FACING A NEW CRISIS. The condition of the Cubans, and the relations Americans have received of them during the war, give no promise that they can be made a self-governing people. The pictures of them, of their oppression and suffering under the Spanish, have been sadly misleading.

A year ago they were deemed worthy of American sympathy in their efforts towards independence, and the war was the outcome of a desire to give them a chance to rule themselves, to set up a republic and manage it by the highest form of government. Now these Cubans are despised by the men who went to their rescue. They offered the United States troops little assistance in their invasion of the island in order to free it. They wanted to feed upon American rations rather than fight. They went on strike, the only division, under Garcia, that put in an appearance at Santiago, because, at the fall of that city, they were not permitted to pillage it.

Since then the repugnance to everything Cuban has been growing in the American breast. The average Cuban is discovered to be a worthless fellow, without energy, without ambition, and without moral stamina, but with an instinct for crime which makes him wholly unfit for any responsible position. The last and culminating act of which he has been guilty is the plundering of the camps at Santiago which had been temporarily vacated by the troops before their return home. Fancy the extent of this raid, which terminated in the carrying away of tents, arms, ammunition, everything on which they could lay their hands! Fancy the sweeping nature of this scourge when the soldiers' boots and stockings in one place were taken and the men had to march into town barefooted.

There is one clear inference to draw from this statement of facts. It is that military government must have been pretty lax when the stores of the army were practically abandoned to the thieves. These Cubans had been tested and found wanting. They were denounced by everyone who had any experience with them. And yet hundreds of soldiers are marched out of their encampment, leaving everything they possessed behind them, unguarded, unprotected, as a temptation to the wayward Cubans. Is there anything like this on record? Is there anything so suggestive of incompetence or command?

The Spanish were looked upon as a cruel race before the war began. They have risen high in the estimation of the American people, and are deserving of their sympathy. The evidence now goes to show that the Spanish went further than perhaps the Americans will go in giving to the Cubans local government. The cabinet that has for some time directed Cuban affairs is composed almost entirely of natives of men who have been active contenders for Cuban rule, and shown themselves to be best fitted for the places which they hold. But behind them Spain has had to give the force of its imperial government.

The United States stands face to face with a new problem—how to govern Cuba in the most satisfactory way. The junta has been organized, and has carried on its operations in the United States, with a view to becoming the controlling power in Cuba, but it is doomed to disappointment. The Americans will rule the island as it does every state of the union. There will be some difficulty in defining local powers and local authority, but it is evident that the Cubans will not figure very high in the arrangements. It is doubtful if they will have the status which Spain offered them, and which they disdainfully refused.

ALIEN LABOUR LAWS.

Hon. Mr. Dingley, one of the delegates to the Quebec conference, has been induced to talk on the alien labour law with which his name has been connected, and he gives expression to thoughts that seem to be somewhat new. The general impression of the labour law is that it was framed and passed and put into force with the object of keeping Canadian workmen out of the States, and out of the employment to which they were called. It is the fortune of the average Canadian mechanic to be skilled in the use of tools, to be so trained for all round service as to become very valuable to his employer, and thus to find favour among the American capitalists. The Canadian who sought employment abroad usually found it; sometimes he was invited to cross the lines, as he is now, to accept of employment for which he had special qualifications. It was felt that at these the alien labour law is aimed. But Mr. Dingley says that such is not the case. "We should be very glad to admit Canadian labourers into the United States," said he, "but, of course, it is not possible for us to make special legislation, barring out the labourers of other countries and admitting those of Canada. You have the remedy in your own hands. Pass laws keeping out undesirable immigrants and we shall be very glad to remove the restrictions. We have laws which keep out pauper labour which come over from Europe to our ports, but in Canada you let anybody in, and we found that our restrictions were being circumvented by the immigrants coming to Canada and then coming in across the border. So we put our alien labour law on the statute books. When you keep this class of labour out of the country as we are keeping it out, then there will be no longer any necessity for our alien labour law, and it will be abolished."

