SPEEDY CURE BY CUTICURA.

My case of Eczema was of about seven years' standing. It was of the scaly, itchy kind. I sometimes thought my face and arms were on fire. My face was full of large, white scales, and my head was full of sores, in fact I was disgusted, I was ashamed to go in company. I took five bottles of CUTICURA. After the first, washed my face and arms with CUTICURA SOAP, put on CUTICURA Ointment, and found great relief instantly, and I got a clean face again, thanks to the CUTICURA PREPARATIONS. You may do as well with this.

PRINCIPAL GRANT'S PLEA.

TO CONNECT ENGLAND AND IRELAND BY TUNNEL.

The Scheme Possesses Interest for Canada. It would be a shorter route to the Atlantic Passage to Newfoundland—it would unquestionably be a Success—Opportunities May Soon Take Hold of It.

Principal Grant, of Queen's University, has written to the London Spectator a very strong plea in favor of connecting Great Britain and Ireland by means of a tunnel. This project, which has occupied the attention of British statesmen for some time, possesses a greater interest for Canadians than many may at first sight suppose.

Dr. Grant regards this project as connecting the two islands by physical as well as by political ties as essential to complete imperial unity, and he points to Canada's expenditures for the securing of the unity of her provinces as an example to the people of the old land. Canada, he says, has spent $50,000,000 to unite her maritime provinces with old Canada by the material bond of a railway, and when British Columbia demanded two or three times the amount to build another railway across "the impenetrable rocky wilderness north of lake Superior, the uninhabited plains further west, and then a wide sea of mountains, as its condition of union," Canada assented to the demand, though wise men believed that she had connected to carry out the impossible. Dr. Grant is able at this early stage in the history of the country, and notwithstanding the extravagance and corruption that attended the construction of the national highway, to assert that the line has paid the dominion—not in cash, it is true, but in assets more indispensable to the nation. Similarly, the construction of the submarine link between Great Britain and Ireland seems to be an absolute necessity as an imperial bond between the two islands, where the title deeds of the empire are, and where they must always remain.

If this tunnel were constructed, Principal Grant points out, the nearest British terminus to a short passage across the Atlantic would be on the west coast of Ireland—probably at Galway—and Green bay, on the east coast of Newfoundland, would be the western terminus of the ocean passage. The distance between these two points is only 1,700 miles, or three days' steaming for a first class Canarder. Thus, 1,200 miles would be cut off the ocean passage, as compared with the distance now traversed on the rotary Atlantic when passage is taken by way of New York. Railway connections can be supplied by building a branch line of forty miles length to Green bay from the most northerly station on the Newfoundland transatlantic line, which has just been constructed across that island by Mr. Reid. This hours only would thus be occupied in taking passengers and mails across that island to Port aux Basques, and after six hours of steaming across the rotary Atlantic, they would reach Sydney, Cape Breton, the terminus of the Canadian Intercolonial railway, by which access would be given with all haste to the other great lines of railway in Canada and the United States.

Thus the new route here outlined will cut the present ocean passage in two, and it is almost sure to be adopted by some enterprising association of capitalists at no distant date. That it would be a success there can scarcely be any doubt, for few ocean passages would care to undergo the tedious and sickness incident to the longer passage if this one were available. Dr. Grant does well to point out the importance of completing the link by providing for a tunnel between England and Ireland, and by making the eastern part of this phenomenally short and advantageous ocean route on the west coast of Ireland.

RECEPTION TO ABERDEEN.

Official Addresses to Lord and Lady Aberdeen and the Premier.

The committee in charge of the reception to be tendered their excellencies, lord and lady Aberdeen and the premier, on the occasion of their visit to the city next Tuesday, had their second meeting yesterday afternoon in the council chamber, mayor Livingston presiding, and these members present: Aldermen Shaw, Cooke, Minnie, White, Kent, Ryan, and Messrs. John McIntyre, Edw. J. B. Paine, principal Grant and B. M. Britton.

Principal Grant gave notice that the local branch of the women's national council would present an address to lady Aberdeen, which would be read with the other farewell addresses on Tuesday afternoon at 8 o'clock. He reported that the address for lord Aberdeen was prepared, and the one to be read to Sir Wilfrid Laurier would be ready to day.

