FINISHED HIS STORY. Pare's Wonderful Disclosures Are Concluded.

WILL NOT STAND FOR MUCH AS HE ONCE FIGURED IN A LIKE ROBBERY.

Crown Depends Upon Being Able to Corroborate Points in Pare's Story—The Prisoner is Quick At Repartee When Being Examined—An Indian Identifies Pare And Holden, Having Seen Them On The Night The Burglary Was Planned—Another Witness Brought From Detroit.

NAPANEE, Aug. 10.—This afternoon again saw Pare on the stand. His long tortuous story is almost at an end. Porter asked the witness how long chief Healy's new break prior to his leaving for Manchester, and the witness stated, "Not more than five minutes, and jailer Vanliven and the turkey were present."

When asked about his two companions that he dropped before coming here, he stated that their names were Eddie Markie and Jimmy Jones. Markie he never saw since Jones stopped with his sister in Montreal. The prisoner says he wrote to Jones telling him not to wait for him, but to go on to Halifax if he wanted, as he could not see the end of this job for over a month.

"Was your work with those two men square?" asked Porter. "Yes, everything was straight—no suspicion at all about it," answered the witness. "Tell me, witness, why you expect to derive any benefit from this story you tell here."

The reply was: "I had other experiences before and others benefited by giving the job away." "When you cracked the safe in Montreal," asked Porter, "how did you do it?" "I didn't crack it," answered the witness.

"How did you break the lock when you broke jail in Montreal?" asked Porter. "I didn't break the lock; I picked it and went out," said the witness. "W. G. Wilson asked the witness about his visit to Port Colborne, but he denied being there on any occasion, as far as he could remember. The witness was taken over his trip from Detroit in the spring of 1897, and never returned once, relating the trip as he told it to the two former interrogators with no variety to speak of."

Mr. Wilson asked the witness if he ever saw a man in the Banque National, Quebec. The witness replied, "Yes; I went to school with (trivial)." The witness told of buying a combination lock for $16 and studying it out thoroughly. It was then discovered that if you add thirteen to each number you can work out the combination on these figures, starting to the right of the star on the dial thirteen points. Mr. Wilson drew from the prisoner the fact that Madame Saucier, his sister, never was in Napanee, and that he never had any dealing with a woman in Napanee. Prisoner had enough in his head, he said, without bothering with women, and especially in a bank robbery they could not be trusted.

"Did you tell the officers where to find the other parties mentioned in your confession?" asked Porter. "No," replied Pare. "Thornhill was watching Holden for over a week." The witness was shown a photo by Mr. Oler, which he readily recognized as John Roach, Chief Adams produced the key found in the station this morning, and Pare identified it as the brass key he had in his mouth when arrested before the burglary. Constable Sills produced the bent wire and the witness said it was the key made to throw off the combination. A piece of file was also shown which Pare said was what he used for a screw driver to take off the cap to look into the combination, when he got into the safe.

"Which Mackie was it that acted as messenger for John last spring?" asked Mr. Oler. "It was James Mackie," replied the witness. "You told my learned friend on a former occasion that it was James Mackie," said Mr. Oler. "It was James who brought in the beer, but it was John we sent out on the errand later." The prisoner pointed out Robert Mackie's father in the court room and described the room as Holden and he occupied in the Dominion house last spring. They apparently were correct, for Mr. Porter did not object to the description as being incorrect.

Charles Lloyd, North Fredericksburgh, died on August 3rd, aged seventy-five years. For many years he was a member of the Lennox and Addington counties' council; also a leader in the Methodist church for many years. He leaves a wife and three daughters. "I heard a good preacher last Sunday," said a church-goer, "to put you to sleep. There was little cadence to his voice—a sort of flowing water—which proved most conducive to my propensity to go to sleep after the active work of the week. But I like a preacher who can keep me awake."

The insects are about three-eighths of an inch long by two eighths broad, are flat and light green in color. He says they destroy at night and sleep during the day and go in swarms like bees. Nobody but a hardware clerk seen the like and he would be pleased if some naturalist would inform him of the name and characteristics of the new bug.

WONDERFUL ROAD RECORDS. FAST TIME MADE BY ROAD KING MYERS.

His Average Time For a Century Run Almost Equal To That Made By The Twenty-Mile Road Champion On Monday Last—Myers The Best Roadster In Canada. Road king Myers is surprised that some of the wheestmen who have repeatedly expressed a desire to meet him in a century race have not accepted his open challenge, issued last week to any rider on the continent. Myers issued his challenge on account of certain articles which appeared in part of the Toronto press in behalf of A. P. Gimper and John Smith, who last year were competitors with Myers in the century competition but were vanquished by the Kingston rider. Neither of these riders has been heard from since Myers' challenge was issued. Had the challenge been accepted, Myers would have raced on Monday last, although not in condition. He will be in Canada only a few days longer, but while here he is open to meet all comers. The race will have to be sanctioned by the C.W.A.

