Hands Raw With Eczema

Husband Had to Undress and Dress Wife Like a Baby. Doctors' Medicines Drove Her Almost Crazy.

First Application CUTICURA Gives Perfect Ease in Five Minutes, and a Night's Sound Sleep.

My hands were completely covered with Eczema, and between my fingers the skin was perfectly raw. I had to sit with both hands lifted up, and away from the fire. I could get no ease night or day. I could not bear to get warm, it would put me in a rage of itching. My husband had to dress and undress me like a baby. The best physicians' medicines gave me no relief, and I drove me almost crazy. I was advised to try CUTICURA REMEDIES, and did so, although my husband had to get twenty miles to get them. As soon as he got back, I used the CUTICURA (ointment), and five minutes after the first application I was perfectly easy, and got my first night's rest. I used a set of CUTICURA REMEDIES (only house now), and recommend them to everybody, because of their wonderful effect.

SUGAR SMOKE KILLED THREE

FUMES OF BURNING SWEETS WERE FATAL TO SAILORS.

Captain, Mate and Apprentice Boy the Victims of a Queer Affair - The Cargo Was Discovered a fire in the South Pacific - Smoke Invaded the State-rooms and Suffocated the men While They Slept - Relative of Hobson One of the Victims.

New York, Nov. 16. — Fumes of burning sugar on board the American ship Kenilworth caused the death of three men and nearly that of a fourth. When the vessel came into port between three and four weeks ago after a record-breaking voyage from Valparaiso, there was a sad story to tell, despite the jubilation of Capt. Murphy on account of the fine record for fast time coming around the Horn.

The men who were lost were Capt. James D. Baker, who was in command of the ship when she left Hilo, one of the Sandwich islands, on May 19th, Arthur W. Piper, chief mate, and an apprentice boy named Henry Hobson said to be a relative of Lieut. Hobson. The person who was nearly suffocated is George Ernest Thrum, a passenger, who was making the trip from Hilo to this city.

The Kenilworth is owned by Arthur Sewall of Bath, Me. He came to this city and boarded the vessel at quarantine today in order that he might hear from J. H. Gronemann, who now occupies the position of first mate, the particulars of the fire which caused the three deaths.

This is the story of the mate:

"When we sailed from Hilo Capt. Baker was in charge. He lived at Cape Cod. Everything went well until July 8th. We were then 2,300 miles from Valparaiso, and at 8 p. m. on that date first mate Piper saw smoke coming up the first ventilator aft. The men called to Capt. Baker and in a moment all hands were piped on deck by the boatswain for the purpose of subduing the flames. The coverings were removed from the hatches and the smoke belched forth in great clouds, and came so fiercely that it was necessary to replace the coverings. There was a time with the smoke which was suffocating.

"There was nothing to be done but keep the hatches closed. Capt. Baker so followed the course that he had laid out up to 8 p. m. When I took charge of the port watch Capt. Baker, mate Piper and the members of the starboard watch went below. The apprentice boy, Hobson, was told that he could turn in. When he went to the cabin which he usually occupied it was found half burned, and Piper said that he might occupy a divan in his (Piper's) room. Capt. Baker's stateroom was in the cabin on the starboard side of the vessel.

"Thrum, the passenger, had a stateroom on the port side of the vessel over the storeroom. Thrum thought it would not be advisable to shut there while the fire was burning. He asked Capt. Baker if he might not occupy the divan in the captain's sitting room, to which Baker replied that he was welcome.

"At 11:30 p. m. I started for the captain's sitting room to arouse Baker, as it was blowing a stiff gale. When I reached the passage leading to the room I was almost overpowered by the fumes of the burning sugar and had to retreat.

"The first thing I did then was to open all the doors and portholes. I made a second attempt to get into the room, but had to again retreat. The third time I got as far as the sitting room, where I found Thrum lying on the divan. He was unconscious. The captain lay on his back, apparently dead. The two men were carried to the deck and then I went to the mate's room. Piper was lying in one corner of the apartment. Hobson was found on the divan. These two were taken on deck and placed on the after hatch. For four hours the men worked to resuscitate the victims, but only succeeded in the case of the passenger Thrum.

"When Thrum recovered from the effects of the fumes he did not know what had happened to him. Some of the crew put Thrum to bed and he slept until 5 p. m. the next day, when he was told of Baker's and Piper's death. After that the hatches were kept battened down. I knew there was a child not three years old in Baker's family and took care of him. We kept right on, headed for Valparaiso, where we arrived early in August. At Valparaiso I made an affidavit, what followed I don't know. The United States consul took some of the men's statements, and it was found that about two days were destroyed.

