BY POBERT BARR.

With that she retired again into her in the folds of her dress, the bogus one a the floor under the Russian's foot. either of the holes the conductor had bored in the partition, she swiftly placed the important document in a deep inside pocket of her jacket. As a general rule, women have inside pockets in their capes and outside pockets in their jackets, but Jennie, dealing as she did with many documents in the course of her profession, had had this jacket espe cially made, with its deep and roomy inside pocket. She sat in a corner of her sofa wondering what was to be the fate of the unfortunate messenger, for in spite of the sudden shutting of the door by the Russian she caught a glimpse of the man lying face downward on the floor of his stifling room. She also ha received a whiff of the sweet, heavy gas which had been used, that seemed now to be tincturing the whole atmosphere of the car, especially in the long, narro passage. It is not likely they intended to kill the man, for his death wou cause an awkward investigation, while his statement that he had been rendere insensible might easily be denied. she sat there, the silence disturbed only by the lew, soothing rumble of the train. she heard the ring of the metal cylinder against the woodwork of the next compartment.
