FOUND AN ANCHOR.
A Curiosity Brought to Light From Lake Ontario's Bottom.

One H. Corbett, proprietor of the cottage, has a curiosity in the form of a three-pronged anchor, or drag, which, with the assistance of Superintendent Hart, of the dairy school, he rescued from the bottom of Lake Ontario. On Wednesday last two gentlemen were fishing in the vicinity of Lamotte's point, when the anchor was noticed lying on bottom in eighteen feet of water. The lake was calm and the anchor could be plainly seen. After several endeavors a loop was thrown over one of the prongs of the anchor. It was raised to the surface and the anchor was found to be a three-pronged anchor, which was fastened to a rope. It was still attached to a rope, and it is believed that it was used for a hundred years or more, as it was heavily encrusted with a growth, and was covered with shells and other submarine peculiarities. Mr. Corbett highly prizes his find, as he is positive it was dropped into the lake from some of the batteaux which passed the spot a hundred years or so ago.

Baby Thieves in Escabate.
Reading, Pa., July 7.—A miniature baby is being raised in an incubator in this city. The mite of humanity, weighing but two pounds when born June 24th, but now weighs about three pounds. Its arms are not much longer than a man's finger and its legs are proportionately small.

Open Head - Fire & Fall.
Madison, July 7.—Thomas was injured yesterday morning by falling down the hole of the brick stove. The stove was being repaired. A strange feature in connection with the accident is the fact that the fall has rendered Hicks totally blind. Dr. Wetmore, of St. Agnes hospital, staff, said that there is no hope of the man ever again recovering his sight. It is thought that the jar to the man's nervous system was so great that paralysis of the optic nerve resulted.

General To Topper.
The New York Tribune has discovered that there is enough gas in a 450 pound tank to fill a gasometer of 3,049 cubic feet. This may be all right. At all events, after reading some of the opinions advanced at the present session of the Dominion parliament, we are not prepared to dispute it.

THE 4 P. M. EDITION.
Second Edition Matter also on Page Five.

An Official Call.
It was noticed by those who have read the evidence in the investigation how the deputy postmaster whined about the Whig's requests for reform in postoffice affairs, about the shortcomings of clerks and about his troubles generally. The Whig was justified in calling for investigation and change; everyone in Kingston, no matter what his politics, feels that, and the other newspapers made similar demands and complaints. It was his usual malignancy that singled out one paper, and justice shown for years. But in Kingston his venom does not injure; he is too well known. The superb innocence of this victim of the clerks' persecution is refreshing in this heated time. No one could be madder than he in ignoring at the men during the hours of idleness he had in the office, where there is loud talking frequently and occasional verbal scourgings; picking up a few words he exaggerates them and plays the cry-baby in court. He dearly loves contention; would sooner show fighting spirit than eat, and for years has gone about town telling tales about the clerks with a reckless tongue and extracting sympathy. A fine martyr and object of pity truly this infant! The Whig and every other critic was justified in two particulars alone by the evidence of this investigation—in his refusing to stop the quarrel in the post office and in his rushing out and indulging in a street assault while using foul language. A nice exhibit for the deputy postmaster of a city! He has been as offensive as he could be to the management of this paper; he is the very last that should play the baby act.

A Big Undertaking.
The Gliderlove Cameron mining party, consisting of Messrs. E. C. Gliderlove, K. Cameron, Jamieson and Chisholm, are now working a big claim on Pine Creek, Adirondack district. Before they can properly work the claim they must dam back the water, and to do this they have to build a dam or pier of logs 280 feet long, filling it in with material to keep back the water. They have to fall the trees, shape them and then fit them together. The last letter received from these sturdy young miners, written about the middle of June, contained the intelligence that in places the snow was still five feet deep. The four young men are enjoying the best of health.

