ROOSEVELT AT HOME.

HOW AND WHERE THE LEADER OF THE ROUGH RIDERS LIVES.

Domestic Life of the Man In Whom the Political Boomers Are Taking a Lively Interest-Big House Filled With Children, Books and Guns,

A many sided man is Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, organizer and commander of the rough riders, and so it is quite natura! to expect that the gallant officer in the field and the same man at home would be two quite different individuals, and so he is. We have heard much about how he Miss Wheeler has been nursing in the fever behaved during the Santiago campaign. where he gained a national reputation for fearless bravery, but of bow and where he lives little has been said.

In view of the fact that Colonel Roose velt is being talked of as a candidate for high political honors, not only his public service, but his domestic life becomes in teresting. Home means a good deal to Colonel Roosevelt, much more than most people suspect. It was not the absence o' family ties which led him to rush to the front. His family ties ard many and

In the first place, Colonel Roosevelt has a hig and interesting family. He has five children, ranging in age from Alice, who is 14, down to Quentin, who has just be gun to learn to walk since his father came home from the war. Three are boys and two are girls. Mrs. Roosevelt is a hand some young matron who is devoted to her children and proud of her dashing hus band. She is a gifted, well educated wo man, used to good society and the leader of a circle composed of refined people whose doings are not recorded in the so called "society columns."

Being a man of wealth, Colonel Roose volt has several residences, but his home is always where his family is. Just at | present home ineans to Colonel Roosevelt a big, comfortable country house near Oyster Bay, on Long Island. It is a large. homelike mansion of three stories and 30 rooms. The first story is of brick; those above are shingled in the style of the old Dutch and English house, surmounted by towering gables and enormous chimneys.

The house rests like a crown on the crest of Sagamore hill. On every side the grounds slope away to the woods, thence down through forest and meadow to the bay, which nearly encircles the Roosevelt property, leaving it on a peninsula, with a magnificent panoramic view of the en tire bay and its headlands, Long Island sound and the Connecticut coast stretch ing for miles, a thin strip of green em broidery resting on a strip of blue-deep azure blue-dotted with sails and steam

Above the mantel and over each door are magnificent heads of elk, deer, mountain sleep and rams, antel pe and other trophies of Colo nel Reosevelt's skill as a hunter. The floors are concred with the skins of bears, mountain lions, panthers, buffalo and other animals, hastened to an untimely death by the colonel. Nearly all of them are

BRAVE MISS WHELLER.

"Fighting Joe's" Daughter and the Work She Has Done.

The only young woman nurse to go into

Santiago directly after its capture who was not a trained nurse and not an immune was Miss Annie L. Wheeler, daughter of "Fighting Joe." Brave and heroic was the work Miss Wheeler did there, facing yellow fever and other forms of disease. When the troops came north, she went along with them, busier than ever on the sick laden transports. There was no chaplain on the steamer, so when some of the brave boys gave up the fight Miss Wheeler read the burial service over the canvas shrouded forms before they were committed to the deep. Since her return stricken camp at Montauk Point. Isn't that a record to be proud of? When General Wheeler told his family that he was going to war again, his daughter Annie said if he did she would go too She Laughed as she said it, but she meant every word. And go she did in spite of the earnest protests of her father and other members of the family. The government refused to accept her as a nurse, so she sailed for Cubn and applied directly to Clara Barton. Even after be-

She rode straight to the front, and there found her brother ill in a tent. She was nursing him when General Wheeler found her. He was furious and wanted to ship her right back home, but Miss Wheeler did not intend to go back, and so a compromise was effected. She was to go into Santiago after nightfall and put herself under Miss Barton's protection.

In appearance Miss Wheeler Is slight and graceful, with blue eyes and waving brown hair. She is a society girl of the most charming southern type and has many warm friends and admirers in Washington, where she and her sisters are decided factors in the official life of the capital. Her quiet fashlon of working toward her purpose shows in itself her dislike of any kind of sensation or noteriety concerning herself. Her story is a beautiful onenormal, exquisit in its self secriticing love and devotion to her father
