Tine Game of Baseball Between The Bome Team And Cuban Giants-A Jolly Crowd of Ball Players Are The Visitors-Brilliant Play Marked The Game.

Kingston has the baseball fever very bad. Those who do not talk about base ball discourse upon the merits of prohibition, and that class, it might be remarked, do not go to baseball events. It is rather late in the season for baseball fever to develop, as people associate the game with fans, ice-cold lemonade and scorching hot weather. Nevertheless, the game is none the less interesting though the season is a ittle advanced. Citizens are just awakenng to a realization of the fact that the city possesses a team that can play good ball. In fact, there are also several junior teams in the locality that put up a good game, though they receive poor support for their pains. Other cities would boast

The management of the Kingston team is to be commended upon its efforts to bring to the city for the amusement of lovers of the game of games strong teams that know how to put up a pleasing game. Yesterday's match with the Caban Giants attracted a fairly large crowd to the athletic grounds, and doubtless had the weather not been so chilly the attendance would have been much greater. It was Kingston's day at the bat, and the home boys made the best of the event by scoring a victory. Their playing compared very favorably with that of the strangers and showed the result of constant and arduous practice. Ball players are not developed in a week. It takes months of training.

At three o'clock promptly the teams took the field, the Cuban Giants going to the bat first. They were retired without a run to their credit. The same treatment was accorded the Kingstons, and the secoud innings proved a repetition of the first, brilliant play being conspicuously missing, barring a clever running catch by Connolly, and a long throw from McCaig to Debaney, who in turn passed it over to Herndon, retiring the eide. In the first half of the third innings Connolly caught out two men in succession and Sullivan retired the third. In the second half Connolly was the first man to reach the home plate, though Dehaney was on the way there in the first innings, but was caught at the trick. Elliott followed Councily, scoring the second run. In all the Kingstone scored three runs in this inninge. The Cuban Giants scored their first run in the fifth innings, being warmly applauded for the event. In the first half of the seventh innings the Cuban Gants scored two runs on a wild throw from the field. The first three men to the bat in the first half of the eighth innings were retired before reaching first base. In this innings Kingstons scored twice. The visitors reduced the majority against them by making four points in the ninth innings.

not playing ball at their best. W. Miller, short stop, made a very humorous coach. His humorism and goodnatured "jollying" were very much en-

The Captain Speaks.

PRITON, Sept. 12 - (To the Editor); In your issue of September 10th your statement of the collision of the steamers Alexandria and Columbian does not contain the facts. The steamer Alexandria was struck by steamer Columbian while making the Ganance as wharf. The Alexandria did not afterwards refuse to take the Columbian's lines, nor did she refuse to allow people to cross her decks. The Alexandria was not backing up at the time of the accident, but was going ahead. The reason the Alexandria suffered most was that the steamer Columbian struck her bow on. The rest of the statement is untrue and unjust to the steamer Alexandria and her officers. - E. B. SHITH, Cap-