A Canadian Opinion.
The Canadian island revenue authorities recently instructed Thomas Macfarlane, chief analyst of the inland revenue laboratory, to investigate the purity of aerated waters. One hundred and twenty-one samples were analyzed, two of which contained lead in heavy proportions, but samples of Apollinaris Water, (patented in Halifax, N.S., in St. John, N.B., in Quebec and Montreal, were in every case found on analysis to be free from impurities of any kind.

Have The Law Obeyed.
Ottawa Tribune.
Canadian senators are required to have property in the dominion to the extent of $4,000, over and above all incumbrances, and it is charged that a lot of our senators do not come up to the specifications. If this is so there should be a clearing-out of the senate, no matter on which side of politics the defaulters may be.

IS CURED OF LEPROSY.

WAS PROVED TO BE PRACTICALLY A NEW MAN.
Symptoms Were Unmistakable—Falls Heavily Was Simply a Leper, And As Out-Cast—Now He is All Right.
New York, July 7.—Philip Sidney, a negro, one of the leper inhabitants of the North Brother Island leprosarium, walked into Bellevue, apparently entirely cured of his leprosy. Dr. W. S. Stone and A. H. Mandell examined him.

"He certainly is cured as far as I can see," said Dr. Stone last night. "I examined him when he was here as a leper, and all of the symptoms he had are gone. He is a new man in a normal condition."
To-day Sidney will go to Blackwell's island to carry the good news to two of his former leper companions, a Chinaman and a German, who are at the almshouse. Sidney wants to help his two old companions to obtain the remedy that benefited him, as he believes it will have the same effect in their case.

Sidney was the last to come to Bellevue. He had unmistakable symptoms of leprosy. Sidney was persuaded to accept company two of the lepers to the almshouse, where he was operated upon. Last fall he came into Bellevue again, hobbling with difficulty upon an old pair of crutches. His right leg had been amputated just below the knee. There were the same indications of leprosy.

"They've cut my leg off and turned me out sick. Help me," begged Sidney. Meantime deputy superintendent Rickard had taken an interest in Sidney's case. When he had first been pronounced a leper and exiled to the colony of the nucleus he had firmly insisted he had no relatives and no home. It turned out that he had done this to shield a young wife from the consequences that would follow if it became known she had married a leper.

When a spruce, smart-looking young colored man asked in Bellevue yesterday no one recognized the miserable one-legged leper.
Sidney is living in Harlem, but does not want to make his address public. The descriptions he gave of the wonderful remedy that cured him are vague. The doctors understood him to say that it came from India.

ARE FACING STARVATION.
Condition of the Texas Flood Sufferers Grows Desperate.

AUSTIN, Texas, July 7.—The condition of the flood sufferers is growing worse as the days go by and no relief reaches them. Hundreds of persons are facing actual starvation, and this number will be increased unless prompt aid is given.
Governor Sayers, acting upon a report of one of his aids, has wired the secretary of war for assistance in relieving the distress. An answer has been received stating that government vessels have been ordered to the scene of the floods, and that 10,000 rations have been placed at the disposal of the state authorities.

The reports from the flooded regions constantly coming in are to the effect that the people are homeless in almost every instance, and that all movable property has been swept away. The loss of stock is enormous.

DECLARE WAR ON FIGHTERS.
Governor of Rhode Island Will Allow No More Rhodians in His State.
PROVIDENCE, R.I., July 7.—Governor Dyer is opposed to prize fights, and he wants all the sports who attended the Broderick Moran contest on the turf at the Forest House Monday morning last to be looked after and prosecuted.

In order to prevent prize fights in the future the governor favors the appointment of state detectives to look after such contests. He is most emphatic in saying there will be no more prize fights while he is in the executive chair. Boxing contests at theatres are also to be prohibited by the governor.

LOVE.

Love, O thou blessed love,
Thou boon, thou curse,
Thou all in man of better,
Thou all of worse!
When gloom o'erclouds my soul,
Thou bringest light,
When joy fills all my heart,
Thou makest night.

Love, when I follow thee,
I meet but strife,
And yet I would not turn—
Thou art my life!
—E. A. F. in New York Sun.

