edifice in a vastly. improved condition. It was felt that the occasion was of such importance that Archdeacon Whitaker, who is act ing at the last session (so far as he is concerned) as Provost of Trinity College. Toronto, was invited to preach the sermons, a synthesis of which we append The venerable gentleman is verscholarly, and though not possessed of a strong voice has a flow of language which retains the attention of the congregation throughout. His delivery is extemporaneous, his attitude being very erect and his manner quiet and un stentations. Neither sermon was markcal by a single gesture. MOENING SERMON.

The Archdeacon's theme was:

reater than that of the former, saith the some, saith the Lord of Hosts. Hagest, Reference was made to the fact that dthough the children of brack who has seen released from their long captivity by the wondrous interposition of Provi ence, had great reason to rejoice, then was still much to humble and discourage them. They felt that their position then was far inferior to that which they and enjoyed. The prophet Haggar alled upon them to remember the iory of Solomon's temple and incited them to new work. Though the ark of he covenant was no longer there, hough the glory which appeared above he cherubinas was no longer there, the scople were addressed especial words of omfort. They were told that notwith tanding all their disadvantages Gol's lessing would be with them, that the ery of the latter house would be reater than the former, and that in but house he would give them peace.

fow did the prophecy take effect When Christ was taken as a helpless ufant to the temple the promise was gifilled. When at the of 12 years be sailed the temple and entered into a condrous conversation with the docors had they not the fulfilment of the arue promise; and could they not beneve that to many of the aged servants who wendered at the child's undertearding and answers, and who did not we to see him when he stepped forth in the days of his public ministry conveyed, as he did to Simcon, the essurance that they could depart in peace because they had got some glimpse of His great salvation. It should be recombered that when the Lord was pro sent at Jerusalem the temple was the seens of his teaching; that many waited on his personal ministry, and that o many an expectant heart he spoke words of peace and divine consolation. But the temple was to perish; how was tiod's promise to be fulfilled? The disciples. They said to him, Teach us to pray, but he alone held converse with his Father in Heaven. But for what did Jesus pray? That he pray ed for others and for the church there can be no doubt, but the only ocat the grave of Lazarus when he said. Father, I thank thee that thou hast heard me." If the head thus prayed how should the members pray There is another won-frons aspect of his character - that he came not only to teach as law to serve God but to redeem us. His death and burial must be studied, not only as instances of his. entience and submission and lowliness to the in liquities of our fallen humanity, but as the instrument of our deliverance. In the Litany we say, "By thy gracious death and burial, good Lord | poar to be waring, but Christ will ultifeliver no. " What is meant by these words? We mean to confess that these afferings of Christ were something which wrought out our salvation and deliverance. We must study the wontrous events as recorded in boly scrip ture, not as something which relates to the Lord, but, even more, as something which has relation to ourselves, remenbering that the Apostle tells us that it we are in Christ we are received with inm, and that God not only raised us regether but intended that we should sit with Jesus in heavenly places. He not only wrought for our salvation but is now working to the same end in heaven. St. Paul said, "H, when we were enemies, we were reconciled to God by the death of His son, much more, being reconciled, we shall be saved by his life." Are we sufficiently iamiliar with this wondrous thought. that we are now saved by the life of Christ? To know Christ we must be aided by the Spirit of God. We must ask him to teach us how to read the sacred word aright. When this is done there is something more to complete our knowledge of him. Remember what the Lord said shortly before his suffering: "He that hath my commandments and keepeth them he it is that leveth

When the Apostle Judas asked "Lord, how is it that thou will manifest thyself unto us and not unto the world?" the reply was made, "If a man love me be will keep my words, and my Father will love him, and we will come unto him and make our abode with him." What is to be the end of this knowledge of Christ? what is its great purpose? its blessing? St. Paul, in his epistle to the Romans said, "For whom he did foreknow He also did predestinate to be conformed to the image of his son.' We know Christ and He manifests himself to us; for this great purpose are we conformed to his likeness. The incarrate God leads us to the Father. Gazng upon him, as in a mirror, discerning in him the moral beauty and glory of the divine character, it is the will of God that we should be transformed into His son's image by successive degrees of clory. Is this not a prize worthy of our seeking? Can we bless God for our creation and preservation; and not be prepared to return hearty thanks for the redemption of the world by His son, for the means of salvation and for the hope of glory? The words of St. John have a special application: "Belov ed now are we the sons of God, and it doth not appear what we shall be; but we know that when he shall appear we shall be like him, for we shall see him as he And every man that hath this hope purifieth himself, even as he is Be it our daily prayer that we may be pure even as our Lord is pure, that we may grow into the moral and spiritual likeness of Christ, so that when we behold the glories of the world

His glorious body, according to the working whereby lie is able even to subdue all things unto himself. At both services specia, lessons and psalms were read. All had a reference to the dedication of buildings to the worship of God. ST. MARY'S CATHEDRAL. At the 10:30 o'clock service yesterday at St. Mary's Cathedral, Rev. Father Twohey made a touching reference to the late "Norway" disaster, asking the prayers of the congregation for the repose of the sonls of those who composed the crew and perished in the great gale. Rev. Father Twohey also announced that the Administrator of the Diocese, Rev. Vicar-General Farrelly, of Belleville, had received a letter from His Lordship the Bishop of Kingston. dated. Rome. Oct. 27th, in which he stated that the writer had received his appointment from the Pope's Secretary. and that he was to be conscerated yesterday or next Sunday. reacher gave an able and forcible ex position of the meaning and qualities of occkness, the text being "The meck snall inherit the earth." Meckness meant the subjugation of one's own mind, the motto of the man possessed of such a mature being, "Not my will was objective, and as such it had ever been blessed with a rich inheritance. It was pointed out that the qualities of meckness were humility, gratitude duty, hope, perseverance and victory, each feature being the basis of eloquent thought. In passing the statement was disputed that there was a conflict between science and religion; in both there was phenomena, and thus as Lyndall remarked, the imagination was power by which they saw realities sevond the reach of the senses. It was beerved too, that man had to be renewed or resenerated in nature before he could be influenced by Christian meckness. for spiritual work. The meek person. in other words, was a vision man, who with open eyes believed realities and beheld them as they were -a very different character to the visionary man who was controlled largely by his own fancies. The last and most important point was that the world was progressive and that it is not getting worse as som people contended: Christianity may apand ly conquer, and this fact should be in inducement

His consolation to the afflicted and his gentle ness were worthy of imitation; from his works of mere; men should learn not to nurmur if they have not their own way ; com his contradiction by sinners they but Thine be done." The meek mind should learn the value of patience and mockness; and from his suffering before Pilot and Hero I and upon Calvary how to submit themselves in all lowliness to the will of God. There is another aspact of Christ which is indeed a wontrous one. Think of him in prayer. He joined, it is true, in the worship the synagogue, as one of the children of Abraham, conforming to the law of Moses and to the usages, of his country men, but in the desert and on the mountain he spent whole nights in prayer. We never read of his praying with the casion on which he spoke of it was that he should, in fact, have an aptitude,

What is the highest part of our Christian worship? It is the service of praise. The angels do not pray because they do not sin, but their enjoyment consists in never-ending praise. We become more fitted for the highest degree of Christian worship as we show forth our praise in our lives, and are thus enabled to en joy something of the happiness which the angels feel. The highest act of Christian worship is, however, the holy communion, which embraces all other features and an addition. In this act there is a deeper word of confession, followed by a fuller, tenderer, word of forgiveness, There are words of earnest heartfelt prayer, words of praise lifting heavenward and making one feel.
