CLOSER RELATIONS

Between Britain and the States Coming At An Opportune Moment

London, Nov. 14 -H. H Asquith, formerly home secretary, speaking before the Library club at l'adisham, said that while delicate questions still remained to be settled, he believed it would be found porsible through the resources of statesmanship to device arrangements which, without wounding the honor of either power, might reconcile the interests of both. Referring to the relations between England and the United States Mr. Asquith said it was noteworthy that a closer, conscious approximation of two peoples should come at the moment when the United States was stepping outside of her old boundaries and becoming a colonizing and imperial power. It seemed evident, he said, that under stress no people could resist the United States, which was destined to become one of the great powers in the far east. Here, he said, was a new factor of the utmost importance in the struggle which had already begun respecting the markets of China. England desires the Chinese railroads and ports to be open. If the United Sistee came into possession of Asiatic territory there was no doubt that she would deal in the same spirit, knowing that the co-operation of two English speaking powers must virtually affect, so far as England is concerned, for the tetter the whole future development of the far east.
