HE IS THE SAILOR'S MENTOR ON

Varied Duties That Bring Him In Contact With the Crew-He Is a Petty Officer and Is Burdened With Many Responsibilities-His Place In Battle.

after a cruise ashore and finds on the next morning that he has lost his cap or so torn his trousers or any of his other garments that in order to pass the next inspection he must have new ones, he goes below to a little office way down in the hold of the ship and through a grated window tells the nature of his troubles to the yeoman, who sits at the desk inside busy with his account books. If it is a suit or a cap or shoes that he wants, Jack first deposits his money, and when his measure for whatever article he wants is found in the rec-

With all of his virtues, Jack is an improvident fellow, and the government, which pays and feeds him, knows his weaknesses and essays to take care of him. First, it has him keep himself neat at all times or else gives him a chance to sample the ship's bread and water in a little cubby hole called a cell, and this being an established regulation the government furnishes to him the means of keeping

Jack must sew and wash and darn his clothes when they need it, besides applying soap to himself as often as he can and keeping his shoes always clean and shiny. That the means might always be at the sailor's command years ago necessity created a naval storekeeper on board every ship, and tradition gave him the name title merely because his desk is beside that of the paymaster's clerk, that Jack goes for clothes, needles, thread, soap and other small articles. When his needs are of a nature not so purely personal-if, for instance, he is to paint the ship, mend a piece of rigging or perform any one of the hundred or more odd jobs necessary to keep the ship in trun-he goes to the equipment yeoman, the keeper of the stores needed for the ship only, and gets what he wants. But first he must have an order for the articles, and then must sign a receipt for them, for the government, though not stingy, wants to know where every penny goes and for what it is spent.

The engineers' department has a yeoman also, and to him the engineers, though they are commissioned officers, have to go for every article necessary for running the engines, even to the oil used on bearings and cranks. This yeoman has his office next to the engine rooms, and there the same form has to be gone through with, no matter what is wanted. Oils, metal for repairs, tools and parts of machinery are kept in these storerooms, and the engineers' yeoman is keeper of them all.

The pay yeoman has the duty also of dispensing the daily rations to the crew, in order that the sailors may get neither too much nor too little. The sailor does not have to give a receipt for his food, but all that Jack eats is charged against him,

In addition to the duty of dispensing the many articles used on shipboard the yeoman has to make out all requisitions for them when needed, and woe be unto him if he makes a mistake and the ship leaves port short of a supply in any particular. He stands as a sort of a mentor over the sailor, and while there is no rule giving him authority over the sailors' morals yet Jack stands in awe of him. Many a time he refrains from some prank or other that would end in his having to go to the yeoman and explain why certain things had happened to him or to his clothes or to a part of the ship's outfit. He would have to tell the truth, and he knows that he would be soundly and roundly lectured. If the matter was anything serious, the yeoman would have to report him to the captain, and then the sailor would be in trouble. This moral right of the yeoman comes with the fact that he is a petty officer, and one of Jack's of a petty officer and messes with them. He is usually appointed from among the landsmen because of some knowledge which he may possess fitting him for his place. He is first made a second class yeoman and attains his rank as chief of his department by hard work and fitness. He is not supposed to know any of the duties of the seaman or to perform them, but he knows, as does every other naval man, that when a ship goes into battle every man must go to work, so after a little while aboard ship, long before he has become a chief yeoman, he knows his ship

Once a chief yeoman, the aspirant for a petty officer's stripes is as high as he can go. He is above the sailors, but below the warrant officers, and is, as he puts it himself, the middleman. His pay is nearly twice that of the seaman, and his duties are several times more arduous and responsible.—New York Sun.

He Jeopardized the Reputation of Two Generations of His Family. It was evident when the man rapped at the door of the backwoods cabin that he felt that he had a grievance.

"Somethin wrong, stranger?" inquired the man who came in answer to his knock, noticing his excited condition. "Wrong!" exclaimed the stranger. "Wrong! Well, I should think there was! I met a boy about half a mile up the road that I think belongs to you."

"Long. gawky boy, with a coonskin cap?" asked the man in the cabin. "That's the one," returned the stranger.

"He had a gun and was evidently out after squirrels."

"Big, old fashioned, muzzle loading gun?" suggested the native. "Yes; a big gun about half a foot longer than he is," answered the stranger. "I didn't stop to see whether it was a muzzle loader or not, but I guess it was. It didn't look new enough for anything else." "That was Ike all right enough," said the native. "What d'ye want of him?" "I want him thrashed," replied the stranger, with emphasis. "I want him thrashed good and hard so that he'll have a little sense." "That's takin a purty big contract, stranger," said the native doubtfully. "He's a right lively boy, an there ain't any one in these parts has licked him yet, except his dad, which is me." "Well, you're the one that I want to thrash him."