VINEGAR, THEN LEAD.
They Settled the Trouble at the Carbonville Postoffice.

"I think my most exciting official experience," said Captain J. E. Stone, formerly United States postal inspector, "was at the town of Carbonville, Colo., in 1878. It was a star route post, and there was much complaint about the non-receipt of mail, so I went over to investigate.

"The postmaster was a man named Wilson, who kept a general store, and the postoffice consisted of a soap box on the end of his counter. When mail arrived, it was dumped in, and every fellow helped himself, an arrangement that worked well enough until a chap known as Black Hills Pete came to town. Pete disturbed the entire system. When he didn't get a letter himself, he would tear up several others on the principle that money loves company, and being a notorious desperado, nobody dared interfere. I got the facts, and as the mail came in that evening I took a seat in the corner and awaited developments, first ordering the box removed.

"A little after dark the miners from camp began to assemble, and presently in came Black Hills Pete. He was a big brute of a fellow, and I saw at once there was going to be trouble. 'Who's that letter box?' he demanded of Wilson. 'I've ordered him not to use it any more,' I said, getting up. 'Who the blank blank are you?' roared Peter. 'I'm the inspector,' I replied. 'Well, you got me that box quick,' he retorted, and, seeing him reach toward his pocket, I made a grab for my gun; but as he had no gun, I was left with the gun. 'In a twinkling he had me covered, but before he could turn loose a quavering voice called out: 'Petel Oh, Petel!' The desperado glared around, and there stood Wilson holding a large tin squirt gun used for drawing liquors. The sight was so ludicrous that the bully burst into a guffaw, and as he did so Wilson let drive the pointed tin. It struck the quavering voice of the strongest kind of vinegar squarely into his face. The stuff blinded him, and before he could recover himself the storekeeper had two bullets in his shoulder.

"That's the true story of the strangest fight that ever occurred in the west. Pete recovered, but before he could be arrested was spirited away by friends to New Mexico. His right name was Luther Colton, and there is a warrant now outstanding against him for destroying United States mail matter. After the episode I have narrated there was no further trouble at the Carbonville postoffice."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

The Prevalence of Appendicitis.
Surgeons admit that 75 per cent of all cases of appendicitis will recover without operation, but claim that 98 per cent could be saved by operating promptly on every case as soon as discovered. This discloses a debate of great significance, for physicians are disinclined to turn all cases to the surgeon. Morris has estimated that there are 200,000 new cases of appendicitis discovered each year in the United States. If this is true and the surgeon is right, 100,000 of them would be ruthlessly sacrificed under medical treatment. But physicians assert (and I wish I knew whether truly or not) that autopsies upon subjects that have died from other diseases than appendicitis show old inflammatory processes about the appendix in one-third of the cases, just as old tuberculous scars are found in the lungs where tuberculosis has never been suspected. In other words, one-third of all coming to the autopsy table and by inference a large proportion of the population have got well spontaneously from an unsuspected trouble which would have subjected them to a life-endangering operation had they fallen into the hands of a surgeon of sufficient skill to make the diagnosis.

When surgeons admit the skill necessary to make diagnosis in doubtful cases, physicians retort that these are the cases in which diagnosis would better not be made. Obviously the subject has not crystallized and is in process of evolution, but even the laity clamor for an operation when there is recognized tumor and poisoning from pus absorption.

Mollie's Inclination to Rise.
Among unique Georgia epitaphs the following, by a triumphant husband, is highly entitled to the prize:
This is the place where Mollie's buried—

But she ain't never got plumb out!
She was put in the dearest grave in town,
But it's all in kin do to keep her down!
—Atlanta Constitution.

The Truth of It.
From what we know of men, we should say that when an aged man speaks of having spent hundreds of nights in walking the floor with his sick children he probably got up only once in the night in all his life, and that was to hand a child a cup of water, the child and cup being in the same room as himself.—Athletic Globe.