It seems strange that if those riders who have expressed a desire to meet Myers are really in earnest they do not get out on the road and show themselves worthy of running up against the century giant by equalling or lowering his record of 4:58 for a hundred miles. That record still stands as a continental one, and from present indications of faint-hoedness on the part of certain riders looking for notoriety through the merits of others, it is likely to remain in evidence until Myers goes out against it and establishes a new one. Just at this stage Myers does not intend doing this.

Before the road race was pulled off here on Monday last much was expected of Gimper when it was known that he had entered. However, he did not show up well. Thirty riders finished in advance of him. His time for the twenty miles was 1:06:20. In making this he had the advantage of riding two miles on a smooth track and had the assistance of a host of pacers. Myers has a twenty-five mile record over the same road, between Napanee and Kingston, of 1:03. In establishing his record of 4:58 for a hundred miles, Myers' average time for every twenty miles covered was 59:03, which is in itself very close to the twenty-mile record established on Monday last of 57:27. His record performance was wonderful when it is remembered that he covered twenty miles five times over, maintaining an average speed of 59:03 for each twenty miles, or only 2:56 slower than that made for a single twenty miles by Addison, Toronto, in Monday's road race, when he established a Canadian record for that distance.

How many riders are there in Canada, or in fact on the continent who can surpass Myers' remarkable showing of speed, and endure the strain for the same length of time? Few indeed, if any. Myers' time for the twenty-five miles—1:03—when averaged up, shows him to have a twenty mile record of 50:25 min. Of course, in establishing his twenty-five mile record Myers had the advantage of a straight-away course, and was under full headway of speed in starting. He did not have any turns to make nor corners to round; it was on the straight road between Napanee and Kingston. But it must be admitted that the time made was remarkable, and stamps Myers as the best roadster in Canada. His average mile, taking his twenty-five mile record again, was 2:31 1/5, a performance on the road not to be ashamed of. In the one mile professional race at Monday's meet here, a time limit of 2:30 was placed on the event and it required a third go of the professionals, including Angus McLeod, to get down to that. Myers' performance was executed on a rough macadamized road, with stones, ruts, passing vehicles, dogs and other drawbacks to contend against; there was run off on a smooth, fast track.

Distance has no terrors for Myers. He thinks nothing of jogging up to Toronto, completing a century within the time limit, visiting there for a day or two, and repeating the performance on the return trip. It is an old trick of his to wheel up to Napanee and back before breakfast in the morning. To give an idea of how little he thinks of a fifty mile ride it might be mentioned that he wheeled down from Napanee yesterday in an hour and ten minutes to have a pair of new swing pedals fitted to his machine, returning to Napanee in time for supper.

Learned Yesterday The Name Of His Assistant—A Strange Romance. Twelve years ago a young hardware clerk and a friend started on a fishing trip to Kingston Mills. When near Bell's island their skiff encountered a rope fastened to a fishing net. One lifted the rope while the other rowed the skiff past the obstruction. While in the act of doing this they were fired upon from an ambulance. The young hardware clerk received a dozen grains of shot in the left hip, but the greater portion of the charge entered the top streak of the boat. They returned to the city, secured a couple of revolvers and knives and went back to the spot, where they caught sight of their assailant. They fired at his skiff, whereupon he beached it and ran away. They had their revenge by firing a large number of shots into the unoffending skiff and finally sank it. Returning to the fishing net, they pulled it to the surface and cut up about fifty yards of it. Having satisfied themselves that they had secured sufficient revenge they returned to the city.

Time passed away, and until yesterday the young man shot did not know who his assailant was. He is now in business and yesterday he experienced considerable pain from the shot, which has since remained in the flesh and are now working towards the surface. Yesterday he mentioned the fact to a customer of having been shot twelve years ago. Explained as follows, when the customer admitted it was he who fired the shot. He said his net had been robbed and he was lying in ambush waiting for the thieves to return. Upon seeing the two men pulling up the rope on that eventful day he concluded they were about to rob the net and fired upon them. They laughed over the episode and there the matter ended.

Final Schedule Arranged. The third and final round in the local baseball league series will begin on Saturday next. Last evening the executive committee met and arranged the final schedule, the matches to be played each Saturday afternoon: 1, Ponies vs. Beavers; 2, Beavers vs. Princess street; 3, Ponies vs. Princess street; 4, Ponies vs. Beavers; 5, Beavers vs. Princess street; 6, Ponies vs. Princess street. The team winning the greatest number of these matches will win the title. It has been suggested that the teams dropping out keep up practice, play regular matches together and the winning team play the winner of the league. The result would be interesting.