"When word reached D. B. Dearborn, agent for Arthur Sewall, of the loss of Capt. Baker, Capt. James Murphy of the American sailing ship Shenandoah, who was just starting on his vacation, was ordered to Valparaiso to take command of the vessel and bring her to this port.

FIRST STATE DINNER.

It Was Given Last Night At The Executive Mansion.

Washington, Nov. 17. — The diplomatic relations of the Anglo-American commission, which reciprocity with which the joint session and subsequent sub-committee meetings were conducted yesterday, were varied last evening by the first state dinner of the season at the executive mansion. The Canadian members of the commission and the attachés were all there together with the British ambassador, Dalton and Lady Pauncefote, Capt. McCauley, of the marine corps, introduced the guests to President and Mrs. McKinley. The state dining room was handsomely decorated with roses. The confections embodied likenesses of the English and the American flags. Lady Laurier wore a gown of black silk net with appliques of white lace. Lady Pauncefote was attired in a gown of delicate blue. The dinner was a most elaborate affair.

The Anglo-American commission held a brief formal session yesterday, adjourning in order that separate conferences representing the two countries might proceed. Reciprocity continues to be the main subject under discussion and it is understood that an advance has now been made by a tentative agreement on a few articles which are to be a subject of reciprocal concessions.

MUST PRESS FOR ANNEXATION

And In a Way Never Before Elected in That Island.

Kingston, Ja., Nov. 17. — Considerable disappointment has been occasioned here by a despatch from Washington announcing the failure of the negotiations for the proposed Anglo-American reciprocity treaty for the West Indies.

The Hon. S. C. Burke, the leader of the "popular" side of the legislature, in an interview in regard to this matter says, "The question now arises if the West Indies cannot obtain American reciprocity of countervailing duties in the home markets as the only alternative to ruin which is left us, but this is a deplorably insufficient one, and the question of Canadian annexation of Jamaica must therefore arise, and be agitated as it never has heretofore, with the view of compelling further action."

LETTERSE TO THE EDITOR.

"Anglican" Has No Desire To Avoid Publicity—Traveller No 2.

Kingston, Nov. 15. — (To the Editor.) The enclosed letter explains itself, and though it is a reply to a correspondent who has not favored the Whig, I request its publication to show that I have no desire to avoid the utmost publicity although "Catholic" and his friend apparently desire to change the field of the discussion. —ANGLICAN.

"Catholic" was not so averse to controversy a month ago as he is now. My initial letter in the Whig was published on October 21st, and his reply bears the same date, though published on the 24th. My second appeared on the 25th and his rejoinder on the 26th. Even then he began to be rather sick of it, but since the compulsion to expose of his literary and historical blunders on October 28th he has suddenly found himself too much occupied with his articles in the Freeman to make any reply at all. "Traveller No. 2" however, whose style of writing is most curiously similar to the Freeman's articles, and who is evidently a friend of "Catholic's" is not indeed identical with him, is now endeavoring to draw from me some statement, answer or other writing about which sufficient dust may be raised to hide the retreat of his alter ego. "Surely in vain is the net spread in the sight of any bird." I have no intention of entering the net in which "Catholic" is so securely caught, nor of answering any questions at all until my opponent has satisfactorily explained (1) the forged quotation from St. Cyprian; (2) the authority on which he made the statement, "I gave an extract from the king's declaration as approved and published in 1642 and appended to the thirty nine articles in the book of common prayer, published for the use of the laity at that date;" (3) the where the 54th article "maintains that each generation must learn the revealed doctrines of religion from an individual study and interpretation of the Bible." I have proved the first to be an acknowledged forgery, the second to be an audacious fabrication and have denied the truth of the third. If I am wrong about any of the three the proof of my mistake is easy. "Catholic" or "Traveller No. 2" can easily produce the prayerbook of 1642, or satisfactory evidence of its existence, and quote the words of the sixth article which will confute me. If they decline to do this until a sufficient time has elapsed to ensure forgetfulness of the points at issue I, on my part, have a perfect right to decline, and I do decline any further correspondence with one so careless of the truth, or any anonymous writer who intervenes on his behalf. If I shall continue to watch the articles in the Freeman, and possibly to adduce fresh evidence of any further of my statements. More misinterpretation of English church doctrine it is unnecessary to dwell together on. The writer in the Freeman is too thoroughly discredited —ANGLICAN.

ITALY DISTURBED

Because Of The Action Of France At Raheiti

Rome, Nov. 17. — The little sultanate of Raheiti, on the African coast near the south end of the Red sea, which has been referred to in connection with Russia's suspected designs, has now become the centre of intrigues of interest owing to a rumor that a French warship landed an officer and a detachment of blue jackets at a point immediately south of Raheiti, the possession of which district as between Massowah and Obek is disputed. The Tribunas says that the Italian representatives at Raheita protested and the French withdrew. The news has created remarkable excitement there being much sensitiveness respecting Italy's protectorate over Raheiti, which it is suspected, France is menacing in Russ's interests.

