NOT VERY PEACEFUL.

The situation as it is said to non exists.

London, Nov. 14. There is no doubt now that the interpretation placed in England upon Lord Salisbury's speech is such that the outlook cannot be said to be very peaceful. It is universally considered that the premier manifested a strong realisation of the serious dangers that are close at hand. The situation is not considered to stand thus.

England refuses to abate one jot of her claims in Egypt, and although the government, to the disappointment of many, does not consider the moment ripe for the declaration of a protectorate, it has good reason to fear that France's temper may force such a step, which would undoubtedly bring matters to a crisis, even if the Emperor of Abyssinia can be amicably settled, which seems far from certain.

There must be a most critical moment next year, when the functions of the mixed tribunals in Egypt will come by a fall of time. England will then ask the powers interested to acquiesce in the abolition of the tribunals, and France and Russia, unless a great change comes over them, will certainly give an emphatic refusal.

England will then either pronounce the tribunals at an end or declare a protectorate, either of which courses will be sufficient to make the present naval preparations most necessary.

Another matter is beginning to attract attention, which is best described in the words of T. P. O'Connor, whose views are always worthy of con sideration:

"The most remarkable thing in Lord Salisbury's speech," he says, "is the avowance of all reference to the agreement with Germany. There is no room to doubt that an agreement exists, but its terms have been carefully kept from the world, although some official German journals report that the acquisition of Delagoa Bay by Great Britain is one of its conditions, Germany receiving something in return.

It is noteworthy with what care Lord Salisbury avoided the whole subject. In what sense must his reticence be understood? If an agreement was signed, perhaps it must still stand, and therefore, if we are determined to support the United States demand for the Philippines, it seems to follow that the conditions of the agreement with Germany must be carried out. On the other hand it was generally supposed that Germany was as ill pleased with the policy of the United States in the Philippines, as Novak and France. Has Germany been forced to look at the Philippine question in a light or is Germany pursuing one policy regarding the Philippines and another with respect to Africa? Probably it may prove that the real cause of the racial dissensions refers more to some of the terms of the Anglo-German agreement than to the Philippines and China.

It was unanimously decided that in future no team in the intercollegiate union should be permitted to contest for char-championships with teams outside of the union. Apart from the opinion of the members, the decided stand taken by the faculties of several of the universities of itself, have made this step necessary, but while fearing this regulation for the guidance of the union in future the members expressed their appreciation of the kindness of the Canadian rugby union in accepting their entry for the present year.

It was decided that notable novelties be presented to the members of the winning teams in the intercollegiate and senior varsity, and Masters' Maccabees & Giraffes were appointed a committee to take charge of this matter.

Secretary Parker presented his financial statement, which was evidently satisfactory, showing as it did economical management and a good surplus.

The annual elections were held, resulting as follows: Honorary president, Dr.
Yates, of Montreal; president, W.
Turner, McGill; vice-president, W.
Davel, Queen's; secretary-treasurer, A. J.
Macleod, Varsity; committee, Prof. Mc-Conkey, R. M. C.; M. White, Trinity.

MUST REVISE THE TARIFF.

Better Wages Provisions Improvements Are Needed—Revenue Is Not Sufficient.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Nov. 14.—In an interview Senator Hanna said the tariff would be revised to meet existing conditions.

ASSASSIN FOUND GUILTY.

Sentenced to Life Imprisonment For Killing the Emperor of Austria.

GENEVA, Switzerland, Nov. 12.—At the trial of Lachman, murderer of the emperor of Austria, the small courtroom was crowded, and there was an angry murmur at the prisoner, who came in with a swagger and a smile. His face blanched, however, as he saw the looks of abhorrence upon the faces of those present. He answered questions as to his name birthplace, etc., in a clear voice.

The prisoner, with brutal effrontery, smiled throughout the testimony, and protested in a loud voice that he had not committed his crime. He also admitted having said that the object of his visit to Geneva was to kill the duke of Orleans, and that the duke was doomed within a year. He regretted, he said, that he had not had express instructions as to his name birthplace, etc., which he had succeeded in accomplishing his purpose.

Lachman was found guilty and rendered to imprisonment for life.

During the trial, the prisoner was kept in solitary confinement in a subterranean ungeon, which is almost completely shut off from all light. He will be allowed to exercise for one hour twice a month. After six months he will be treated as an ordinary prisoner.

and She Won.

DETROIT, Mich., Nov. 14.—Mrs.

attorney of Wayne county on Tuesday.

The county went republican by over 300 votes, and the entire ticket except her and the county clerk, Mrs. Abbott, was nominated by the silver democratic county convention as a joke and a woman.