Mr. Dingley is an authority on the subject, and his explanation will be gladly received. He is active in politics, and a journalist, a maker as well as a reflector of public sentiment, and no man is more influential in the legislative halls of his native country. His may be a revelation upon the point in question, and it may be means of removing some of the misunderstanding that has occurred between Canada and the United States. If the whole difficulty is one of immigration it should be easily corrected. Canada is as anxious as the United States to see that those who are helped to its shores are such as will maintain a healthy citizenship and contribute to the national growth of the country.

The alien labour law, in name, is misleading. No one would judge it correctly by its title. There is nothing about it suggestive of immigration. There is little about it that reconciles it to the purposes of its author. Nor has it been enforced with the tenderness of a corrective of immigration influence. The Canadians who have suffered most in consequence of it have all been of the objectionable class referred to by Mr. Dingley. If the Canadians have not been discriminating enough in regard to the people settling in the country rather than against the masses against labour rather than only some kinds of it, and they have some reason to make of their laws if they do not mean to Barry to continue a misuse of them.

EDITORIAL VIEWS.

Lindsay, too, has abolished the ward system. Next! It is announced that one party will spend about $80,000 on the plebiscite campaign. And to do the most good, or evil, this great heap of money, in the coin of the realm, will get in motion on election day. Here is something to think about.

Sir Hibbert Tupper is selected to lead the Conservative party in British Columbia, in case of a new election, because he is a good fighter. The new leader of the liberals is rather fond of a scrap himself, so that Sir Hibbert's fine qualities will be abundantly developed.

The very latest—and doing its work in Quebec—is that the plebiscite is a Protestant scheme, designed to do injury to the church. Under the act no wine can be procured, and as wine is needed for the masses the consequences would be very serious. The man who invented this yarn is equal to any emergency.

Hon. A. S. Hardy will present the case for Ontario before the Quebec conference on the timber regulations. The Americans want them modified, but they are provincial, cannot be affected by the dominion government, and are bound to stay. They are the only action against the discrimination of the Americans.

On dit that there will be another election at once, in British Columbia, on federal lines, with Hon. Joseph Martin and Sir Hibbert Tupper leading the forces. It is a humiliation to the Tappers to have to fight for existence in a petty provincial contest, but it has been so ordered. Terrorism is at a very low ebb just now. The closer relations established between Canada and the mother country by the preferential tariff have a thoroughly practical aspect which must be studied carefully by business men in both countries, says the Globe. In both Canada and Great Britain there is need of a more careful study of markets. British merchants and manufacturers have succeeded heretofore by virtue of their superior trade policy, but even that will not enable them to ignore the special wants of their customers. The dominion government has opened some splendid opportunities for trade, and it rests with the British manufacturers and exporters to take advantage of them. To Have Another Excursion. Capt. Craig says he will arrange to run another excursion down to Ogdensburg next week on account of over 300 being left behind this morning.

MARINE INTELLIGENCE.

The Latest News About Vessels and the Port of Kingston. The SS. Rosemont and consort leave for Chicago to-night. The tug Thompson left for Oswego last evening with two barges to load coal. For the first time in three weeks the dross in the boiler of the steamer Columbia were cleaned out to-day. More than two thirds of the tubes were checked with soot.

Capt. James Stone, Cleveland, Ohio, has been appointed supervising inspector of steam vessels for the ninth district. This district includes the St. Lawrence river. During the coming winter the steamer New York's machinery will be overhauled and an attempt made to increase her speed. If needs be a new engine will be added.

The new whaleback steamer Alexander McLaughlin, according to her officers' opinion, is a faster and a grain carrying vessel. She is a greater success at carrying ore. Capt. H. Eford, of the steamer Corican, will command the steamer Toronto of the R & O navigation company when she comes out. F. M. Hapburn will go as steward of her.

On Wednesday second mate Benesville, of the steamer Cuba, fell overboard and was lost in the Detroit river. He was twenty-five years old, and lived on Isle Perre, near Montreal. Last week the steamer Spartan caused a slight injury to one of the C. & N. locks when passing through. On this last up trip she was held in the lock until the damages, amounting to $10, were paid over.