The details of the afternoon and evening proceedings were then considered. The guard of honor, which, according to custom, must be ordered by the governor-general, through the adjutant-general, will receive their excellencies at the train, and will be inspected by lord Aberdeen. At the entrance to the city hall the cadets from the Royal military college will be stationed in a body, and will also be inspected by his excellency. The distinguished visitors will be drawn from their special car to the city hall in carriages, and after the inspection of the corps in attendance, they will proceed to the mayor's office to await the opening of the meeting in connection with Queen's university. They will be met at the outer depot by the mayor, principal Grant, mayor Livingston and representative aldermen.

For the evening reception both Ontario and city halls will be luxuriously decorated, the work being already commenced. The platform of the city hall will be furnished with an elegant parlor suite, with suitable drapery overhead. The 14th P. W. O. riflemen will apply music during the evening, and a request will be made to have the cadets line the sides of the hall when the farewell addresses are being presented.

A reception committee was appointed to introduce the guests on their arrival, and the ladies will be requested to appear in afternoon costumes. On motion by John McIntyre, city clerk Drennan was appointed director of ceremonies for the day.

Reynor was in good condition for today's game.

Much was expected of the Granites' George Loy, "our George" of years past in the scrimmage with Montreal City. He learned the game here and ought to give a good account of himself on the field. The Montreal footballists came up full of confidence of winning, if their talk could be taken as a criterion. However, Granites were prepared for the meeting and decided not to play at a hide and seek game with their opponents.

According to the Journal some of the college players say they would not be surprised if the Granites beat Montreal in Kingston. The way that the Montreals talked to college about Granites they seemed to be afraid of them.

Porter, Granites' star wing man, was mated with Caldecott in today's game. Caldecott is a light weight, and judging from the manner in which Porter handled his heavy opponent in the Montreal game, he will have an easy game today.

Queen's association football club elected the following officers: Honorary president, N. R. Carmichael, M. A.; president, M. Henderson; vice-president, A. W. Dunkley; secretary-treasurer, O. Skelton, captain, J. F. Miller; vice captain, M. Henderson.

"Colo." Metcalfe has purchased a new outfit of football togs, and appeared in them today for the first time. The new togs do not include a pair of padded pants. He will still wear the pants that have gone through so many struggles and bear the marks of hard usage.

The Montreal team that goes into the field this afternoon will be composed thus: Back, Lynch; halves, R. Macdonough, H. Macdonough, Fry; quarter, Jack; scrimmage, Low, King, Hyde; wings, Last, Molson, Masie, Caldecott, Barclay, Maxwell, Porteous; spare man, Crawford, Mooney.

The Montreal footballists arrived about midnight in the special sleeping car. Some of them remained in the car until nine o'clock this morning, when they were around for breakfast. Others left the car upon arrival and took rooms at the British-American hotel, at which place the team made its headquarters.

The Granite management met in C. R. Webster's office last night and located the players for today's game thus: Back, Reynor; halves, McEae, Hamilton, Metcalfe; quarter, Dalton; outside wing, Porter; young inside, Rankin, Varney, Elliott, Dohany, Etherington; scrimmage, Hazlett, Mile, Chown. Spare man, quarter, Pannell; wings, C. Clark, J. Clark, Gales, Reid and Murray. The choice is a good one, and this aggregation will prove stronger than the team which the Montreals met in the last game with the Granites.

In spite of the decisive defeat of Ottawa college by Montreal last Saturday, there are any number of people who predict that college will be in again for a look at the championship. They argue it out this way: Montreal to beat Granites in Kingston, college to do the same both in Kingston and Ottawa, then college to win from Montreal in Ottawa. All this is in the range of possibility, but will it come out that way? However, attention is drawn to an old adage which used to adorn the public school books in our younger days. It concerned a certain woman going to market with a basket of eggs on her head, and figuring in her mind the many things she would purchase with the proceeds of the sale of the eggs. She stubbed her toe, down fell the basket and the eggs were all smashed.

RING UP ON TIME.

A Long Standing Complaint Revived—Why Cannot This Ache Of Rights be Ended?

Manager Losser, of the Grand opera house, certainly goes to considerable trouble in attempting to please the patron of his little theatre. There is one thing, however, which he should insist upon being carried out, and that is the ringing up of the curtain at a certain hour for every performance. Eight o'clock is the proper hour for all evening amusements to begin, and the theatre going lagards who persistently insist upon arriving late for these performances ought to be punished for their offence by having the entertainments begin on time, thereby depriving them of the pleasure of the opening. However, to give these few full time to gain their seats the time of ringing up the curtain might be placed at 8:15 o'clock, but let the performance begin sharply at that hour so as not to keep the audience in too late.