At a meeting of the supporters of the government held last evening ex-premier Rudini in an address advised the extreme measures in dealing with the question, and appealed to the country to protect Premier Pelloux's policy. Deputy Fasciotti at Turin's expense. Minister of Commerce replied that the government was taking energetic measures. Italian interests but he was opposed to the use of force as the means of settling the question.

PUT YOUR FINGER ON YOUR PULSE.

If It Is Weak or Irregular don't Hesitate to Start the use of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills at once.

The way the heart beats is an index of how the whole machinery of the body is going. With a strong, steady, regular pulse we may expect vigorous health. With a weak, irregular, intermittent pulse we can tell at once the vitality is low—that Dizzy and Faint Spells, Smothering and Sinking Sensations, Nervousness and Sleeplessness and similar conditions are bound to ensue.

By their action in strengthening the heart and regulating the beat, toning the nerves and enriching the blood, Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills relieve and cure all those distressing conditions just enumerated, and impart vigor and vitality to the system.

Mrs. B. Croft, residing on Waterloo Street, St. John, N.B., relates her experience with this remedy as follows:

"For some time past I have suffered from pallor, weakness and nervous prostration. I had palpitation and irregular beating of the heart so severe as to cause me great alarm. I was treated by physicians, but got no permanent relief.

"Finally I was recommended to try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and I am glad to say that from them I derived the first real benefit that I ever got from any medicine. My appetite is improved, my entire system toned up, and I can do no less than cheerfully recommend Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills to all requiring a reliable heart and nerve tonic."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c. a box, or 3 for $1.25, at all druggists. T. MILBURN & Co., Toronto, Ont.

Miss Mary F. Hicks, South Bay, Ont., says that Laxa-Liver Pills cured her of Sick Headache, from which she had suffered for more than a year.

THE ELECTION IN LENNOX.

LIVELY TIMES IN AND ABOUT NAPANEE.

A Great Many Strangers in Town Whom Rumor Says Are Boodlers — Whitney Tells His Little Tale of Woe—Hon A. S. Hardy to Speak To-Night.

Napanee, Nov. 17.—The election day is drawing near and not many more days of suspense will be endured by the candidates before their fate is decided. Both parties are working their best and both are confident of victory on Friday. A prominent citizen remarked yesterday that he never saw, in all his election experiences, so many boodlers in Napanee at one time. If all the strangers are boodlers there is a great many for sure. If one has a lively imagination it is not hard to make that serviceable organ conform to almost anything, and then certainly all strangers are of the class above mentioned. It is quite astonishing the number of boodle stories that are being told, and believed to be the gospel truth, when some know is just airing his vocabulary.

The absent friends of a number of our citizens are renewing acquaintances for a few days just now. J. P. Whitney, leader of the opposition, told a direful tale of wrong doing by the present government last evening. He bitterly attacked the Hon. A. S. Hardy, and even the strangers visiting in town were dubbed boodlers and government heelers. The meeting was well attended and very orderly, mayor Jamieson occupying the chair. To-morrow evening Hon. A. S. Hardy will speak in the opera house.

PARKER ON A NEWSPAPER.

How the Famous Novelist Started His Literary Career.

St. John Sun.

Did you know Gilbert Parker, the novelist, when he was a newspaper man in Australia? The question was asked of J. H. Taylor, who has been engaged in journalism in three continents, and is now for a second time in Canada. It was a suggestion made at a venture, but it went to the right place.

"When first I knew the young Canadian who has since become so famous in the world of letters," said Mr. Taylor, "we were fellow members of the staff of the Sydney Morning Herald. I remember well when the slim, little young man, with keen, sparkling eye, short dark beard, and bright, intelligent, but not perhaps what would be called handsome face, first appeared in the editorial rooms. He had come to Sydney from Canada and was understood to have dabbled a little in journalism, but he was in no sense an experienced newspaper man. In a very little time, however, he made his mark in the leading journal of New South Wales. One of his first essays was a descriptive article on the Melbourne cup race, the great carnival of the Australian sporting year. The general opinion of the members of the staff was that it was too prosy and diffuse, too full of solemn reflections, and contained too much about the chariot races of ancient Greece to satisfy newspaper purposes. Still it was learned and well thought of at headquarters.

"Mr. Parker rapidly advanced in the estimation of the proprietors and editor, whose assistant he became in the course of a few months. It cannot be said his work in those days betrayed the latent powers, the brilliant and versatile literary genius which was subsequently demonstrated to the world in 'Pierre and his People,' and 'The Seats of the Mighty.' His ability as a leader writer was not above the average, nor was his dramatic criticism of a very high order. Still the fact remains that he was successful in the purpose he had in view.

