Sunday School Plenie, The annual picnic of the Union street Baptist Sunday school was held yesterday afternoon at Long Island park. The weather was just right and the attendance quite large. The picnic left the dock on the steamer Pierrepont at 1:50 p.m., and at] seven in the evening returned to the uity on the steamer Empire State. The tirat item on the afternoon's programme was a closely contested game of baseball between the Alerts and Grove Inn teams. Six innings were played when the score tution. stood twelve to eleven in favor of the Alerta. William Dehaney umpired the game to the eatiefaction of all. The usual races were then held and the prizes awarded by the beachers. Three of the races were ties and had to be run over again. Tea was served about five o'clock, and the arrival of the / boat two hours later closed a most enjoy. able affair.

and Finally Made a Sale. An auctioneer on East Washington street-one of those redoubtable indiriduals commonly termed "slick"-was the cause of a faretral scene recently that would be done credit to a burlesque show. Finally, with a dark look that | satisfactorily and has produced almost ex bordered on despair, he grabbed up a acely the amount estimated by the commis well known pasteboard hatbox containing about 50 spools of silk thread of dit ferent colors. With the grace of a conjurer he extracted five or the spools, and, arraying them in a tempting semicircle on the counter, announced that they were "to go at any price."

But the audience, while admitting with nods of approval that they were good press and telegraph companies doing spools of thread, displayed no marked inclination to become excited over them.

Not a bid was offered. "I'll sell 'em for 10 cents," suggested the auctioneer timidly. It was plain from the tone of his voice that he was losing faith in himself and in all the world. There were no takers. The man of the red flag added three more spools to the semicircle. "All for 10 cents," he declared. But thread stock was far below par. The auctioneer enught up all the spools from the counter and flung them into the box with an impressive gesture. The light of inspiration flashed from his eyes.

"The whole blamed box for 10 cents!"

he cried. "I'll take it," was the prompt response, and a little man in a washed out overcoat and wearer of red chin whiskers stepped out from the crowd with a dirty 10 cent piece in his upraised hand. The nuctioneer clutched the money feverishly, and, turning the box upside down se on the counter, he handed the worthless piece of ancient pasteboard to the anxious customer. A roar of hilarious laughter rose from the crowd that was heard throughout that neighborhood. "I don't want your blamed old box!"

wailed the unfortunate purchaser. "You said you'd take it," replied the auctioneer. "I'll leave it to the crowddidn't he?" "Yes!" came in a strong chorus from
