POLITICIANS UNITE ON THE

Souvenir Range

is not often political parties find common ground on which to meet. Their differences are mostly rich in discord. But we have an exception in the case Whitney are of one mind on this subject.

> "And now Hardy, Tupper, and Laurier too, Use the Souvenir Range for political stew; All gases escape through its fine aeration. And good wholesome food now blesses the nation."

The strong point of the Souvenir stove is its aerated oven which makes cooking a success under any circumstance; and the good nature of the politician-as well as the cook-is soon restored when a Souvenir stove is installed in the kitchen.

A neat Booklet entitled. "Kitchen Wisdom," with illustrations by J. W. Bengough and J. S. Gordon, is yours for the asking, and it tells you a great deal about the Aerated Oven.

special Correspondence, Letter No. 1,171.) New York, Oct. 27 .- The election is yet more than a year off, but the managers who make and unmake residents, and who usually get the rewards and all other good things that a successful election secures are looking out for number one. The wheel horses of the democratic club are already putting their iences in order, that when the battle comes off, which is expected to try men pockets, if not their sours, that wil secure to these lucky gentlemen a fair share of the loaves and fishes no matter which way the cat jumps. As an evidence of this, when one of the officers of the Ramapo water company was before the Mazet committee last week, and was ordered to bring the books of the Ramapo water company, that they might ascertain the names of the stockholders, the officer named natly refused o do so, declaring that it was none of the committee's business, and so

Mr. Croker declared last week at the demogratic club that he wanted to leadership of any party; he only wanted to be let alone, but if he elp was needed on election day he could not be found wanting Crestfallen and sorrowful the com-

All agreed that Kicksey's idea was an inspiration, so they returned to the committee rooms and the consultation with the chairman of the committee on candidates hurried for Wolfert's Roost. This was once the home of Joe Emmett, the German fialect actor. He spent a mint of money on it and after his death it was sold to ex-governor Hill, and here he seeks refreshment and rest after his long and bitter political hattles, and seeks a remedy for ha ticals, which like the realization of the alchemist's dream shall turn his thross to gold. The committee were courteously received and they informed him of the object of their isit. They wanted a candidate and he was the man of men. The governor shook his head. "No, gentle men: you must seek your candidate elsewhere. I have often led you to victory. I will not follow you to defeat.

A case occurred a short time ago that tells of a condition of life ulmost beyond belief, where starva tion struggles from early dawn till dewy eve - which knows no rest till he finds it in the grave.

A little romance was brought to a close here last week by the death of hird of one of the principals who carried the main portion of the secret with him to the grave. Miss Jenny M. was the youngest laughter of James Lacy, a politiciar in the city. He had money coming o him in large sums every week nd though he spent oute as liberal ly as he received he was never short in his bank account, and if any friend of his became embarrassed he never denied him the assistance needed, and these admirable qualifiations, added to the fact that he was uncommonly good looking, not quite thirty-five, made him a great avorite with mothers who had laughters to marry - many of the oung ladies were brimful of talent. Among them was Miss Jenny Frosart, whose pictures had been exthited at the Royal academy. One of Miss Jepay's pictures had been ex hibited at the Royal academy, and sir James Lowden declared that it as one of the finest pictures in the entire exhibition. "I am delighted o hear such an excellent report her." Mr. Melville replied, "and on my return to my home I will look over my picture gallery and if I can find room I shall certainly avail myelf of the opportunity of adding a ew of her art gems to the cataogue of treasures which I now posess." Mr. Melville was introduced o Miss Jenny Frossart that night and to make a long story short tune 20th was fixed for the marriage. It was rather short notice, art such opportunities did not occur very day and his visit to his home n New York was to attend to the ale of some copper properties and a ouple of his gold mines -it was imperative that he should go at that time and show his wife her future home. Mr. Melville had been introfuced to a number of Mr. Frossart's noble friends, who were anxians to invest in some of Mr. Mel ille's profitable mines. He had shown his noble acquaintances chunks of pure gold as large as a hen's egg and quite a number were presented to them. They took them and showed them to other friends. till at last it became a rush. Every one wanted to get a few shares, and when it was announced that Mr. Melville would sell no more of his properties after the 18th of June. the rush became so great that Mr Melville had to employ several clerks. He took the money and the orders, the stock to be delivered ifter he reached home.

Three days after his marriage he sailed for New York, carrying with aim orders and cash to pay for them to the extent of £15,000. On his arrival in New York he took his wife to a second-class hotel. The next day he went down town and telephoned his wife that he was sud denly called to Alaska, and as it was possible that he might not be able to return for three or four nonths she had better go back to ingland and await his return, and that she would find £100 placed to her credit at the hotel. Since them nobody has seen or heard of the millionaire Melville He has "va moosed the ranch"-or, as James marked, "he has gone where the coodbine twineth.
