DREYFUS DENOUNCED. With Much Force and Bitterness by Major Caignet.

WAS NO SPECIAL INCIDENT. MARKING THE SESSION OF THE COURT ON SATURDAY.

Caignet said he was convinced of the prisoner's guilt because he wanted information and kept at him until he got it. Valuable Notes Could Not Be Taken When His House Was Searched. Aug. 21.—No special incident occurred this morning when the second trial by court-martial of Capt. Alfred Dreyfus, of the 14th artillery, charged with treason, was resumed at Lyons.

Major Caignet, the first witness, was not in uniform, as he is not at present attached to any corps. "Before beginning an account of the special investigation into the case which I was ordered to make by ministers of war, from M. Cavallero to M. De Freycinet," said the witness, "I wish to mention a personal fact which, in conjunction with the evidence already heard will constitute fresh proof of the prisoner's indiscreet behavior when employed on the headquarters staff. I was on the staff when Dreyfus was a probationer, turning the latter half of 1893. Among other duties I was connected with the railroad service and the mining of railroads, with the view of interrupting traffic, in case of need. It is hardly necessary to point out the secret character of such matters."

"Dreyfus was a probationer on the eastern railroads and had been ordered to specially study the mining of iron and especially information relating solely to them. One day Dreyfus asked me to give him the general scheme of mining which I possessed, giving as a reason for his request that it was a matter to increase his knowledge, and that it was necessary for him to know the general scheme in order to properly carry out the work entrusted to him. I replied that I did not see the necessity of giving him the scheme and that, in any case, he had better apply to his own chief, Major Bertin. Dreyfus pretended Bertin would not impart any information."

"The first question I will ask here," said the witness, "is Dreyfus guilty? My conviction of his guilt is based on three grounds: "First—His confessions to Capt. Labrun-Renaud. "Second—The technical nature of the contents of the Bordereaux. "Third—The results of the examination of the secret dossier. "I will add to these three points the evidence of the expert, Bertillon (laughter), and as indirect proof, the means employed by the Dreyfus family to secure the prisoner's rehabilitation. "I protest that a campaign has been undertaken against justice, truth and our country."

The witness next spoke of the secret dossier of the war ministry, containing information relating to the interview between M. Trepoignier, formerly minister of justice, and Count Torlonia, the Italian ambassador, "which country," said Caignet, "benefited by the treachery."

COLUMBIA, O., Aug. 21.—Ellis Day, colored, aged sixty years, a patient at the Columbus state hospital, who was received from Marion, O., ten years ago, died yesterday from peritonitis, and an autopsy to day revealed in her stomach the handles of five silver spoons and fifty cambric needles, and in the bowels nearly fifty more needles.

A LOW SNEAK THIEF. Enters a Hospital as a Night Inspector and Steals $450.

CODRINGSBURG, N.Y., Aug. 21.—A theft at the city hospital was one of the most daring ever perpetrated in this city. Shortly after dinner a stranger presented himself in the office of the hospital and said that he had been sent by the Ogdensburg electric light company to inspect the lights. The stranger was about thirty-five years of age, five feet, ten inches in height, and weighed about 100 pounds. He had a heavy sandy mustache and sandy hair, slightly gray. While at the hospital he wore a pair of blue overalls, over brown trousers, had a vest and brown cap and tan shoes. The stranger was allowed the freedom of the hospital building, and he went unattended into each of the rooms. About three o'clock it was discovered that a tin box about a foot in length, seven inches wide, and four inches deep had been stolen from one of the rooms. The box contained $450, $250 of which was in gold, and $200 in bills, including a $50 bill. In the box was also a gentleman's open face gold watch, pension papers made out to Jeremiah Laps and Mr. Calligan, and a deed. After the discovery of the theft the police were notified, and officers at once started working on the case. The surrounding towns were communicated with, and it was ascertained that a man answering the description of the thief, was seen on the Morrisville road a few miles from the city. Officers immediately started in pursuit and it was thought the culprit would probably attempt to cross to Canada at Morrisville, a few miles this side of that village. Working the electric lights dodge and the gas meter fake is not new, as it has been practiced successfully in several towns.

ANOTHER AT CHESTERVILLE. John McCadden Found Dead in Bed With a Gun Beside Him. CHESTERVILLE, Ont., Aug. 18.—John McCadden, Codringsburg, near Chesberville, was found dead in bed under peculiar circumstances. There have been several reports in circulation regarding his design, one to the effect that it was a case of suicide, and another that it was purely accidental. On the morning of the shooting, McCadden, it is said, did not rise very early as he had not been feeling well. The rest of the family were engaged about the farm. On the return of one of his daughters to the house she went upstairs, when to her horror she found her father lying dead, having been shot with the gun. The theory advanced as the cause of his death is that he had been troubled by a cough for some time, and had been shooting them through his bedroom window, accidentally shot himself while engaged in his pastime.

MOST FORTUNATE ACCIDENT. Cures a Paralytic When Surgical Skill Could Not. OTTAWA, Aug. 21.—Peter Rochon, an aged resident of St. Patrick street, had a miraculous recovery from paralysis last week. The old man had suffered from paralysis for several years and was not able to move almost double his affliction. Yesterday he became as straight as ever he was in the space of a few minutes. Rochon and a companion were driving a load of hay into one of his barns when the axle broke, throwing Rochon to the ground. He immediately straightened up and to the amazement of his friends walked almost as erect as ever. Mr. Rochon says that he was cured by the use of a certain cure he marveled, the accident having done more than surgical skill could have accomplished.

Going Ahead With the Work. Ex-almirante McKelvey was seen this morning with regard to the statement that his syndicate had given up the idea of converting the vehicle works into an opera house. "There is not a shade of truth in the statement," he replied. "We are going ahead with the work. I have not heard of one man in the syndicate giving up, but he is dissatisfied with the plan. The plan is to build a grand opera house. The plan is to build a grand opera house. The plan is to build a grand opera house."