The tug James A. Walker with a coal tow left Charlotte yesterday afternoon at three o'clock for this port. The sea on the way was too heavy and she was forced to turn back, but will reach here this afternoon. Touched at Swift & Co's wharf—Steamer Bohemian, Toronto to Montreal; steamer Corsican, Montreal to Toronto; steamer Hamilton, Montreal to Hamilton; steamer Grandoll, Charlottetown to Alexandria Bay; steamer Caspian for Ogdensburg.

BACK FROM IRELAND.

Police Constable Megarry Returns From Five Weeks' Vacation. James Megarry, member of the city police force, returned home yesterday after a five weeks' visit to his native country, the Emerald Isle. It is some fifteen years since officer Megarry last saw Ireland, and his trip was started with happy anticipations, which were fully realized. He sailed from Montreal on the Beaver line SS. Winnipeg, and after a pleasant trip across, which was free from the inconveniences of storms, he landed at Londonderry. From there he went direct to his father's home at Hillsboro and spent some days with his parents, who are in good health and comfortably located on a large farm. The sight of his old home was a treat to the visitor, and recalled many happy incidents of his boyhood days. He is still satisfied that Ireland is the fairest spot on the face of the globe, and he thinks the time is coming when this truth will be demonstrated to the whole world. The island this year has grown fields and abundant crops, which cannot be seen in this country, and the farmers are enjoying a rich harvest. During his absence he travelled quite extensively, visiting many parts of Ireland and England. He reached Droonore, when the gooseberry fair was in full swing. Although Irish born he was amused to see the men flocking to the fair with the home grown ash, or, in other words, the potato, under their arms. This year, however, the fair passed over without occasion to use the Irish curlew. He was greatly impressed with the beauty of the live stock at the exhibition. There were sheep there which would rejoice the Canadian farmer to see. Cattle, horses and pigs also looked to be in perfect condition. At Belfast he took an interest in watching the ship building, which is a feature of industry of that place. He also visited Liverpool and other parts of England, in which visits he was accompanied by one of his brothers. He was loathe to leave at the termination of his pleasant stay, but always equal to his duty, he boarded the SS. Lake Huron at Londonderry at the beginning of last week for the return home. The trip back to Canada was a rough one, but he only lost half a meal, and the passengers were served with four meals a day. He speaks highly of the service on both steamers, the meals and sleeping apartments being of excellent. On the way up the river St. Lawrence the Lake Huron ran aground below Quebec, but was released without much difficulty. The steamer landed in Montreal early yesterday morning.

ANSBACH THE FOOTER.

Pleasant Entertainment At The Yacht Club House Last Evening. An entertainment at the Kingston yacht club house last evening for the members called them out in large numbers, for it was a variation from the usual song and talk concert. Ansbach, the German magician, was present and his mystifying tricks were both amusing and a study. He was the chief attraction of the evening. Besides being a superior trick artist, he is an amusing speaker, and gave a double entertainment. His numerous sleight of hand tricks with cards were puzzlers. Single handed and chest to his audience, he proved that motion was quicker than vision. He performed the mysterious tricks without mechanism, but with a confidence and accuracy that was marvellous. His magical feats were done with cards, handkerchiefs, etc. One of the striking tricks was the production of a glass bowl filled with water, and containing a gold fish, from a black ink handkerchief. Besides Ansbach's entertainment several members contributed solos and selections on the piano. The yacht club expects to engage the great magician for an evening in the Grand opera house.

Funeral of Miss Sinnett. The funeral of the late Miss Sinnett took place from the family residence, Johnson street, this morning, and a large cortege followed to the remains to St. Mary's cathedral, where solemn requiem mass was said by Rev. Fr. O'Brien. The members of the C.M.B.A. and the cadets turned out almost in full numbers. After service in the church the body was buried in St. Mary's cemetery. The pallbearers were F. Daly, T. Cunningham, P. Aikins, J. G. Murphy, Mr. Donohoe, and Louis Gaudin, members of the C.M.B.A. In the procession were noticed a number of leading citizens and several residents of the township of Glengarry.

