HELP NEEDED.

Christian endeavors in New York state have formed a band to work among released convicts. They argue that "of all persons in the world who most need christian sympathy and help it is that man or woman who, in some never to be forgotten day, long since passed, perhaps, made a false step and fell, and as a result of that fall heard the bolt click in the lock and found himself behind the bars. After the days, that seemed like years, had passed, the man is free again; free to walk up and down our streets, free to revel in the sunlight once more, but with almost every friendly face turned away, and every helping hand withdrawn." True enough, and in addition the scoundrelly private detective follows the ex-convict and warns employers against them, even when some one interests themselves to help the men on the upward road by finding friends and employment.

SHOULD BE BUILT HERE.

It is announced that a new cruiser for the Canadian government, the Minto, is crossing the coast from Great Britain on her first trip. The government steamer Quadra, stationed at Victoria, is also British built, as well as are others of the Canadian fleet. Is it not about time that both the government locomotives and cars and its steamers were built in Canada? Why must we always be sending our substance to other countries? Is not the steamer Toronto a sufficient specimen of superior Canadian construction, as well as also have been several iron steamers now plying on the lakes? The Montreal transportation company may also venture on a Canadian built boat. If the government will strengthen the hands of Canadian manufacturers by placing orders and giving them time, it will encourage them to increase their shipyards and plants so as to better cope with orders when rapid work is essential.

TREATING CONSUMPTION.

At the health convention in western Ontario, just closed, the discussion on consumption was interesting. There was a strong note of hope for humanity in the utterance of one speaker, who said that if consumption in human beings was scientifically treated in the first stages, it was possible to save life. Doctors the world over are devoting thought and study to this disease, which carries off one seventh of the earth's population, and rapid strides in combating the white plague will surely be made within the next few years. Indeed a progress not generally known, and one scarcely to be credited without demonstration, has been made in Kingston general hospital under study with the photographic X rays. The infection in lungs is being surely detected and located. Several patients in whom it was not suspected have been found to be in the early stages. In such cases care and isolation are of great benefit and relief; again directly benefit humanity.

THE SERVANT PROBLEM.

The servant problem has pushed itself to the front in Kingston. Anybody can see this by following the "wants" in the newspapers. Many a woman who has kept a maid is now alone doing the housework and caring for the children. The subject has been exploited by citizens and it is shown there are grievances on both sides—the excessive sensitiveness of girls and the unfortunate snobbishness of employers. The stories about this and that mistress have unquestionably tainted the minds of those who must work and they will do almost anything rather than go out to service. Six to ten dollars a month, with board, is easily as good as $4 to $5 per week at clerking, dressmaking, etc., yet girls will cheerfully work for $3 or $4 in a shop before they will take a position as "queen of the kitchen." Some explain this by the fondness of independence of the generation or that "all the girls are going to larger cities;" others suggest that girls should go out and do housework by the day and thus have their evenings to themselves, but the fact remains that domestics are scarce and matrons must look for other means of assistance in the care of households. In some cities Chinese are employed, in others negroes. Just now Chicago is testing the merits of men and "male chambermaids" are innovations that create heaps of jest in the newspapers.

TIME FOR A CHANGE.

Another failure of a private bank has occurred in western Ontario, and the depositors will lose about one-half of their money, besides interest. About once a quarter, if not oftener, that intelligence of a bank failure comes from the west and yet newspapers seem to call in vain for government inspection of these institutions. If once-half the interest devoted to the insurance department by the local and general governments were spent upon the private banks the result would be greatly to the public benefit. In this latest Stratford failure it is stated that the crash has been expected for some time and the more cautious depositors had taken their money out. Here is a case where the loss could be checked at the beginning, probably, of the trouble. It is also stated that most of the assets in real estate, much over-valued, and in industrial stocks, practically valueless. If a system of government inspection were to provide bankers would not be permitted to speculate in these directions. A Kingston banker did so to the regret of his creditors. The idea of banking is to provide loans for needy but reliable men, not to take borrowed money for low profit investment, for speculation or for gentleman farming. Even an annual return made like that of joint stock companies would be valuable.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The British lion will only spend a few hours daily in wiping out the Boers—the borse of South Africa.

