THE SCHEME WORKED.

A Brockvillian's Method Of Seeing a Rugby Game Without Paying.

Brockville has some queer citizens, but al o some affable ones. Their atfability sometimes comes in very handy. Last Sa turday a nuc ber of sports from the island city accompanied the football team to the city for is match with the Granites. Among the visitors was a well-known residenter. Arriving here he approached a star in the sporting firmament and eaid: "Say, I've got so far without pay ing a cent. Have you got a pass for the game this aftern con

"Yes, I have one," returned the King. stonian, "but I want to use it myself." "Then I don't know how to work it." said the Brockville man; 'I don't propose to pay my way.'

"You're slow," replied his friend. "Let me give you a tip Here, take a wad of paper like this, and get your pencil as you approach the gate. Tell the ticket taker you are a pencil pusher, put on a beld as peacefully as now if such a necessity front and walk in.

The Breckvillian acted on the idea and worked the scheme for a free entrance to the grounds. It was absolutely against his principles to pay when he was not obliged to. Had he the fertility of imagination of his Kingston acquaintance he would be forced to put into circulation ed with success the government etill less of his coin.

Optolons of the Press Losins, Nov. 10 - There was the cusomary assumblage of ministers, judges, naval and military officers and other promment men at the banquet given by the lord mayor last night. The toasts "Army and Navy" were honored, admiral Sir William Kennedy and Gen. lord Wolseley responding. They described the respective forces as being in a perfect state of preparedness to most any power disputing Great Britain's just claims. The brevity of the speeches showed that every one real and there was general anxiety to hear the marque of Salisbury, who, on rising to respond to the toset of "Her Majesty's Ministers," was greated with prolonged cheers. The rosult had turged out happily. Is seemed possible at one manant that it would be otherwise but the great judgment and common sense displayed by the French government in preumstances of unusual difficulty had re lieved Europe of a very dangerous and threatening storm. While matters were to some extent in suspense it was neceseary for the British government to adopt cautions to prevent it being taken unawares. The immediate necessity for preprecautions had now passed but it was not to be assumed because these EVENING CLASS Mondays and Thursdays precautions had stepped immedi ately that they indicated the continued proximity of danger. It was impossible to stop the preparations at a mo ment's notice. Lord Salisbury dwelt up an the guesses that have been made as to the purpose of the naval activity in England, including the conjecture that the govern ment intended to declare a protectorate over Egypt, the latter allusion being cheered. He said in connection with this subject : "I am sorry I cannot rise to the height of aspirations indicated by th cheering of the audience; if we are force by others into a position we do not now or cupy I don't venture to prophesy what wi take place but though I do not say that w are entirely comfortable, we are quite suf ticiently satisfied with the state of things