ACMITS HIS ENTITY.

Massachusetts Minister Wanted For Alleged Murder, Located at H.-Montreal. Kanihloops, B.C., Aug. 26.—Rev. J. W. Thompson, minister of the Protestant Episcopal church in Montreal, is expected to arrive here on Monday morning. He is the first minister to arrive in Montreal since the night of July 20th. He immediately took up his residence in the Goddard house, Seymour street. Thompson was accompanied by his wife, about thirty years of age. He gave people to understand that he was a Baptist minister, but appeared more anxious about getting a situation as collector than about getting into ministerial work.

Thompson threatened to bring action against the newspapers for publishing the reports. He admits that the deaths occurred as stated in the newspapers, but denies that there was foul play. Thompson says that he was at one time employed in premier Hardy's office, in the executive building, in Montreal. The following despatch was received here: Boston, Mass., Aug. 21, (10 p.m.)—The suspicion against the Rev. J. W. Thompson continues to be the talk of the people. No warrant is out for Thompson's arrest so far as is known. Inquests were held on the bodies, but verdicts have not yet been rendered as the coroner is awaiting results.

Thompson's many creditors here are after him to-day. Thompson appeared in the small debtors court in answer to the charge of not paying plumber McClagan for work done on his house. The case was postponed for a few days. During the hearing of the case Mrs. Thompson sat by her husband in court. Mrs. Thompson says that she is positive that the first Mrs. Thompson died by taking a dose of poison and that she got the poison out of her (the defendant Mrs. Thompson's) grip. She also admits that she was suspicious when her boy died.

THE STORM IN THE WEST.

A Lively Time Generally And Much Loss of Property. Columbus, Ind., Aug. 24.—Two persons were killed and several hurt to-day in a panic at the county fair. The fair was being held in a grove near the city, and when the storm came there was a rush to get to an open field near by. Mrs. Samuel Cooper was trampled by the crowd that she died. Mrs. Cooper had a two-year-old baby in her arms, which escaped unharmed. Charles Haymen was struck on the head by a falling tree and killed. Peter Andrews received serious internal injuries. Solomon Turner had an arm broken. Walter Eganke was internally injured. Trees were blown down in every direction, exhibition tents and booths were demolished. Marineville, Wis., Aug. 24.—A hurricane struck Egg Harbor, Green Bay, Wis. night, the schooners Pride of Milwaukee and Norton lying at anchor were capsized, and Neal Lehman and another man were drowned. The wind also blew down a warehouse on the dock and unroofed small buildings. Pottsville, Pa., Aug. 24.—In a storm lightning burned out the converter on a trolley car. The passengers were panic-stricken and jumped out. Benjamin E. Peare, sixty-two years old, alighted on his head and was killed. Mrs. Sarah Mumhall had her skull fractured and a boy had his arm broken.

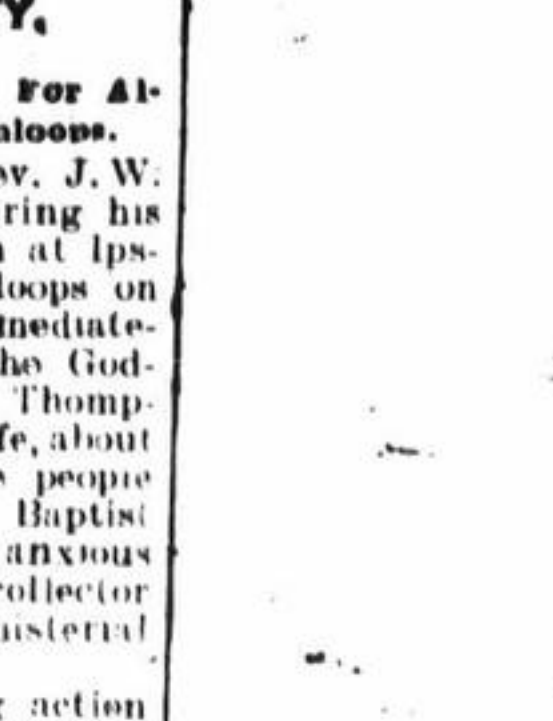

ENGLISH IN GUAM.