It is not very pleasant to arrive at the opera house or elsewhere where an entertainment is announced to take place at eight o'clock or thereabouts, and have a tedious wait on the bench, or simply because a few people insist, as though it was their right and privilege, upon arriving late. Neither is it the most agreeable thing in the world to be disturbed by late arrivals after a performance has once begun, having, perhaps, to get out of a seat to allow the tardy ones to pass, or to be otherwise annoyed by their late arrival.

If those who are so persistently guilty of this offence would give the matter a moment's consideration they would see their fault rightly and remedy it. There is no excuse for delaying the ringing up of the curtain until a late hour, thereby bringing the termination of the performance so much nearer midnight. The average theatre goer has to work ten hours every day, and must be at his employment at an early hour. Such being the case he does not want to be kept out late by the selfishness of a few tardy ones.

THE TORTURING FIRES OF Eczema FOREVER QUENCHED BY DR. CHASE'S OINTMENT.

Mr. Thomas Gladman, a man well known in Peterboro, Ont., writes as follows: "I have been troubled over nine years with eczema on my leg; at times the itching was simply terrible. I spent dollars and dollars in cure, and tried many eminent doctors and pronounced incurable by them. Seeing Dr. Chase's Ointment freely advertised and noticing so many excellent testimonials as to what it has done for others, I procured a box from our prominent druggist, Mr. Madill, and I am happy to testify to day that after using two boxes I am completely cured."

Miss M. J. Hegerat, Maynooth, Ont., says: "I was troubled with salt rheum for a year; I was advised to try Dr. Chase's Ointment, and must say that with a few applications I am completely cured."

EXPEDITION TO LABRADOR.

THE CREW HAS RETURNED TO HALIFAX.

Mr. Franklyn, an Ex-Officer of the Royal Military College, was Second Officer and behaved gallantly—The Hooker, Unexplored Coast Beyond Hamilton Inlet—The High Coast Line a Magnificent Sight.

The expedition which left Halifax, N.S., last spring, under the command of Capt. Arthur Marvin and Mr. Franklyn, an ex-officer of the Royal military college, has returned to Halifax safe or a very interesting trip. The expedition was to explore the country in search of minerals, etc.

The vessel after ten days succeeded in getting through the ice and was the first vessel on the eastern coast of Labrador for about three weeks. They found the people generally in a bad state, a majority provisions, flour in particular. After relieving as many as possible, exploring along the coast was done, finding mica in large quantities with iron and plumbago. The rivers were magnificent, swarming with twenty pound salmon and six to eight pound sea trout. The scenery was simply grand.

Capt. Marvin in his letter to Prof. Forshaw Day states that nowhere in eastern Canada could anything be found like it; indeed, he doubts very much if there is anything in the west to equal it, as they have not there such noble salt water bays.

Going on to Hamilton inlet, and not stopping their northerly course, they reached latitude 56 35 north, longitude 62 12 west, which is a little beyond Nau, the most northerly of the Moravian mission islands. After spending some days in this neighborhood prospecting, large quantities of Labradorite were found in abundance, which polished beautifully. With this they ballasted the vessel.

The expedition found that beyond Hamilton inlet the coast had never been surveyed. Navigation was very difficult, the charts being almost useless. There is, Capt. Marvin thinks, not another such coast in the world, with such a bold highland and thousands of islands of immense size of from five to thirty miles.

The highest land seen in the north reached an elevation of 7,200 feet and a narrow crest of it was just on the coast line. Some hundreds of small shots with the camera were taken, prints of which Capt. Marvin will send to Prof. Day.

In four months and eleven days two thousand four hundred miles of sailing was done, the balance of forty-five days being made up in exploring and dodging bad weather and icebergs, of which hundreds were seen. The captain had an amateur crew, which did not quite come up to his expectations, as the novelty soon wore off after the first few weeks. They did not seem to relish standing night-watches, surrounded by don't jog and many icebergs, which made it extremely cold even in July. Mr. Franklyn acted as second in the expedition and did better than any of the crew. In bad weather, while crossing the gulf coming home, he was under water many times, but he never flinched while the men needed urging to keep their end up.

On the coast are great mountains of red granite. The missionaries told them positively that within 150 miles of where they stopped they would find slate formations and no doubt gold, but they could go no farther owing to the lateness of the season. The expedition, which has been an arduous one owing to the exposure, will start next spring and go into Ungava Bay.