A lady in discussing war remarked that the man who killed thousands was applauded and made a hero, but the man who killed one human being was made to serve at a hanging.

The Montreal Star is in consonance with the Whig. It says: "The working world would be grateful to the government if it were to give them their thanksgiving day in 'brown October.'"

The Winnipeg Free Press rightly remarks that liberal rule and surpluses are going hand in hand throughout Canada. The dominion has a surplus of $5,000,000; Quebec $23,000, and Ontario a fine surplus of finances.

The model schools all over Ontario have small attendances, due to the regulation abolishing third class certificates. King ston has less than thirty. Renewal has thirteen. The time is ripe for the education department, if model schools are required, to join a half-dozen counties together with one school in a central place.

Those who talk about keeping the fair open for another night are not speaking by their wits. It is questionable whether there was any profit in the first night, considering the expense involved, and if the one night show will not pay, where is the increased crowd to come from a second night? It is sometimes a novelty to temper reason with a little common sense.

My! think of it. If all the armies of the European continent on a war footing were drawn up in one big, long procession, with their guns and ammunition, and baggage wagons, the column would be rather more than 24,000 miles long, and, marching day and night, it would take nearly a year to pass a given point. The taxpayers who meet the cost are indeed Christians—to suffer under the burden!

Newspapers, when considered from an advertising standpoint, have everything in their favor. They reach both the masses and the classes and they reach them with a frequency that commands itself as a shining virtue to the man who has something to sell. Moreover, a favorite newspaper, like the Whig, cannot be supplanted in the hearts of its constituents by any other sort of publication, which insures it a permanency of circulation that cannot be duplicated.

PRESS COMMENTS.

No Surrender AGG.

London News. Aguinado has refused the offer made him by the peace commission of $5,000 a year, to make peace. This may mean that Aggy is a patriot and then again it may mean that $5,000 isn't enough.

Anthony Comstock Forgotten.

London News. The Buffalo Times laments because in the official list of agents there is not one from the United States. They don't grow salutes in the U. S., but they do grow a large and lusty crop of the other kind of immorality.

Can't Play in Our Yard.

London Advertiser. E. B. Eddy, the paper manufacturer of Hall, says that "it galls him to see goods from foreign countries coming into Canada." Doubtless it galls some equally patriotic Americans too see Canadian goods going into the United States, but as long as Canada grows what Uncle Sam wants, and Canada grows what Uncle Sam wants, the two countries are likely to do business despite the efforts of fool politicians to hamper their trading.

A Band of Quakers.

London Review. France always did have some grudge against herself. Cheese always costs is the best thing that has a card for some time.

It is not always the unexpected which happens in France. That sort of general staff is too rotten for the French people to lean upon. The French army chiefs have at least one of the characteristics of the American army chief.

The Day's Case settles it. This journal will not be represented at the Paris exposition.

The advance in the price of votes from seventy five cents and $1 to $25, $35 and $75, as shown in the North Waterloo election trial, ought to be eagerly seized upon by the Globe as another symptom of the growing time.

LIES IN A LONELY GRAVE.

A. D. Stewart, of Hamilton, Died on Peel Street from "dysentery."

Edmonton Post, Sept. 13. There arrived on Monday from the Mackenzie region E. Harris, of Hamilton, Ont., who started with a party of Hamiltonians for the Klondike last year, leaving Athabasca Landing on May 10th, 1898. They went by way of the Mackenzie and Peel to the Stewart. The rest of the party got over, but Mr. Harris, while driving logs on the upper Peel, had the misfortune to have his feet frozen, which rendered necessary the amputation of a portion of one of his feet. He was not able to go on and wintered at Wind City. When coming down the Peel on his way out he met Skinner, Cresswell, Tolman and T. Leo on their way up. It was with these men that A. D. Stewart, ex-mayor of Hamilton, set out for the Yukon and they reported his death to Mr. Harris. It appears that the Stewart party wintered on an island at the mouth of Beaver river, a tributary of the Peel, about 100 miles up the Peel from Fort Macpherson. During the winter Mr. Stewart took sick with what is called scurvy, but which Mr. Harris thinks is blackleg, and from this he died on March 13th, 1899. His companions buried him far up the bank of Beaver river and the grave, which Mr. Harris visited, is marked by a wooden board board on which is carved

A. D. STEWART Died March 13th, 1899.

Mr. Harris brought out the dead man's effects and will hand them over to Mr. Stewart's family when he reaches Hamilton.

