

LET THE TEAM RE-ORGANIZE AND PLAY BALL UNDER A NEW NAME.

Brockville Wanted a Match With the Queen's Men—The Grizzlies Have Not Been Practising—Queen's Campus Desorted This Week.

The Brockville football team wants a match with what was once Queen's senior team. At present there is not such an organization in connection with that institution, but in the ordinary course of events the collegians would be very happy to give the ambitious Brockvillians a trouncing.

As Queen's team cannot enter a match under that name without the consent of the senate of the university, it means that the team will not be seen on the football field any more this autumn. Of course, the athletic committee may take up a team to meet Varsity, but the players who are known to the public on account of their prowess on the football field will be missing. No doubt there are "just as good fish in the sea as ever were caught," but it takes time for them to grow.

It has been suggested that the members of Queen's team form themselves into an independent aggregation, calling themselves by some distinctive name, and strange matches with outside teams. There is no doubt but that good gate receipts could be secured, at the very fact that the members have been so unjustly used would prove a drawing card in itself.

What has happened to the Grizzlies? They have not had a practice this week. There is no knowing what might turn up at any moment, and a football struggle has never yet been won on a team's reputation. If the members cannot get away in the afternoon they can turn to the right practices in the evening pink.

Queen's college campus has been almost deserted this week, not more than half a dozen students who have not been in any way identified with football, turning out for the mere exercise each day. It here this fall the campus has been the scene of large daily gatherings, on one, also, the canvas clad, chrysanthemum-hued footballer and his host of admirers have disappeared.

The Toronto Star says "any one of three of the four clubs of the O.R.C. are much superior to any of the three teams in the Quebec union. Any one of the three college teams can defeat any of the members of the Quebec union." A cookie to the fact that Queen's can't win from either Grizzlies or Ottawa's college.

The Montreal Herald denies that McGill college club "decided to not accept its win from Queen's at Kingston as its first meeting," and declares "McGill has not taken entire leave of its senses."

Toronto Telegram. What a jar of salts of late, both newspaper and otherwise, Curtis, of Queen's, is creating. Curtis never did care for public life, but would rather be quietly following the pugilistic or chasing the girls than be the object of so much discussion as he now is.

Breach Can Be Repaired.

One member of Queen's athletic committee is confident that another team will be in readiness to meet the Grizzlies next week from to morrow and is telling the students that fifteen men will not stop Queen's from finishing its series. With the retirement of manager Ross and Captain Kilian, twelve men of the first fifteen, and the majority of the second team, uninterested, have stopped playing.

The players resound the treatment dealt out by the committee, and while recognising the committee's prerogative to demand a team of bona fide students, they think the management of the team might have shown some courtesy in being consulted before unnecessary complaints were submitted to the union. A member of the committee has now admitted that the action was rather hasty, and has expressed regret that the breach between the committee and players has arisen. In conversation members of the team have intimated that an apology from the governing body will do much towards healing wounded feelings, and that the old players will re-enter the game and finish the season with the same energy displayed by Queen's in all the games played so far. It will be utterly impossible for the committee to recruit a new team and train it to one week to make any kind of a showing in a final game, so players and citizens would appreciate a kind of grace and understanding shown by the committee when such will overcome the unfortunate break so near the end of the season.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Movements of The People—What They Are Saying and Doing.

Miss Bamford spent the winter in Kingston. Mr. Murray, clerk in Corbett's hardware store, is in.

Mrs. John McCrae, of the schooner St. Peter, drew north Sodus, N.Y., was father of Mrs. John Elliott, Tweed.

Mr. Bamford, guard in the Kingston penitentiary, has recovered well than his brother in Lehigh, N.W.T., is now severely ill.

F. A. McCombard, late of J. C. Craig & Co.'s dry goods store, has secured a large position in one of the leading dry goods stores in New York city.

Edo. Lazarus, Toronto, who lectures here next week, is well known to many Douglassians. He it was who performed the marriage ceremony in the Wing hall for Mr. and Mrs. Louis Abramson.

Ross, Loring and Son returned east yesterday from Ottawa, where with other ministers they interviewed the members of the government with reference to amalgamating the lines of protection.

At a recent meeting of the dairy organization, Stevens, Cal., it was enacted in the annual report that "the chairman of the visiting committee, Mrs. E. G. Bancroft, has been very diligent, giving much time to needy families, and has enlisted the help of others in placing the children in deserving families and getting them into day school and Sunday school."

John Donnelly, Jr., and Capt. Donnelly, Jr., returned home yesterday afternoon after successfully superintending the work of taking thirty large boats through the St. Lawrence river rapids. The work of piloting the boats down the rapids was a responsible trust, as the fleet included some of the very large boats of the upper lakes, which, as a matter of fact, with one exception, had been unable to pass through the Welland canal.

Thus the success of the pilots in running them through with only one slight accident is highly commendable. This morning the steamer New Island, Wards, left Galtwell with two barges for Coburg, where the last will be wintered.

The tug Active and barges are still in Brighton bay, unable to reach the long Hector on account of heavy winds.

The schooner Robert McDonald is in port awaiting a favorable wind to proceed to West Point to load lumber and thus fit up for her fall trade.

The schooner Annie Malone, from Bay of Quinte ports, unloaded 5,000 bushels of wheat and rye at the M.T. company's elevator this morning.

Last night the prevailing winds from the middle of October until well into November were from northeast points, while this year the very opposite will be remedied. The probability is to day we'll continue to have south winds.

Capt. J. M. Wilson, chief of engineers, United States army, has asked congress for $75,000 for the Cape Vincent breakwater. Already $25,000 has been voted for the purpose. The Eagle thinks the work of construction will commence early next spring.

Mail carriers complain that every day students persist in stopping them on the street and asking for their mail matter.

The carriers say their instructions will not permit of mail matter being delivered to persons on the streets, and they wish those of stopping them on the streets and causing them their work would done.