"When in Sydney, Mr. Parker made no essays into the realm of fiction. We, his fellow members of the Herald staff, never suspected in him the expression of that hidden force, that powerful imagination, that vivid, graceful and charming style which was destined to surprise and electrify the English speaking world. Probably he did not know it himself. That he had literary ambition we all understood, but the direction it would take we never could guess. He had no more idea of a career of fame in store, which was produced at the great theatre with only moderate success. He also attempted one or two other dramatic pieces of a similar character, but his essays in a new Sydney was that he was a 'dry lot to work.' I could mention that in manner he was most unpretentious. He was a thorough comrade, a good fellow and conversation talker, a genial companion and his associations in social circles were eagerly sought after in society. We all liked him and nobody delights more than his old fellow journalists to learn of his success in the realms of romance. He delights to talk with an old comrade of the old Sydney days and have a stroll down memory lane with one 'pressman' in Australia."

The Corner Stone Laid.

Maxville, Nov. 17. — Snow fell on Thursday and it has remained on the ground. About half of the fine on the roads are on wheels yet as there is not enough snowfall. A new sidewalk is to be laid on the south side of the street. This will add both to the convenience and appearance of the village. Farmers are busy getting in and storing their crops. An addition is being built to the rectory of the Catholic church. The friends of Immanuel church purpose giving a tea on Christmas eve. Mr. Wood, Bishop, has been here to call on Rev. E. E. Flatt, Methodist minister, and to have a hunt. He was quite successful, securing quite a number of partridges. Hunting parties have been in from the front. We have heard that some have good success, while others will probably go away disappointed. Rev. Mr. McKinnon, Presbyterian student, here during the summer, has left east to Queen's to resume his studies. The laying of the corner stone of the new Methodist church at Fort Stewart took place on the 5th inst. It was largely attended and the proceeds of the tea were very encouraging.

Ghost Parties Were Removed

Port Milford, Nov. 16. — The Methodist church has been repainted and is now a credit to the people. The schooners Ellen White loaded barley here for Toronto yesterday. A. W. Carter, owner of steamer Merritt, is off to Montreal again. Farmers seem quite jubilant over the prospects of a reduction of the duties on barley and will likely sow a large amount of it next spring. Miss Addie Lobb, Belleville is visiting Capt. W. Lobb.

The Over-erect Man

—Is full chested, hollow-backed, with large hips, and straight nape of neck, and his coat usually wrinkles at the back over shoulder blades, "draws" at the armholes, and "binds" at the collar.

In "Fit-reform" garments for this type, the front half of the coat is made a size larger than the back, the collar sets well to the rear, and the hip space is made unusually full.

The Over-erect man wears to best advantage close-fitting garments, such as "Morning," "Shooting," "Frock," or "Dress" coat, the loose-fitting "Sack" being prone to wrinkle over his hollow back, and between his shoulders.

All Portly men are necessarily Over-erect, because of the backward poise of the figure, required to carry the corpulency of the front.

Few tailors succeed in fitting this type of man, and in "Fit-reform" only can he find his shape "ready made".

Prices $10.00 to $25.00 per suit.

A BRIGHT, BENEVOLENT BEAR.

Spared the Life of a Baby Boy—Was Brain a Seer?

Carleton Place Canadian.

Many, many years ago, at a time almost pr historic in Lanark, a little girl was passing from her father's farm in the township of Dalhousie, to a neighbor's. She carried a pretty baby in her arms. At that time Dalhousie was largely a forest. Civilization had done but little in subduing the original wilds, and these were yet inhabited thickly by the animals common to the country. The girl trod on over sod and stone and stump in leisurely array, her errand requiring no despatch. Between her father's farm and the neighbor's there lay a dense brush fence. After surmounting this difficulty the girl was horrified on lifting her eyes to see a huge bear in front of her with two cubs. Impulses leading to this end that refuge gathered in her mind and broke as often in the foam of dismay. Finally she decided to leave the baby as a hostage to the brutes, in the hope that, while it might dwell for a few minutes in the primrose path of dalliance, she could escape to the neighbor's, and return and rescue it. Depositing the sweet child on the grass she walked away with a wounded heart, but eyes looking backward. Her blood congealed as she saw the animal dismount from its hind quarters and approach the bundle. For a moment the beast turned around the dainty dish whose exquisite flavoring would have flattered the appetite of the grossest gourmand, but it licked it and then wheeled, and, calling its offspring off, flounced into the forest, the child so providentially spared even to this under the name of Jacob Leslie.