Another Bang Phrase.

Detroit Free Press. "It's queer about slang, isn't it?" "In what way?" "Why, it's so absolutely senseless sometimes, and yet it exactly expresses the idea. Take the phrase that is now going the rounds."

"What is it?" "Well, I just have asked you." "Don't do it again, though, for that's the phrase, 'ask me.'"

"That's about as near to idiocy as one could get with an expression, and not get hurt."

"I thought so, too, until this afternoon, when I heard a fellow settle a question with those two words that otherwise would have taken hours of explanation. We were sitting near the window at the club, and now and then remarking on the passers-by. 'Billy' was very critical, and I began to think his ideas of economy were altogether too high to be sensible. He didn't like this one because she was too thin; the other one had eyes that weren't worth seeing out of the next one had a stub nose—and, well, altogether, he wasn't suited. Finally the mail came and he received a package containing a photograph.

"A picture of my fiancée," said he, handing it to me. I expected to see a Venus, but was disappointed. "She's not up to your ideal of plumpness," said I, after doing the usual complimentary. "No, she's thin," said Billy. "And her eyes—"

"They're just plain eyes—nothing beautiful about them." "And her nose—"

"Is very much too small." "She doesn't seem to tally at all with your ideal," I suggested. "None."

"Well, why are you going to marry her?" "Ask me," was all he had to say.

Current Comment.

Toronto Telegram. An indignant Georgia man has challenged Estabrook to a duel, an idea which may persuade Col. Sam Hughes, M.P., to enquire for the post office address of Col. Jonast. The imposition of a heavy tax on strong drink going into the Yukon may mean that the Laurier government is adopting a mild course of keeping Uncle Sam's subjects out of the gold fields.

H. Roder Haugard is said to be on his way to the Yukon. He probably wants to have a look in at those "Yankee bars." Clifford Sifton has been calling the greatest experts in fiction the world has seen.

House Fall on Them.

East Las Vegas, N.M., Sept. 19.—Word was received from Meza, thirty miles from here, that Manuel Cordova, his wife and six children were killed last night by the falling in of their house, six miles from Meza. It had been raining heavily and the dirt roof of the hut in which Cordova lived washed out, causing the wood of the roof and part of the wall to fall in. The children were crushed. Only one child, a boy of ten years, escaped. He was outside of the house when the accident occurred. He walked two miles for assistance after an ineffectual attempt to rescue one of his little sisters.

Will Fatten Chickens.

Carleton Place, Ont., Sept. 19.—It has been decided by the dominion department of agriculture to carry on this autumn the work of fattening chickens for export to Great Britain, at the poultry fattening station conducted last year by Joseph Yull, near Carleton Place. (Chickens of about three months or so old, weighing from three to four pounds, are required. Professor Robertson, commissioner of agriculture and dairying, is expected here shortly to complete all arrangements for the commencement of business.

Thomas B. Reed's Farwell.

PORTLAND, Me., Sept. 18.—The Free press of the board of agriculture, has been addressed to the republicans of the first Maine district, in which the ex-speaker of the house of representatives thanks his constituents for having returned him to congress for twenty-three years, and formally takes his leave of his old constituency. In the course of his letter Mr. Reed says: "You know that I have never trimmed a nail to catch the passing breeze or even flown a doubtful flag. Office as a 'ribbon to stick in your coat' is worth nobody's consideration. Office as opportunity is worth all consideration."

They Ousted Him. LONDON, Sept. 18.—Walter Long, president of the board of agriculture, has been ousted by his Liverpool constituency because he voted against the church disendowment bill. He will resign. The irony of this lies in the fact that Mr. Long is an extremely low churchman, and voted because he thought the bill funny, from a legal point of view.