A Unique Inscription—Knowledge of the Language Might Have Been Greater. While a large American whaling fleet was cruising in the North Pacific an enterprising Portuguese at San Juan d'Apra (Guam) kept a house of entertainment and as an attraction to visitors from the whaling ships a board erected in front of his house bore this inscription on a sheet of paper: Manuel de Souza, who father for multiplication of many years and very long time steward to English and American ships with discharge of enormous responsibility from all captains I have good beer English for sale for fifty cent one bottle, also several mulchquet to ride with person most unacquainted for severely small charge. Those female attendant who myself employ in this house I guarantee their respectability. Never has English and American captain been robbed or steal the watch or dollar in this house by any female. British consul, Mr. Webb, of Manila, know exceedingly of my character respectability. I have several papers thereof to show my unimpaired good conduct also my father Manuel de Souza.—PEDRO DE SOUZA.

A BUSY SEASON.

The Kingston Baseball Club Has Many Engagements. The fall of the season seems to be manager Gallagher's harvest. The Kingston baseball club has engagements to play at that place, and the early part of September is more than filled. September 25th the team plays Toronto Athletic club two games, one on K.A.A. grounds, and completes the labor day engagement with a game with the same club at Lake Ontario park under the auspices of the Foresters. Negotiations are pending for the next day, September 26th, with the Ottawa western league team on K.A.A. grounds and Thursday finds the local players fighting their season's rivals on the home grounds at Ogdensburg. On the 27th and 28th of September the celebrated Cuban Giants have been positively engaged for two games, both to occur on the athletic grounds. With such a programme certainly manager Gallagher and the athletic association should be not only commended for their push, but should be deservedly patronized. The team that went up to-day was thus composed: Elliott, C. Walsh, J. J. Conley, Ed. Dehany, C. Hughes, J. C. Kennedy, S. McCaig, H. Easton, P. J. McLaughlin, and T. Sullivan. Sullivan was unable to get away, so Walsh was put in the box in his place. To Spend Year In Germany. Prof. MacNaughton will spend a year in Germany studying the latest phases of German thought in regard to Greek literature and mythology. He will thus be able to more richly endow the young theologians of Queen's when he returns duty. Case of Neuvigle. There seems to be an epidemic of neuralgia at present prevailing the city. A great many persons are complaining of it and physicians say they are called upon to treat many cases. The London Graphic expresses the fear that even if the Quebec conference arrives at an agreement on the difficult problem before it the American senate will oppose the work, unless a strong public opinion asserts itself.

A PECULIAR STORM.

At Grand Hotel, Calabash Springs, For Week Ending August 24th. NAPANEE, Aug. 26.—The weather for past day or two has been showery. On Tuesday forenoon a very heavy rain fell, and on Wednesday night a most peculiar thunder and lightning storm prevailed. The thunder was a continual roar for several hours, and the lightning kept the heavens aglow for more than an hour. The rain was not at all general, as some farmers living a few miles out state that not enough rain fell in their vicinity to lay the dust. Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Graham left yesterday for a short visit with friends in Rochester, N.Y. E. McLaughlin and daughter, Miss Geraldine, are spending a few days with relatives in Toronto. Miss Lona said the storm was out of her spirit coming, and that she considered it a warning. The report that he was dead, circulated in the early part of the week, is happily not true. Henry Knowles, New York, whose wife and other members of his family perished in the Bourgeois disaster, is in Halifax seeking to show that the disaster was due to negligence on the part of the commander. He consulted Captain Smith, Douglas and Anderson, who conducted the Crossby's inquiry. Captain Smith said the Bourgeois was out of her proper course, and that commander had violated the law regarding the rate of speed in heavy weather. Arthur's blood dried reef at Redden's.