"Oh, that's differ'nt! I thought mebbe you was goin to try it yourself. I don't mind lickin him when it's needful, jest so's to keep him in line an teach him that the ole man is some consider'ble yet. What's he been doin?"

"He shot at me as I came along the road," replied the stranger. "Sure about that?" asked the native doubtfully. "Sure? Of course I'm sure. He yelled out that I'd scared a squirrel he was after, and he was going to wing me just to teach me to keep out of the way. Then he took deliberate aim and fired.

"An you're here to kick about it!" exclaimed the native. "Well, don't you worry no more about that boy, stranger. I'll tan him good an plenty, an don't you forgit it. Aimed at you delib'rate an never hit you, did he? Why, shootin like that'll disgrace the hull family. Glad you spoke of it, stranger. Mrs. Dalton Proctor, Vermont. Artillery Practice.

Canadian Military Gazette. The field artillery practice camp, which was held at Deseronto last year, is to be abandoned this year. The reason given for this is that the range is not considered se fe for the twelve pounders, and that it has been so reported on by Lieut. Col. Montizambert, inspector of artillery, and Lieut . Col Drury, R C A.

Mrs. T. A Howard, Aylmer, Que.; Mrs.

R. Proctor, Miss Proctor, Mr. Proctor,

When it is recalled with what a flourish of trumpets the Deseronto range was "discovered" last year, and how it was considered an ideal range which would be used for all time to come, it seems somewhat strange that is should be so quickly condemned. This range was fitted up with a moving cavalry target and, in fact, "all the delicacies of the sesson." The chief difficulty is alleged to be that with the new twelve-pounders, especially in firing at the moving targets, when the outer flank guns may be thrown round to such an oblique angle as to send the case or shell far to the flank.

As there are but half a dozen batteries, out of sixteen, armed with the twelvepounder, it seems strange that the ninepounder is not used for this meeting, as any practice will be better than none. Fire discipline, etc., would be equally It is hoped by artillery officers that some decision will be arrived at and promulgated without delay.

CAN'T EAT.

FOOD is the fuel that feeds the fires of life.
Digestion is the process that turns the fuel into energy. Few possess perfect digestion. If your digestion is imperfect, if you cannot eat what you like without discomfort, if you cannot eat when you ought to eat, the time has come when you should take Dr. Ward's Blood and Nerve Pills. Hunger is the best Sauce. Take these Pills and get hungry. You may eat what you want if you take Dr. Ward's Pills.

WHAT THEIR MERITS ARE:

My system was entirely rejuvenated by the use of Dr. Ward's Blood and Nerve Pills, and I consider them a marvellous strength and nerve builder for dyspepsia. I was so sick and miserable that I seemed to have no ife or energy left in me. I suffered so at times that I thought death would be better for me. I had tried Doctors and different kinds of medicines, but all failed to do me any good. I am in every way now a well woman, and have been for months. Before using these Pills I was so sick that I could not keep anything in my stomach. I was under the opinion that dyspepsia could not be cured, but now I am satisfied it can be cured, for I am able to eat like any healthy woman and feel better in every way. They have built me up also, - I now weigh several pounds more than I ever did before. In conclusion, I would advise every woman afflicted with poor digestion to give Dr. Ward's Pills

TREMBLED LIKE A LEAF

A young lady prostrated with nervousness and heart trouble restored to perfect health by MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS.

THERE are too a nany pale faces, palpitating hearts, weak, nervous, run down oonstitutions among the young women of this generation. More nerve force, more rich blood, more vital energy for the heart is what they need, and Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills is the very remedy that meets all the requirements necessary to give them bounding health.

"To prove these statements we give an account of her daughter's cure, supplied us by Mrs. Jas. Scott, 221 Emerald Street, Hamilton, Ont .: "Five years ago my daughter had a severe spell of sickness and has been an invalid ever since. She had no strength and could not sleep at night, often having to sit in a rocking chair all night on account of the shortness of breath. She suffered greatly with palms in the heart as well as palpitation, and was very nervous and easily startled, so much so that any noise or excitement would make her tremble like a leaf.

"She commenced taking Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills and has now taken three boxes in all. Constant improvement has been the record of this medicine in her case. She finds no difficulty in walking down town and back, something she was unable to do for many months. She sleeps well, eats well and is not troubled with the distressing shortness of breath which afflicted her before she took the pills. I am thankful we tried this valuable medicine as the results in my daughter's case have been gratifying in the highest degree." (Sgd.) MRS JAS. SCOTT. Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are
